HAIL! NEW YEAR 1942

VOL. LVII (57 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JAN. 1, 1942 NUMBER 1

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS MAKE PUBLIC REPLY

Note: In a formal reply to the report made by Dr. Lillian G. Moultrie and F. R. Farnum, inspectors for the State Welfare Department following a visit in October to the DeKalb County Infirmary, the Board of County Commissioners, makes the following statement:

To the Citizens of DeKalb County:

We desire to call attention to the report of an inspection of the DeKalb County Infirmary or Poor Farm made by Dr. Lillian G. Moultrie and Mr. F. R. Farnum of the State Department of Public Welfare made on October 1, 1941 and recently printed in the county newspapers.

In a previous statement we called the public's attention to the fact that, while conditions are not ideal at the infirmary, that conditions are as good as they have been in the past thirty years, that our infirmary compares favorably in equipment and operation with infirmaries in adjoining and neighboring counties and that conditions are as good as they can be made considering the type and class of inmates which we have in the Infirmary.

In our former statement we called attention to the fact that the problem at the Infirmary is greatly complicated by the fact that so many of the inmates are mental cases and are cases that are entirely helpless by reason of physical infirmities, and that the Infirmary is not equipped, by reason of either physical facilities and personal, to handle these types of cases. The inspection report of the Department of Public Welfare as of June 3, 1941, lists 34 inmates of which 15 were mental cases and several of which were violent enough as to require restraint in cells.

Dr. Moultrie, in her report finds that not enough care is taken in connection with the acceptance of inmates. Dr. Moultrie is either ignorant of the provisions of the law or has been so unfair as to refuse to meet the issue as it exists. The law requires the Township Trustees to transfer to the County Infirmary any pauper that has become a permanent charge on the Township and the law requires the County Infirmary to accept them. Therefore the County Infirmary receives all cases that cannot be taken care of in any other matter and therefore receives the worst type of cases, from financial, physical and mental standpoints and is compelled to do the best that can be done with such cases under the circumstances.

May we also call attention to the fact that no insane person can be confined to the county jail, under the law unless said person has been found to be violent by a decree of the court and that therefore all of these cases reach the county farm and are usually of advanced ages. Then the condition arises that creates a large part of the difficulty at the Infirmary. These persons are usually ordered committed to an insane asylum by the court and the asylums do not admit them by reason of their advanced age and for the reason that the asylums desire to reserve their space for younger persons who may respond to treatment and who can be classified as curable. As an example, John Krontz, of Garrett, was ordered committed to the Richmond Hospital for the Insane on October 24, 1941, and has not been accepted and the future time of his acceptance is purely problematical and in the meantime he must be kept at the Infirmary because of the fact that there is no other place to keep him. Thomas Rudd, of Butler, was ordered committed to the Insane Asylum about two years ago and was only accepted in the last few months. Many other similar cases could be cited, and this is the big problem at the Infirmary.

We think the matter has been handled in past years and is now being handled as well as it can be handled considering the conditions that exist. Conditions are never ideal at an infirmary for the poor, never have been and never will be. The nature and class of the inmates and expenses of operation will not permit it but we know by experience and inspection that our County Infirmary compares favorably with all others.

The report of Dr. Moultrie is so vindictive in its form and nature as to lead any fair minded person to question both the capability and motives of Dr. Moultrie and on this question of motive we are willing to permit the public to draw its own conclusions and which we think are obvious from the nature of the report and the facts which we will hereinafter set out.

The same Mr. F. R. Farnum, who participated in this inspection with Dr. Moultrie inspected the DeKalb County Infirmary on January 15, 1941, and made his report on General Sanitary Conditions. "With the use of the very good water pressure system, recently overhauled and improved, and with the use of the modern septic tank drainage system provided, sanitary conditions seem generally good. Within the building itself, there are some evidences of need for minor wall repairs and some further repainting. Natural light and cross ventilation are adequate."

In the same report on the question of Kitchen and Food, the inspector said: "The general kitchen at the north end of the main building was found to be in a satisfactory and sanitary condition. Equipment was found to be servicable for the preparation of the meals served. The food was well prepared, well balanced and well served."

In the same report under the heading of Personal Hygiene, the inspector used the following language: "Weekly bathing is required of all and more frequent bathing is the rule rather than the exception. Liberally speaking the individual inmate is provided with his own comb, brush, soap and towel. Clean washed clothing is available at all times."

There is no adverse criticism of any kind in this report and this report, in full, is on file in the office of the Auditor of DeKalb County and the DeKalb County Department of Public Welfare.

The same Mr. F. R. Farnum made another inspection of the DeKalb County Infirmary on June 3, 1941, and which report in full is also on file in the office of the Auditor and in the office of the Department of Public Welfare of DeKalb County, Indiana.

In this report under the heading of Kitchen and Food the Inspector used the following language: "On date of inspection meals were reported as satisfactory in quantity and quality."

Upon the question of Personal Hygiene the inspector used the following language: "Among the more able bodied inmates, matters of personal cleanliness and cleanliness of clothing appears to receive close attention and daily effort is required to maintain a good degree of personal hygiene among all inmates. Individual toilet articles appear to be the rule rather than the exception and an abundance of clean clothing is available at all times."

Upon the question of General Sanitary Conditions, the following comment was made: "There appears to be a lack of adequate attention to the cleanliness of the inmate corridor, room and equipment, especially in matters for which the inmate is directly responsible."

No other comment or criticism is made in this report other than a recommendation that the inmates rooms should be freed of excess baggage and clothing.

We shall only ask the people of DeKalb County to contrast these reports of January 15, 1941 and June 3, 1941, with the prejudice, exaggerations and unfair and untruthful statements in the report of Dr. Moultrie on October 1, 1941, particularly in relation to food and sanitary conditions.

Dr. Moultrie has referred to the case of the inmate who was lying on a mattress and stated that he was covered with bed sores and had not been furnished a bed. This inmate's name was Draggoo and he had been moved from a bed and placed on a mattress because of the fact that he had injured himself by falling out of bed frequently and he was placed on a mattress on the floor to avoid further injury. The statement that he was covered with bed sores is a statement without the vestige of truth in it. Many other statements in the report are utterly false and their falsity can be established before any tribunal.

A conference was held in the Commissioners Court Room on October 2, 1941 at which these Commissioners, Dr. Moultrie and Mr. Farnum, Judge William P. Endicott and four of the five members of the Department of Public Welfare of DeKalb County, namely Rev. Father John Bennett, Ward L. Jackman, Mrs. Vern Sparks and Mrs. Eston McCague, and, Nora Brown, Director of the Department of Public Welfare of DeKalb County, Indiana, were present. All of the members of the Department of Public Welfare of DeKalb County had also made an inspection of the DeKalb County Infirmary.

Dr. Moultrie made substantially the same charges at this meeting as are contained in the report and was told by the local members of the Welfare Board that her statements were exaggerated and not true and that conditions were as good at the Infirmary as they could be made under the circumstances and that they compared favorably with infirmaries in neighboring counties. She was also advised that a large part of the trouble was due to the fact that insane persons at the Infirmary were not being accepted by the Asylums and that the Asylums were under the supervision of the State Department of Welfare and that she could really accomplish some results if she would see that these insane inmates were promptly admitted to asylums.

Dr. Moultrie became very angry and told those persons present that they did not know what they were talking about and refused to accept any statement of the local members of the Welfare Board and when asked for her solution of the matter, said that DeKalb County should build a county infirmary hospital to take care of such cases and should refuse to admit mental cases. When asked what should be done with the mental cases, she made no answer.

In this connection may we call the attention of the citizens of this county that a new county infirmary hospital would cost from $50,000.00 to $100.000.00 with an annual operating overhead of $25,000.00 per year. If the people of DeKalb County want the solution of the problem that Dr. Moultrie suggests, then these ideas should be communicated to the DeKalb County Council.

In addition to the inspection of the Infirmary by members of the Board of of the Department of Public Welfare of DeKalb County, Indiana, the Grand Jury of DeKalb County, Indiana has inspected this Infirmary once each year for many years and has placed its approval on the infirmary and its management. The County Council of DeKalb County inspected this Infirmary in September, 1941, and approved of the Infirmary and complimented the management. In addition, since the original article by Dr. Rasmussen, numerous citizens of the county and official delegations from churches, fraternal orders and clubs, groups of clergymen, together with many individuals, have visited and inspected the Infirmary and there has been no criticism from any of these groups and they have invariably stated that conditions were as good as they could be expected to be considering the problems that exist. Can all of these citizens of DeKalb County be wrong and Dr. Moultrie and Mr. Rasmussen be right?

We think Dr. Moultrie should explain the complete reversal of the report of October 1, 1941 with those of January 15, 1941 and June 3, 1941. Or are we justified in drawing our own conclusions?

We think it only fair to say that Mr. F. R. Farnum, who made the inspections of January 15, 1941 and June 3, 1941, and who accompanied Dr. Moultrie, did not agree with her statements or her report and so stated to these commissioners.

We admit that the DeKalb County Infirmary is not equipped and furnished like a hotel, including draperies, bed spreads, and other items. Nor do we think that it is necessary. Nor do we know of any other Infirmary that is so equipped. We specifically deny the great bulk of the charges in the report and charge that the report is a mass of exaggerations and vindictive statements on the part of the maker of the report.

We are doing all that is possible at the County Infirmary and if Dr. Moultrie and her State Department of Public Welfare will see to it that our insane persons are taken off of our hands and placed in asylums where they belong, it will greatly simplify our problems.

In closing we wish to state as we have stated before, that we are willing to rest this controversy with the people of DeKalb County. Visit the Infirmary, observe the meals and conditions for yourself. We have stated that we think conditions are as good as they can be made. The local Welfare Board and many other individuals, delegations and agencies have agreed with us in substance. We feel that a personal visit will satisfy any of you, and you are at all times welcome to call either as individuals or as groups and make such investigation or inquiry as you may see fit.

RECEIVE LETTER FROM WEST COAST

Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Bowman received a letter from their daughter, Mrs. Max Chapman, dated December 26th Santa Monica, California. The letter concerned Christmas on the West coast and in part is as follows: "This year we proved the old proven fact that it is more blessed to give than to receive. We entertained four soldiers and they really had a time. And in return so did we. They expect to be shipped to the Philippines at any time and they are making the most of things now. It certainly brings the war close to home when you talk to those fellows who are little more than boys.

"There are so many being shipped in here from the East that some of the home town boys may be arriving. If you hear of any let us know and we will try to find them. The boys we had yesterday had to be on duty at midnight and when we took them back to camp a sentry with a fixed bayonet came around to see who we were. Sure gives you a funny feeling.

"We let the fellows each send a telegram greeting home charged to our phone. I'm a bit tired today. I am not used to cooking for the army."

Love, Eloise.

R. H. C. HAVE CHRISTMAS PARTY

The R. H. C. held its annual Christmas party at the pleasant rural home of Mrs. Inez Hadsell, December 16. The home was attractively decorated with a Christmas tree and other Yuletide decorations.

At dinner the guests were seated at a long taole and three smaller ones, with a centerpiece of candles, a miniature Christmas tree, with Santa and his reindeer, favors in a green color scheme, each held a holly spray. Following the dinner a short Christmas program was given.

Mrs. Hadsell, assisted by Mary Wilder and Tommy Hart distributed the Christmas gifts.

All returned to their homes late thanking Mrs. Hadsell for a day long to be remembered.

School Supplies at News Office.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Carlin and sons, Joseph and Randall, of Chicago, came Wednesday evening and remained until Sunday morning with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Randall and Mrs. W. H. Randall.

Three wedding anniversaries were celebrated Christmas Day in the Frank Kitchen home east of town. They were, first Mr. and Mrs. Kitchen, 38 years and their son, Gerald and wife, 8 years on December 24, their daughter, Mrs. Russell Jarrett and husband of Grass Lake, Michigan, were married 15 years on the 22nd of December. HAPPY NEW YEAR

And if it would only be so! We have torn off the old pages on the calendar and wound up the clock. We are making way for a promising 1942, being convinced that this year will be our opportunity to correct past mistakes and avoid new ones. But no new year can remain pure and unspoiled in today's maelstrom of churning waves and gutteral threats. The New Year is borne into its present state and amid sounds of joyous bells and happy cries for a prosperous year—also torpedoes and bombs call their dire notes for the season's greetings! But let us believe firmly that this year is one for binding us still closer together as brothers, giving each one a deeper understanding of those human hopes that spring from within and will be borne to bear fruit during 1942.

Though there lies uncertainty and doubt, with our economic prospects on slippery ground, our military defense pounding itself to create a mammoth structure to frighten away the wolves, our present world is groping for a way out of all this disorder. With politics on disputed ground, agriculture and labor striving for individual gains, hysteria and ethics vieing for first place and party and power playing to a full house, the fellow who can really visualize a happy new 1942 may be living in a fanciful world of his own making. But uncertainty through the world doesn't mean uncertainty within one's self. Mankind goes from one year to the next, century after century. Man can't do much about stopping those leaves on the calendar from turning nor can he have much success keeping the clock from ticking off hours until another year rolls around. Perhaps man can't improve much on the world's present situation by forestalling coming events or removing present evils. But man makes up the world and man also has the power to make or unmake himself. Therefore, man may hinder and block, waste and burden, but as he can influence with bad so can he be capable of controlling some of its good. Such a force is man, making and altering an entire universe, it is wise to begin this year by taking inventory of himself. The whole panorama for 1942 can be made to look better by making mankind better right here at home. Mankind in St. Joe is you and me. We wish for mankind a very useful New Year!

"The moving finger writes, and having writ, moves on," says the Persian poet. And while that moving finger may "cancel not a line" the lessons it has pointed out should inspire all to finer goals for 1942.

This organization has grown up with this community, and, during good times and bad, has clung steadfastly to the principle that the good will of its customers is an asset beyond all price, and we are willing to break precedent, at times, in order to retain it.

In this spirit of appreciation we wish for you and yours the most enjoyable and prosperous New Year you have ever known.

In this, our New Year's greeting to our friends, we would capture, if we could, some of the merriment of the days when sleigh-bells jingled on the frosty air.

As true merriment is an affair of the heart and not of season, that is the kind of joy we are wishing for you now. Loads of good luck, loads of good cheer, and good health to you all.

ST. JOE NEWS

VOL. LVII (57 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JAN. 8, 1942 NUMBER 2

NEW AUTO "USE" STAMPS TO GO ON SALE LATE IN JANUARY

Motorists will pay their federal "use" tax on all types of motor vehicles at any first, second, third or fourth class post office, according to an announcement of the Chicago Motor Club. Revenue stamps costing $2.09 will go on sale late in January and will represent the portion of the tax due February 1 and covering the period to July 1, 1942. The full tax of $5 per year will be due each succeeding July 1.

When motorists have purchased the stamp, they will be given a card to fill out and forward to the nearest office of the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Upon receipt of the card the bureau will check the motorist's name on the master list of all motor vehicle owners.

Failure to pay the tax may bring a penalty of not more than $25 in fines, thirty days in prison, or both. Arrests will be made by federal officers.

A bill to repeal this tax has been introduced in congress but will not be acted upon until the new session in January. Motor club officials throughout the nation are opposed to the tax on the basis that its operation imposes considerable inconvenience, its enforcement is questionable, and its cost of collection is too high in proportion to the probable returns.

BROTHERHOOD MEETING AT BUTLER

The January meeting of the Wittenberg Brotherhood, will be held in the Butler United Brethren Church Wednesday evening, January 14. This will be the annual election of officers. All members are urged to attend.

The program for the evening will consist of motion pictures of interesting Canadian scenes and also local views of Butler by Dr. Earl E. Frisbie. In addition to the pictures and son service Miss Patricia Byers, of Syracuse, Indiana, will furnish special numbers on her xylophone.

The church ladies will serve the dinner beginning promptly at 7 o'clock. The serving will continue until all have been served.

FILING 1941 U. S. INCOME TAX RETURNS

A Deputy Collector from his office has been assigned to be in Auburn Indiana, from 8:30 A. M. to 4:30 P. M., January 13, 1942, at the Post Office Building, for the purpose of assisting taxpayers in rendering their 1941 returns. This service is free and taxpayers are urgently and cordially invited to call upon the Deputy. Publicity of this notice will be appreciated.

THOSE REQUIRED TO FILE ARE: Single individuals, or married individuals not living with husband or wife, having a GROSS INCOME of $750 or more; or married individuals living together having a combined GROSS INCOME of $1,500 or more. All corporations or partnerships, regardless of their income, are required to file a return.

The net income is no longer to be used in determining the liability for the filing of a Federal income tax return. The liability of a citizen or resident of the United States to file is dependent upon his status as a married or single person, and the amount of Gross Income. Therefore, every citizen or resident of the United States will be required to file a return for the taxable year 1941 if his GROSS INCOME in 1941, regardless of the amount of his net income, comes within the amount specified above for his particular status. A return must be filed even though, by reason of allowable deductions from gross income and of allowable credits against net income, it develops that no tax is due.

FORMS TO BE USED ARE: A person should file his return on Form 1040, unless his gross income for 1941 does not exceed $3,000, and consists wholly of salary, wages, or other compensation for personal services, dividends, interest, rent, annuities, or royalties, in which event he may elect to file it on Form 1040-A, a simplified form on which the tax may be readily ascertained by reference to a table contained in the form. Farmers should complete Form 1040-F and attach same to the Form 1040. Partnerships should use Form 1065, and corporations should use Form 1120.

While the deadline for filing is the last minute of March 15, taxpayers should file now in order to avoid last minute rush and resulting penalties

INTERESTING LETTER FURNISHED NEWS READERS EACH WEEK CONCERNING LIFE IN SOUTH

By CLYDE E. HART

Port Richey, Fla.
12, 29, 41.

Friend Fred:

To our Indiana Friends:

I will now do as I promised you before I left and write you about our trip. We left home Friday December 26. Some told us it was a bad day to start but when you read this letter you will see that they were wrong. We did not drive very fast and staid the first night fifteen miles north of Lexington, Ky. Our second day's driving was among the Mountains of Kentucky and Tennessee, the roads were good and the scenery fine. We camped our second night a few miles south of Knoxville, Tenn. The third day (Sunday) we started early and drove thru Chattanooga Tenn. to Dalton, Georgia, where we attended church service, from there we drove to Macon, Georgia, where we staid all night. We started early for our final day's drive and arrived at Port Richey at 4:30 P. M. We had a good night's rest last night and I wish you might be here this morning to experience this real Florida weather. The sun is bright and not a cloud in the sky, the thermometer stands at 75 degrees.

To those who might wish to make the trip to Florida it would be interesting to know that the expense is not great. The distance from my home to Port Richey is 1,194 miles, we averaged a little over 19 miles to a gallon of gasoline and used one quart of oil extra on the trip. We did our own cooking on the way which cut down our expense. The entire outlay for the trip down here was $20.02.

We have plain but comfortable cabins for which we pay $15.00 per month. If any of our friends wish to make the trip I will do my best to locate them here if they will let me know a few days before they arrive.

Road U. S. 41 is the best route to take from Chattanooga. A few miles north of Tampa you leave 41 and take 19 which brings you directly to Port Richey. We are staying at Stewart's cabins just at the edge of town.

I am writing this in front of the cabin looking toward the Gulf of Mexico, the tide is just changed and is now coming in.

With best wishes,

Your friend and neighbor,
Clyde Hart.

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CLASS WIDNEY AWARD

The following is taken from the Columbia City Commercial—mail of December 26, and we share in the pride of Mrs. Hattie Widney-Stone, over the success of her son, Dale. He went through the local school with honors.

County Agricultural Agent B. V. Widney, of Whitley County, was one of 60 county agents in the United States awarded the coveted "Certificate of Distinguished Service" by the National Association of County Agricultural Agents, at its annual meeting in Chicago, in December.

A committee of the national association considered the records of county agents from all over the nation in determining who should be given the certificates. Committees from the various states nominated agents in their respective commonwealths for the consideration of the national committee in their selections.

The certificates sent by the national association contain this legend: "Certificate of Distinguished Service, awarded B. V. Widney for long and efficient service in the Agricultural Industry." The certificate is signed by the national association president and secretary.

In announcing the awards the national committee stated that they were based upon "efficient service over a long period of time, activity in state and national association work, endeavor toward improvement of the profession, high standard of integrity, outstanding achievement and skill in the profession."

Mr. Widney was president of the state association a few years ago, in addition to his activity in the interests of agriculture in this county. Great strides have been made in the farming methods and crop development in Whitley County since Mr. Widney assumed the duties of county agent more than 18 years ago. Among the outstanding accomplishments in farming here during that period have been the increase in alfalfa raising, better hog production, dairy improvement, poultry importance, record keeping on farms, sheep improvement and a notable increase in the activity of 4-H work among both the boys and girls of the county. Some of the outstanding farmers of today in the county and state secured their first important interest in better farming from their activity in the 4-H clubs of this county.

LOOKING AHEAD

Perhaps the holiday season is a poor time to bring up the sore topic but right today is the time to start your planning for paying the federal income bill which you must meet face to face on March 15. You say there is time enough ahead to think of this but many persons must do a bit of planning and pinching as they go along each day in order to have the needed balance when March rolls around. Don't forget, as how could you, that the payments this year will be two to three times what your previous assessments were, this is on the same income. If you are in the $5,000-a-year class you are probably planning each month on laying away so much for the event. Putting you in the $2,000 net income bracket you are faced with saving $190 instead of the $44 you managed to get together last March. So when the Secretary of the Treasury asks us to remind you that now is the time to save, we want to help you, the treasury and ourselves by the reminder.

TWO FRONTS

The United States must fight on two fronts.

First, there is the military front. American soldiers, sailors and airmen are fighting and dying in the Pacific. They are living up to the highest traditions of this nation's military history. They must be given the finest battle equipment in the world, and they must be given it in lavish quantity. All the resources of this nation, human and material alike, must be used to that end.

Second, there is the home front. We have said, time and again, that we are fighting to defend and perpetuate freedom. That is true. But the defense of freedom at home, as on the war front, demands more than lip service. It demands straight thinking from all. It demands a people who will look squarely at the facts, no matter how unpleasant they may be. It demands the kind of national toughness that knows precisely what we are fighting for, and that will permit nothing to stand in the way of victory on the home front no less than the military front.

We will, of necessity, demand and accept a large measure of economic distatorship during the war. Whether that dictatorship ends when the war ends, will depend upon the resolution and the understanding of the American people. The future of this country and this kind of government is in the balance. The people will decide which way the scales are tipped.

The free enterprise system is at stake in this war. Upon the maintenance of free enterprise all the other freedoms—freedom of press, freedom of speech, freedom of religion—hinge and depend. Anything which weakens and emasculates free enterprise is the enemy of the nation. We cannot have an ever-expanding bureaucracy and have efficiency. We cannot allow non-defense spending to go on unchecked and expect to avoid economic collapse. We cannot punish industry and expect it to be able to do its utmost.

There is nothing dramatic about these statements. They are simply homely truths. The winning of this war—and the winning of the peace that follows—will depend on how well the American people understand them.

There has never been such unity as this country has at present. Every American stands solidly behind the President in the pledge to wage war until international gangsterism is destroyed. The spirit of the nation is one of grim, uncompromising determination. But let all remember that the home front is as vital to war and to the perpetuation of our way of life as the battlefront. There will be subversive influences on both fronts. Only an awakened, aware people can prevent their depredations.

We fight for freedom, then. And we must fight for it all the way—fight for it here in America, no less than in the broad reaches of the oceans and the lands beyond.

FRANKLIN AND LEE

Two famous Americans were born during this month, on January 17 and 19. First that of Benjamin Franklin a scientist, inventor and statesman, the second a military genius and a greatly renowned soldier. Franklin was like Lincoln in being a self-made man who reached the heights, a famous humorist and capable of exceptional tact. He took part in the drawing up of our Constitution and the issuing of the Declaration of Independence. Dut to this fact he was a decided help in ironing out matters of state. All will remember his humorous remarks from "Poor Richard's Almanac."

Then rises the figure of Robert E. Lee, the great general of the Civil War respected by the Northland and beloved by the Southern states. We have long past the bitterness that came with and followed the war and have rightly recognized the worth of those men who fought in a battle for a cause in which their hearts told them they were right. Be it South or North, there is no boundary line in the naming of real Americans, especially such as Franklin and Lee.

WE NEED THEM

Should commerce be shut off with the islands let us consider what would be the economic importance of loss of trade with the Philippines. The first three imports of importance to the United States are sugar, manila hemp and coconut products. The importance of the coconut oil is great enough that shutting it off would cause despair in the soap business since they depend upon this oil to make the lather. As a starter you might consider the amount of coconut that comes in butter substitues, confections and explosives. Almost all of the coconut oil used here comes from the Philippines. Take the case of manila hemp. Since this makes the strongest rope and since rope is used in all the important industries, we would miss the loss of 90 per cent of the manila rope coming from the Philippines. We might not be inflicted with such a hardship if we lost the 14 per cent of sugar importation which was the amount used by the United States from the islands.

CHINA LOOKS AHEAD

Time was when the Chinese soldier was despised by his neighbors because to the peace-loving Chinese soldiering was not an honorable sort of business. The war lords couldn't get many volunteers to fight in battle and consequently hired the soldiers as a purely business proposition. All of this has changed in today's China where upon the shoulders of her soldiers China is making plans to place the heavy burden of reconstruction after this war.

China's soldiers plant small vegetable gardens often quite close to their army camp with often each army unit keeping two pigs and sometimes a goat to vary the food supply. When they are transferred they pass their goods on to the neighbors. Each officer and man in the Chinese army spends at least two hours a week in what they term "labor service" which is helping build roads, dig wells make parks and playgrounds build houses, dredge rivers and work in the fields. They can also learn a trade while being in the army and under the guidance of experienced workers.

China has difficulty in caring for her wounded soldiers. In the Chinese Red Cross there are only 481 doctors to care for four million men. But they are busily establishing training schools where in three months men can obtain basic medical knowledge to treat common ailments. These schools are helping solve a real problem.

For a long number of years China has been struggling to gain a foot-hold in bringing a backward nation into new being, building a new China and with this training offered the soldiers today, having them meet the people in a friendly and co-operative basis for work and training, China is heading for a reconstruction that will surely repay her for great patience, courage and perseverence.

NEW YEAR'S PARTY

Twenty members of the Loyal Women's Class of St. Peter's Lutheran Church at Spencerville, held a New Year's party at the home of Mrs. Maud Beams, Wednesday evening, December 31.

The home was attractively decorated with a Christmas tree and other Yuletide decorations. Each member brought a gift for exchange, which was placed under the tree. The exchange was carried out in a clever New Year's manner. Small paper clocks were pinned on each gift, and each one was given a similar clock and told to match it on their gift.

Miss Lois Gerig a misisonar of Garrard, Kentucky, was present and gave a very interesting account of her work among the people of the Kentucky Mountains. She told of their home life, customs and of the beautiful scenery around Garrard. She said they celebrate Christmas by shooting fire crackers. She also showed many pictures of the homes and scenery. She was given a gift by Mrs. Beams.

New Year's Resolutions were made by each one present. These furnished a great deal of enjoyment as many odd and amusing ones were made. A questionnaire was conducted on the Bible and other historical events in the history of our country.

A carry-in supper was enjoyed at a late hour. Guests were Miss Lois Gerig and her mother, Mrs. Menno Gerig, of Jackson Township.

MATTHIAS GERIG DROWNS AT FORT WAYNE

The first ice skating tragedy of the Winter in this vicinity occurred at 4 P. M. Monday, when Matthias J. Gerig, 19, of Fort Wayne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Menno Gerig, of Route 2, Auburn, and 4½ miles west of Spencerville, plunged to his death in the icy Maumee River at Fort Wayne. The youth skated onto a bad spot of ice near the center of the Columbia Avenue bridge.

Gerig struggled for five minutes trying to extricate himself from the jagged hole as horrified witnesses looked on helplessly. He disappeared into the water as the police ambulance, a boat attached, sped up to the bridge.

The body was recovered after two hours of dragging under the bridge at zero temperature. Hooks dropped into the 20-foot channel hooked the youth's clothing and skates, and the body was brought to the surface.

A native of DeKalb County, Mr. Gerig had been employed at the General Electric Company in Fort Wayne since last June. He had been living with a sister, Eunice Gerig, in that city. The two spent their weekends with their parents west of Spencerville.

Irony was added to the tragedy when it was learned that the skates young Gerig wore at the time of his death were a Christmas present. He had been waiting for a heavy freeze so he could try them out.

A utility guard standing in the doorway of the Three Rivers filtration plant first saw the skater drop through the ice, and he immediately summoned the police. By the time the guard and others attracted by the youth's plight could reach the scene, he had disappeared.

Soon after police and firemen lowered boats to the ice, Gerig's hockey cap with earmuffs attached was observed under the ice. The ice was chopped away and the cap, for more than two hours, was the only clue to the victim's identity. After recovery of the body, identification was established from a billfold found in the frozen clothing.

The deceased young man was clothed in a heavy mackinaw coat, special under-trousers which hooked under the soles of his feet, and skating boots.

The youth was employed on the night shift at the General Electric plant and would have started work at 11 P. M. He arose late, donned his skates and left the house. His landlady became alarmed with reports that a skater had drowned in the river, and she conveyed her fears to the sister, Eunice Gerig, when she returned home from work. Identification came a short time later.

The deceased attended the Spencerville high school and was a member of the Auburn Missionary Church. He is survived by the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Menno Gerig, four sisters, Enuice of Fort Wayne, Lois Gerig, a missionary in Kentucky, and Denas and Ruth at home; and four brothers, Paul Gerig of Grand Rapids, Michigan, and Maurice, Arden and Dale, all at home.

The body was taken to the Walter funeral home in Spencerville where it remained until time for services, which were held at 2 P. M. Wednesday at the Hopewell United Brethren Church. Rev. E. F. Clauser, pastor of the Missionary Church in Auburn, officiated. Burial in White City Cemetery at Spencerville.

From the supply sergeant, of course. He got it from the Ordnance Department—and they got it from a factory. It's the finest Army rifle in the world.

But before one factory wheel could turn—for the first model or the finished job—there had to be power—and most of it is electric. Electric power helped put your Garand in your hands, Johnny.

It takes a tremendous lot of power to make all the guns, tanks, planes and ships we need—but America has a lot. Power reserves, built up in advance by business men who manage America's electric companies, have been able to meet almost every defense demand overnight.

We're glad we can help, Johnny, by doing our share. We're glad to pledge our co-operation with you and the government—to make America as strong it can remain forever free and unafraid.

ST. JOE NEWS

VOL. LVII (57 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JAN. 15, y942 NUMBER 3

LIONS CLUB GETS RED CROSS INFORMATION

At the regular meeting of the St. Joe Lions Club, held at the Akins Tea Room, Monday evening, much information in regard to Red Cross activities was given by William Husselman, who was chairman of the annual roll call for DeKalb County and who is now serving as special chairman to raise the county allotment of $10,000 of the $50,000,000 fund to take care of expenditures by the National Red Cross.

The Lions present at Monday night's meeting thoroughly enjoyed one of those fine meals for which the Akins Tea Room receives so many compliments. President Ralph Sechler had appointed a program committee and he called upon F. B. Leighty, the chairman to take charge. Lion Fred called upon his own quartet: Derwood Ridgway, Claude Laub, Willard Hurni, and Arthur Lyon, and did those boys sing.

The Lions Club is an organization of service and with that in mind, the program committee had secured the services of Mr. Husselman and he was introduced by Lion Leighty. He gave a brief history of the formation of the International Red Cross and also told of Clara Barton's persistent and patriotic efforts to establish the American Red Cross. Miss Barton was a Civil War Nurse and she was successful in 1881 in having the American Red Cross organized under government supervision. The president of the United States is the unpaid head of our national organization.

In time of peace the Red Cross has numerous activities. When disaster comes to any section of the country it is here to bring relief to the distressed and its local activities are beneficial and far reaching. The county organization only has one paid official and that is the nurse. The president and heads of the various committees serve without pay. The general public does not, we believe fully appreciate the sacrifice of time and energy that the unpaid officials of the Red Cross donates for the benefit of their fellowmen, but they look upon their labors as a matter of service and give freely of their ability and energy.

The services of the Red Cross during war time are many and varied. It sees to the staffing of hospitals at the front having thousands of trained nurses in service and for the present emergency the large blood banks in readiness to be used when needed in saving the lives of our fighting men. It acts as the connecting link between the soldier and the home folks and is ever ready to carry the soldier's case to the government for adjustment. At present the local units of the Red Cross are engaged in making 80,000,000 surgical dressings and knitting and sewing is being done in villages, towns and cities all over the country. The present war time budget calls for $4,000,000 per month in expenditures.

The present $10,000 which DeKalb County is raising will be divided on an 85—15 basis. The national organization will get 85 per cent and the county unit will get 15 per cent, which will be used to buy materials and carry on local services.

In the present drive for funds St. Joe's allotment is $200 and Mr. Wilbern is the chairman. The actual fund raising in our town will start this week. Spencer and Concord townships have $120 apiece to raise and reports indicate the latter will more than meet their quota. Mrs. Walter DePew is the drive chairman for Spencer and Ernest Johnson heads Concord Township. Horace Meek is the chairman of Newville Township and $66.51 has already been subscribed in that unit. Eugene Webster is chairman of Stafford Township, where the work is proceeding nicely.

Mr. Husselman was thanked for the information he brought and we all feel we now have a much better understanding of the workings of this, the world's greatest service organization. To you who have not yet been solicited in this drive, please bear in mind that the person who calls for your contribution does not particularly relish his job, but he is giving his time and energy in this work of humanity.

Mr. Husselman made it clear that he wants each family in the county given the opportunity to contribute to this $50,000,000 fund and if the solicitor misses you, make inquiry and hunt him up and make your contribution.

Give to the Red Cross.

The Lions zone meeting will be held at St. Joe, Jan. 26, when Auburn, Garrett, Avilla and Wolcottville will have representatives in attendance.

MOTOR VEHICLE "USE" TAX INFORMATION

Will H. Smith, Collector of Internal Revenue issued a statement which is of interest to the more than thirty million owners of motor vehicles. Attention was called to a provision of the Revenue Act of 1941 which imposes a "use" tax upon motor vehicles, which tax becomes effective February 1, 1942. It was explained that the term "motor vehicle" means all motor vehicles of the kind chiefly used for highway transportation, including automobiles, trucks and motorcycles, and that the term "use" means use on the public highways.

Internal revenue stamps have been provided to evidence the payment of this tax and the stamps are gummed on the back so that they may be affixed to the motor vehicles. The first stamp to be purchased by owners of motor vehicles will cover the period from February 1 to June 30, 1942, and will cost the purchaser only $2.09 each because of the fact that only a fractional part of the fiscal year is involved. However, during the month of June, 1942, owners of motor vehicles must purchase stamps valued at $5 to evidence the payment of the tax for the entire fiscal year beginning July 1, 1942, and ending June 30, 1943. Stamps of appropriate denominations have been provided to evidence the payment of the "use" tax on vehicles purchased and first put into use on the highways during months subsequent to February, 1942.

It was stated that the "use" tax affects more individuals than all other classes of Federal taxes combined. The payment of this tax will give to each motor vehicle owner a consciousness that he is contributing to the defense of his country in a time of emergency. The display of these stamps on automobiles, trucks etc. will be evidence that the owners have met their tax obligations to the Federal Government.

The use tax stamps will be on sale at all post offices and all offices of collectors of Internal Revenue on or about January 26, 1942. Every owner of a motor vehicle which is used upon the highways should call at his local post offie or at the office of the Internal Revenue Collector and secure a $2.09 "use" tax stamp and affix it to his vehicle. The various post offices will sell stamps over the counter for cash only and no mail order business with respect thereto will be conducted by the post offices. Collectors of Internal Revenue are authorized to accept cash, post office money orders and certified checks in payment of the use tax stamps. However, as revenue stamps have an intrinsic value, uncertified checks will not be acceptable in payment therefor.

It was pointed out that the law provides severe penalties in the case of any person liable for the use tax who fails to purchase a stamp and affix it to his vehicle. The stamp could be affixed to the instrument panel of the vehicle, to the back of the rear vision mirror, or in the event local regulations would not be violated, the stamp might be affixed to a suitable place on the wind shield or to the rear or side window, or to such other part of the vehicle where it would be conspicuous and would not become mutilated or detached.

INTERESTING LETTER FURNISHED NEWS READERS EACH WEEK CONCERNING LIFE IN SOUTH

By CLYDE E. HART

Port Richey, Fla.
1-5-'42.

To my Indiana Friends:

We have been in the state kown for flowers and sunshine for ten days. During the past week we have had five inches of rainfall. One peculiar thing about the rainfall here is that it comes down in bucketfulls then the sun comes out in all its glory, and another thing it never gets muddy, an hour after the rain stops the earth is as dry as before.

Our camp is situated near the mouth of the Cotee River which empties into the Gulf of Mexico. There are people here from Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin. Of course the people change from day to day but most of them will be here most of the season.

We have a camp fire every night and from thirty to forty gather about it each giving the experiences of the day. Last Friday night the west coast of Florida had an experimental blackout, it surely was a success. The planes flew over an area of twelve counties covering several hundred square miles and reported but two lights, one in St. Petersburg and one in a settlement in the sticks which is far removed from real civilization.

We attended Sunday School and church service yesterday forenoon at a little Community Church in Port Richey. The service was very good. Last evening we went to the Baptist Church, a good crowd was in attendance. The preacher was a young man, his sermon was fine and inspiring.

Fishing for the amateur with hook and line has not been good but the commercial fishermen bring them in by the ton. One boat brought in seven thousand pounds last Saturday morning.

With best wishes to my friends and wishing you a Happy New Year.

I remain, Your Friend,
Clyde Hart.

GETTING DOWN TO SCRATCH

Sacrificing is finding its way into homes in St. Joe and we are slowly losing the frosting on our cakes, you might say. With smart men's fashion experts finding a ready market for long underwear, our rubber shortage affecting teething rings for babies, mamma without a girdle, papa without a golf ball, the children with wet feet because of no galoshes, all of us losing the soft cushions that have made our life cream on berries, we are knowing that we don't like this war business a little bit! Say we do lose out football and tennis games, we might substitute archery in the style of the pioneers. We can do without the icing as long as we can have the cake. But all signs point to our having to forego cake and then we will take our meal dessertless and consequently keep our figures. Bear in mind that as symbolical as these new 'longies' that are covering the male form, woolly and stream-lined they aren't scratchy. So typical of the rest of what we are in for before this war is over—not scratchy but not smart!

ABOUT BLACKOUTS

They have found out that during blackouts, you can see more by not looking directly at the objects you wish to see. The idea is to sort of look out of the corner of your eye, and this isn't really the corner but a certain circular zone outside the center of the eye. Due to our increasing bright lights Americans have not developed those certain nerve centers which aid in seeing in the dark. There is a suggestion made by a psychologist that we can train ourselves to have blackout eyes by practicing at home at night with the luminous buttons sold as markers for electric switches. When you have a moonless night he suggests that you practice looking at gaunt trees, following their trunks and branches and thru accustoming your eyes to the darkness you might bring the tree into more detail.

A BOND OF UNITY.—The handclasp of sincerity and partnership is used by artist John C. Atherton, of Bridgefield, Conn., to depict the close cooperation of the American people and their Government in financing the Defense Program through the sale of Defense Savings Bonds and Stamps. This poster was awarded first prize at the Museum of Modern Art exhibit in New York out of a large number of submitted drawings, and is being used on posters by business firms in advertising, and in numerous other forms to promote the sale of Defense Bonds and Stamps.

RESTRICTED NEWS

It was to be expected that there would be a soft pedal put on the publishing of news, that it would not remain unhampered and uncensored by the government during time of active warfare. This doesn't make a newspaperman happy but he realizes the necessity for a reasonable amount of government restraint. The public says give us the news full and free — the enemy learns what is going on and why "the easy way." If we will but regard censorship in wartime as a means of protecting the lives of our men and the safety of our military equipment, then not to censor the spilling of military information through the pages of the press is actually criminal. This field, that of printing the news, is not without its unwise and careless editors, and to trust them as a whole with the issuing of news at their own discretion and using their own judgment as their yardstick might permit the safety of our nation and its people to be gravely endangered.

As a News subscriber mentions, we hope that the censorship will work with the same satisfaction here as it has in Great Britain. We wish to give the people the necessary news but not conflict with their liberties, for after all, that is one of the reasons for which we fight!

Censorship must not stop constructive criticism of the government, the issuing of social, political, economic and diplomatic services. To keep a restraining hand but not place a blot on the power in the American's freedom of his press.

PET PEEVES

In Alabama in 1939 a group of young men formed the town's Junior Chamber of Commerce, decided to name January as their Pet Peeve or Gripe month. At the first glance this may not seem as valuable as if you think the proposition over carefully. Each one of us in St. Joe has a pet peeve and usually find time to bring it up sometime during each day. We work on it, hash it over by annoying friends, relatives and strangers until the pet peeve becomes our personal trade mark. Perhaps we might use the idea of observing January as official gripe month, dwelling earnestly for 31 days on pet peeves in order to rid our systems of them for the other eleven months. If we could get along with each other for this month, as far as bodily injury to each other is concerned, what a treat for the rest of the calendar. So it's not such a bad idea at all, boys!

SHIFT TO THRIFT

It isn't only from January 17-23 that National Thrift Week is observed in St. Joe. It goes on for fifty-two weeks out of every year in most St. Joe homes. Thrift is stressed from the pulpit, typed on the page, discussed in the family group and considered in every man's budget. There are those who have never felt need of it while others who are in the majority, have never known anything else. Living just for today has been the attitude of many spenders down through the ears. Such a working principal is apt to run the ship on the rocks if one is not careful. Back in the days when pioneering was in order, the making of soap and candles, baking of bread and weaving of wool was routine work, the idea of thrift wasn't discussed pro and con for it was considered a part of the very air even the hardiest of men breathed. Our present generation have not the wolves, the savage Indians, the elements to fight with skill, but they are still defending against the enemy. They have had their climbing made rather easy for them in these past few years, had helping hands to steer the course with them. The engineers who have gone before have made the roads easier. But still the essence of thrift lies within most men, how easy has been his day.

There is evidence of trouble ahead for those who have never practiced thrift. It is going to be necessary to learn the lesson if one does not already know it and adhere to it on curves, coasting, climbing, upgrade, passing and standing till. The safest way to avoid tripping our gears is to use smoothness in our drive. Keep the hands steady on the wheel to make the going easier and safer. Thrift is answered by Longfellow: "Must I be carried to the skies on flowery beds of ease?"

NEWS FROM COUNTY AGENT

Potato Growers To Have Special Session

A special session has been arranged for DeKalb County Potato Growers to be held in connection with the Muck Crops and Soil Fertility School to be held in Waterloo Indiana January 20th. This school starts at 10:00 in the morning, at which time, George Enfield, Purdue Soil Specialist will conduct a soil testing clinic. Farmers are urged to bring in soil samples at this time, so that Mr. Enfield may get them test-

JANUARY

Since most of our Muck Crop Farmers also have high ground, soil fertility problems of both muck and high ground will be discussed.

The problems and possibilities of potato marketing quotas will be discussed at 10:30 A. M. This discussion will be lead by Glenn Heffley who attended a regional meeting on this subject and will be assisted by the County Agent, C. E. Baker and Brooks Trenary. Mr. Heffley stated that Potato Growers in DeKalb County should be vitally interested in this subject and should come and participate in this discussion.

At 11:00 A M. Roscoe Fraser, the Purdue Muck Crop Specialist will be on the program for "What's New in Muck."

At 1:00 P. M. George Enfield will discuss "Soil Repairs and Fertility Maintenance Practices."

At 2:00 P. M. Roscoe Fraser will show Muck Movies, featuring "Black Gold." Many of the outstanding Muck Crops produced this past year will be shown photographed in color. Growers will not want to miss this opportunity to see and hear the practices which produced the outstanding yields of Muck Crops in 1941.

DEKALB COUNTY FARMERS HONORED

A group of DeKalb County farmers will be honored for their outstanding accomplishments next Monday evening, January 19th at the Farmer's Achievement Banquet held at Butler. This Achievement banquet is an annual affair, at which time the farmers are awarded medals for their accomplishments in certain extension projects sponsored by Purdue University and the County Agent's Office.

In the 5-Acre Corn Club, 29 medals will be awarded. Bob Stomm, Fairfield Township had the highest yield on Muck Soil, his yield being 135.4 bushels per acre. Oscar Deetz. Fairfield Township was second high with 133.1 bushels. His corn was also grown on muck soil. Albert Yoder, his being 123.2 bushels per acre. Other medal winners in the 5-Acre Corn Club are as follows: Gold Medals — Ora Crooks, Orlo Deetz, Floyd Dixon, Russel Housel, Fred Korff, Virgil Korff, Robert Kuckuck, Verr McClish, Walter Richter, Harold A. Smith, Earl Stimman, Ralph Stomm, Albert Troyinger, Jerry Varner and Robert Wise. Silver Medals—M. L. Ault, Ora Brand, William Egbert, Max Heffley, Harold Wise and A. J. Witt. Bronze Medals —D. Carpenter, Keith Culler, B. J. Gorrell and Glenn Heffley.

In the 1000 bushel onion club, Henry Emme of Wilmington Township, had the highest yield, his yield being 157 bushels per acre of Sweet Spanish onions. Jerry Varner, of Troy Township had a yield of 1550 bushels of Sweet Spanish onions. Both of these men received gold medals, as also will Jake Varner of Wilmington Township, Abe and Morris Ruderman, of Auburn, and Henry Murray, of Garrett, Ind.

In the 400 bushel Potato Club, Jerry Varner will also receive a Gold Medal for having produced 504 bushels of U. S. No. 1 potatoes on one acre. Glenn Heffley is also to receive a medal in this club.

Medals are to be awarded for those completing the Gold Medal Colt project. In this project it is necessary for the nominated colt to make a gain of at least 650 pounds in one year. The colts making this gain are shown at the Fall Fair. Those receiving medals in this club are as follows: Floyd Dixon, Harold Wise & Son, Dale Davis, James Rugman and Jesse Hetrick & Sons.

Three members of the Dairy Herd Improvement Association will receive medals at Purdue on Thursday night of this week but they will also be honored at the County Achievement Banquet on Monday night. These men are Roy King, Smithfield Township; Milo Provines, Stafford Township and Dr. F. A. Hall of Richland Township.

Entertainment features are being furnished by the Butler business men and a good time has been assured. Roscoe Fraser, of Purdue University, will be present to present the awards.

National and International Problems Inseperable From Local Welfare Problems.

It is not possible at this time to detail all the events and circumstances which led to Japan's victories in the Pacific. But the broad outlines are clear. We underestimated the extent and the striking power of the Japanese air and naval forces. We were over-confident. We did not turn the Philippines and the lesser islands into the kind of bastions which could have repelled a major attack. Further, we, like the rest of the democracies, were lethargic—we wishfully disregarded the writing on the wall. According to Walter Lippman, Japan must have spent at least eighteen months preparing for an attack on so vast a scale. But few Americans believed war was actually coming in the Pacific.

Bright spot in the Philippine war has been the superb fighting spirit shown by the American and Filipino troops commanded by General MacArthur, who seems to have fully lived up to his reputation as the ablest American general officer. MacArthur's forces were tremendously outnumbered. Their equipment was inferior to that of the Japanese. After the early days of fighting, they had no air power to speak of. Yet they made the enemy pay a tremendous toll in men and material for every inch of ground taken and, at this writing, they have entrenched themselves on Luzon island north of lost Manila and on the great fortress of Corregidor in Manila Bay, and are continuing the fight.

Many have wondered why MacArthur was not given substantial U. S. naval aid. In the opinion of strategists, it would have been suicidal for the Navy to have sent major fleet forces in an attempt to save Manila. Japan has big naval bases in Formosa and on the mandated islands, some of which are well under a thousand miles from Luzon. Our forces' nearest major base is many thousand miles away from the scene of action, at Pearl Harbor. Furthermore, while Luzon is important, it is not vital. What the Allied Pacific powers must attempt to save at all costs is Singapore, which is the key to the entire Far East, including the rich Dutch East Indies. All possible Allied strength must be conserved for the decisive land, sea and air battle which will soon take place along the Malayan peninsula. The commanders of great armies and navies must take the long view, and look to the winning of the war, not the scattered, costly victories which might imperil the major campaign.

It is often said that the prime objective of this war is the destruction of the Nazis—that, once that is done, Japan and Hitler's other allies can be taken care of in their turn. The news which comes out of Russia is immensely encouraging to the Allied powers. The German rout continues, and the destruction of German divisions and German equipment is on an almost incredible scale. The Russian command now says that it means to press forward until Germany itself is turned into a battlefield. And in Libya, the British have won a victory which may prove of immense importance to the eventual winning of the war.

This country is now, for the first time, realizing what modern war means. The order freezing sales of new motor cars and prohibiting production of new cars after January, indicates the way the wind blows. It may be expected that our lives will be revolutionized with astonishing speed. There will be no luxuries at all, and many seeming necessities will be foregone or produced in bare minimum quantities. At this moment, we are spending about 25 per cent of our national income for war purposes. By the end of the year we will, if the plans go through, be spending as much as 50 per cent. What that will mean to the civilian standard of living is easily seen.

Yet there is no grumbling. Right-wingers and left-wingers, labor leaders and big industrialists, Democrats and Republicans alike, agree that an all-out effort, with all the privations entailed, must be made. There is much critism of Administration methods, but no criticism of Administration long-pull objectives. It is significant that in the civil government, as in the armed forces, changes are being made in executive personnel, designed to weed out the unfit and replace them with men who will get results.

Time is the great factor now—time to produce the instruments of war, and to train the necessary troops. Japan got the jump on us, as Germany did on Russia and Britain in the early days of conflict, because she had spent years preparing for war while we had done relatively little. We have the resources to make up for this, if only we make full use of the time we have left before the decisive stage of the war is reached.

The Allied agreement, under which the United States, Great Britain, Russia, China and more than a score of other nations pledged themselves to make war until complete victory is achieved, and to conclude no separate peace, is vitally important. It is the advance answer of the United States to any peace offers Hitler and his partners may have in mind—peace offers that will undoubtedly be based on the premise that the Axis has virtually won the war, and that there is no use in any nation bucking the inevitable.

With the government cutting down on pleasure riding due to the tire shortage, there will be lots of folks who will finally realize the truth in there's no place like home.

GIVE IMPORTANT ADVICE TO CAR OWNERS

Every car owner must look to the protection of his car and tires from theft, blowouts and excessive wear under the civilian restrictions of cars and tires in effect. This came as a warning from Superintendent Don F. Stiver of the state police, who pointed out that many police problems will arise from these sources if citizens are not careful.

State police have been ordered to be on the alert for car strippers and for bootleggers in new tires. Superintendent Stiver urged every car owner who could possibly do so to place his car in a garage each night inasmuch as the rising price, even in used tires, would make stripping activities worth while. In any event he said cars should be parked in areas that are as well lighted as possible, and frequently traveled and patrolled by the police.

Every owner is requested to copy down the serial numbers appearing on the side of each tire. These serial numbers will positively identify any stolen tires that may be recovered. Tire thieves usually buff off his number before offering the tire for sale but a newly developed chemical formula will now reveal this number even after it has been removed, to permit a positive identification of the tire.

Tires should be properly inflated to prevent excessive wear, checked periodically for flaws, and used at moderate speeds to prevent wear, blowouts and accidents.

Car doors should be locked and windows locked every time the motorist leaves the car parked. With cars and tires alike, irreplaceable with new equipment, Superintendent Stiver believes that his troopers will be kept busy chasing thieves and servicing accidents, if motorists do not observe the foregoing precautions.

WALTER WHITEHURST POST No. 283

Meeting Night: Second & Fourth Tuesday of the Month.

Walter Whitehurst Post of the American Legion assisted by the Auxiliary, prepared and sent out 28 Christmas packages to young men from this vicinity who are serving in the armed forces of the United States.

A goodly number of cards and letters have been received from the boys expressing their appreciation of the gifts, also a number of the boys home on leave have expressed their appreciation too. Owing to changing locations some of the packages may not reach the one to whom they were ent however the government is doing its best to see that final delivery is made; an example, one package sent to Tennessee was delivered in California.

All replies received from the soldiers indicate a high regard for the service and their complete satisfaction with their work.

The Legion is making plans for their annual Americanism program to be held in connection with the school during the month of February. This program has a double importance this year, owing to our entry into the war.

Other organizations will be asked to assist with the program. More will be said concerning the program at a later date.

Some ungrateful people destroyed about thirty of the light bulbs on the Christmas tree during the holiday season. We are pleased to say however, that from information obtained the ones who did this cheap, heathenish trick were not St. Joe residents nor were they drunk or mere children.

TO THE DEKALB COUNTY BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS

Report of the DeKalb County Highway Department for 1941.

Pursuant to Sec. 4, Chap. 27, Acts of 1933 concerning the duties of Highway Supervisor, I herewith submit the report of the Department activities during the year of 1941.

The DeKalb County Road System consists of 630 miles of gravel and 110 1-2 miles of bituminous surface making a total of 740 1-2 miles maintained.

During the past year we purchased and placed upon the highways 35,000 cubic yards of gravel from 40 pits in this County.

We used 65,000 gallons of motor fuel (gasoline, kerosine and diesel fuel.) Our trucks traveled a total of 275,000 miles.

31 men were employed full time and some extra labor was hired.

We painted, re-painted and erected 400 road signs. Approximately 1000 feet of corrugated metal pipe from 6 to 36 inches was installed for road drainage 10,000 feet of farm drain tile were purchased and installed.

We graded, drained and paved with asphalt 10 1-2 miles in Troy, Stafford Union and Grant Townships.

More than a car-load of Calcium Chloride was used as a dust preventative in all the congested areas and in front of all churches and cemeteries in the County.

More than 60 miles of gravel roads were re-surfaced with graded and screened gravel.

In the construction and re-construction of roads, approximately 36,000 cubic yards of dirt were moved.

During the past year we eliminated several blind corners by grading down high banks and removing obstructions

Considerable work has been done during the past year on widening narrow grades and as fast as is possible we are eliminating those danger spots. At nine different places in the County, we have been able to take down more than 300 Guard Posts and Cable.

The repair of 16 Bridges consisted of concrete and steel work and new flooring on several structures. The large bridge across Cedar Creek, north of Waterloo was completely re-built and also the Morning Star Bridge.

The maintenance of DeKalb County Highways required the daily operation of 14 trucks, all of which belong o the DeKalb County Highway Department. No extra trucks were hired during the year.

The entire mileage was mowed twice and some of the more weedy portions were mowed three times. In doing this mowing, our equipment traveled approximately 4,000 miles, or to bring to your attention the scope of this one item of work, is equivalent to mowing one swath from Auburn to Dallas Texas, and return.

We own and operate 25 units of Motorized Equipment, consisting of: Trucks, Tractors, Motor Graders, Gravel Loader, and Mowers.

All of our equipment has been maintained, kept in repair, and painted in our own Garage by regular employees. and is now in excellent condition. At the present time, we have a force of men out cutting brush and cleaning up the Highways.

During the past year we constantly patroled our Bituminous Roads, and no holes were allowed to develope. and during last summer 12 miles of old Asphalt and Tar were re-surfaced with Rapid Curing Asphalt and graded gravel.

Our gravel road system in this County goes into the winter in fine condition and the writer, having traveled considerably about the State, fully believes, it to be the most completely maintained County System in the State of Indiana.

New Equipment purchased this year includes: 1,—1941 G. M. C. 2-ton Truck, 1 Haiss Gravel Loader, 1 Black Sloper, 2 I. O. C. 22x36 Tractors, 1 Hwy. Mower, motor driven, 1 V Type Snow Plow, 2 Blade Type snow plows

Below is a complete financial statement of 1941, by our Bookkeeper. All our known obligations are paid except current expenses from the end of our fiscal year, Dec. 22, 1941, to the present time.

Receipts: On hand January 1, 1941 $6,937.70; received from gas tax, $111,577.87; total receipts, $118,515.57.

Disbursements; Paid out for labor during 1941, $38,501.09; paid out for operating expenses, $29,983.66; paid for material, gravel, tile, pipe, lumber, etc., $30,877.12; paid to current charges, equipment, re-construction, $14,346.94; total paid out, $112,708.81.

Balance carried over to 1942 $5,806.76.

Respectively submitted,
J. C. Provines, Bookkeeper

WAYNE T. VAN AUKEN,
Supervisor DeKalb County Highway Department.

YOUR FEDERAL INCOME TAX

(Article No. One)

Forms for filing returns of income for 1941 have been sent to persons who filed returns last year. Failure to receive a form, however, does not relieve a taxpayer of his obligation to file his return and pay the tax on time—on or before March 16 if the return is made on the calendar-year basis as is the case with most individuals.

Forms may be obtained upon request, written or personal, from the offices of collectors and from deputy collectors of internal revenue in the larger cities and towns.

A person should file his return on Form 1040, unless his gross income for 1941 does not exceed $3,000 and consists wholly of salary, wages, or other compensation for personal services, dividends, interest, rent, annuities, or royalties, in which event he may elect to file it on Form 1040A, a simplified form on which the tax may be readily ascertained by reference to a table contained in the form.

The return must be filed with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer has his legal residence or principal place of business on or before midnight of March 16, 1942. The tax may be paid in full at the time of filing the return or in four equal installments, due on or before March 16, June 15, September 15, and December 15.

In making out your income tax return read carefully the instructions that accompany the form. If you need more information, it may be obtained at the office of the collector of internal revenues, deputy collector, or an internal revenue agent in charge.

Remember that single persons or married persons not living with husband or wife, who earn as much as $14.43 a week for the 52 weeks of the year, and married persons living together who have aggregate earnings of as much as $28.85 a week for the year, are required to file returns.

ST. JOE NEWS

VOL. LVII (57 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JAN. 22, 1942 NUMBER 4

THIS WEEK IN DEFENSE

Ed. Note:—A condensed resume of the progress of the governmental affairs. Read this interesting bit of first hand information and be enlightened.

The President established a War Production Board headed by Donald M. Nelson, former mail-order firm executive and more recently Executive Director of SPAB and Priorities Director. The President directed Mr. Nelson to 'exercise general direction over the war procurement and production program,' to supervise the OPM and issue production and procurement directives where necessary to all other Government agencies. The President said Mr. Nelson's decisions shall be final. Vice President Wallace and other members of the SPAB, now abolished, were made members of the War Production Board.

In letters to OPM Directors Knudsen and Hillman and other production officials, Mr. Nelson said "we must enlarge all our previous activities....all our facilities....must produce 24 hours a day, 168 hours a week." OPM Director Hillman, speaking in Washington, said the nation's force of workers in war industries must be doubled or tripled, more women must be trained and brought into the labor force to take the place of men going into the armed services. He asked employers not to bar aliens in war industries except in plants turning out secret weapons.

Drector Odlum of the OPM Contract Distribution Division said a plan has been prepared to set aside one percent of all available materials to assist small manufacturers in keeping their plants going until they can be converted to war use. He said the nation's entire production facilities—all of those "hidden away in thousands of cities and towns and villages"—must join in the total war effort. He asked all mayors to have every manufacturer in their cities register at the nearest OPM Contract Distribution Division field office and to "go after war contracts with every ounce of ingenuity and energy they possess."

The War Front

The Navy Department reported the sinking of five enemy vessels in Far Eastern waters—three transports and two large cargo ships. The announcement brought to 25 the total of Japanese vessels reported definitely sunk by the Navy and Marine Corps in the Pacific. The Navy also announced two merchant vessels were attacked by Axis submarines off Long Island. Throughout the week Gen. MacArthur reported heavy land and air fighting in the Philippines but said American and Philippine troops were putting up effective resistance and U. S. losses were low.

Army

War Secretary Stimson announced the Army will be increased from the present total of 1,700,000 men to 3,600,000 men this year. Combat air units and armored units will be doubled; 32 motorized divisions will be added, and at least 50 more military police units for guarding production facilites will be created. Instead of the originally scheduled 10,000, more than 90,000 privates will be selected to attend officer-training schools. All training centers and posts will be enlarged and five temporary tent camps will be set up. To make 2,000,000 more men eligible, the Army will lower age limits for aviation cadets from 20 to 18 years, make married men eligible, and change eductional qualifications by eliminating college credit requirements.

Selective Service Director Hershey said the Army increase could be accomplished without calling up men with dependents He said there are now 1,000,000 men in Class 1-A but not yet called, and 900,000 more men can be obtained by reclassification of other men and from those men who will register February 16. He said deferment cases would be re-examined but deferments will continue to be given where possible to avoid undue disruption of family life. He said married men with one or more children probably will not be called until an Army of 7,000,000 to 8,000,000 has been built. He estimated 10,000,000 is the top number of men the U. S could mobilize for service even with lowered physical standards.

Labor Disputes

The President abolished the National Defense Mediation Board and established a National War Labor Board with NDMB Chairman Davis as Chairman. Four commissioners will represent the public, four will represent employees and four, industry. The new Board has wider authority than the old Board and can arbitrate or mediate disputes as it sees fit except that it cannot disregard existing labor legislation.

The Maritime War Emergency Board established war bonuses for sailors on merchant ships.

Autos

The OPA announced auto rationing would begin February 2 in the same manner as tire rationing. Of the 202,000 cars in the industry quota for January, about 150,000 cars will be stored with dealers who promise not to sell without permission—probably not to be granted before January, 1943—and then only at OPA-established prices.

OPA issued a schedule of prices for "retreadable" tire carcasses and "retreads" and forecast a ceiling over all used tires "in the very near future." Federal Loan Administrator Jones announced plans to increase synthetic rubber production capacity to 400,000 tons by pooling of resources and skills of the rubber and oil industries. If priorities can be obtained on steel needed to erect plants, OPA Administrator Henderson said tire rationing would probably not be affected because of increasing military needs for rubber.

Censorship

Censorship Director Price, after consultation with newspaper, magazine and periodical editors, announced a code of conduct which publications were asked to follow in handling information in order to prevent information of a military nature reaching the enemy. Prohibited, unless officially released, are most details of military, naval or industrial establishments, casualty lists, damages to war facilities, movements of troops and ships, weather reports except of certain types, and movements of the President or of official military or diplomatic missions.

Agriculture

Agriculture Secretary Wickard said goals have been revised to call for the greatest agricultural production in U. S. history, with particular emphasis on the production of oil-bearing crops such as peanuts and soybeans. The corn goal was stepped up by five million acres in order that there be feed supplies to continue expansion of meat, dairy and poultry production. Dry edible bean and dry pea production increases were called for. An additional five million bushels of rice was asked and provision made for an increase over 1941 of more than 18 million cases of canned fruits and vegetables.

Civilian Defense

The OCD announced 3,516,600 volunteers have enrolled in the various civilian defense services, including 1,423,755 assigned to training or duty in the protective services. The Office also announced a Victory Garden Program under which all families in any community can jointly till communit gardens, use the produce themselves and give the surplus to schools and institutions.

Surgeon General Parran told the U. S. Conference of Mayors in Washington "the enemy has planned and in my opinion will use bacteriological warfare whenever possible." He asked the mayors to begin at once to take every possible precaution.

Conservation

The OPM Bureau of Industrial Conservation opened a program to mobilize the nation's 1,700,000 retail tores in a continuous drive to salvage materials — wastepaper, scrap metal, old rags, rubber—needed to produce weapons for the fighting forces Signers will display window emblems signifying their part in the 'Salvage for Victory" program. The hopping public was asked to help conserve tires, trucks, and paper by carrying home bundles instead of delivery service. Consumers of natural as in nine states, mostly in the Mid llewest were asked to cut consumption s much as possible.

HOME BUREAU

The January meeting of the Concord Twp. Home Bureau was held at the home of Mrs. Allen Haller east of St. Joe.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Mary Krise, and all joined in singing the song of the month, Home Sweet Howe, led by Mrs. Haller. Several matters of business were taken care of and a report of the presidents' meeting held in Auburn, Jan. 3 was given by Mrs. Krise.

Twenty members responded to roll call by naming state flower. Installation of officers was conducted by the retiring officers. New officers include: president, Mrs. Mary Krise; vice president, Mrs. Millie Shull; secretary, Mrs. Laura Washler; treasurer, Mrs. Katie Storer. The club was entertained with the following numbers:

A humorous essay on flowers was read by Mrs. Clara Foltz in which she gave a list of desirable early and late bloomers. Mrs. Huldah Reasoner read an article on "A Good Club Member" which pointed out the characteristics of same. also things to avoid doing if you aspire to be a good club member. Mrs. Millie Shull gave a costume reading, in which she very cleverly acted the part of the critical "auntie" attending the first dinner given by the bride for her "in-laws."

The hostess assisted by her committee, Mrs. Laura Washler, Mrs. Mary Washler and Mrs. Myrtle Pugsley served hot home made buttered rolls, jarvier salad in lettuce cups, cake and coffee.

The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Nevada Wyatt.

Winter in Florida

INTERESTING LETTER FURNISHED NEWS READERS EACH WEEK CONCERNING LIFE IN SOUTH

By CLYDE E. HART

Port Richey, Fla.
1-10-'42.

To my Friends:

It is Saturday night.. We have been here two weeks. The cold spell you experienced last Monday morning arrived here this morning but of course not in the same intensity. The thermometer registers about 40 today and will probably go near the freezing point by morning.

We attended the Greek Catholic Church celebration of Epiphany at Tarpon Springs on Tuesday, January 6. You probably wonder what the word Epiphany means. It is a celebration commemorating the Baptism of Jesus in the Jordon River. The forenoon is spent in chanting hymns, after dinner a procession of Priests and high dignitaries march to the Bayou of the Ancote River where a golden cross is tossed into the river. A large number of Greek boys and young men dive from boats to find the cross. It is a great honor, which is coveted by the Greek boys to be lucky enough to find it. This time it was recovered by a Greek groceryman's son from Tarpon Springs. This celebration has been held annually for thirty-seven years and only once has the cross been lost and never recovered. Of course, it is very valuable, weighing perhaps three or four pounds. Several thousand witnessed the ceremony.

Tarpon Springs is a quaint city inhabited by Greeks whose occupation is sponge fishing. his work is very profitable. They go out in the gulf four times a year and stay each time until their boat is loaded. Sometimes their stay lasts three months.

Several persons have asked What do you do while you are in Florida?

I usually go down to the Gulf, early in the morning, when the tide is low and watch the birds. Pelicans, herons, cranes and gulls come in to feed on the refuse brought in by the tide. During the forenoon we fish, play checkers,, and pitch horse shoes.

Afternoons are spent around the camp talking to the new comers. You have many interesting experiences. The evenings are spent around the camp fire. Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton from Oregon who have traveled extensively over the world, show moving pictures of places they have visited. Once each week we have a weiner roast. We are not traveling about much because we must conserve our tires and gasoline.

With best wishes to you all,
I remain, Your Friend,
Clyde Hart.

THE V. DRIVE

V is for Victory,
Vigor and Vim.
Hitler's aware it is
Volleyed at him.

V is for Valor,
V's for the Vote.
Well worth preserving
And keeping afloat.

V is for Voltage
Behind every clout;
V is for Vermin
We've got to drive out.

V is for Vortex
And all of us know
Into it war lords
Will presently go.

V is for "Vittles"
By sea and by air,
V's for Velocity
Speeding 'em there.

V's for Vertical
That's where we'll be Long after Adolf is Flat as cold tea.

V means Vitality
V stands for Vow,
V is for Victory
Coming—and how!

V is for Vitamins
Needed in war.
We have a lot and can Find a lot more.

V stands for Verdun
And Viny Ridge, too.
That it's for Vichy
Is awful but true.

So plaster the highways
For I have a hunch
V's will be vital in Planting that "Punch."

RUTHERFORD—FISHER

In a double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Earl Clayton in the Methodist parsonage at Ray, Ind., at 6:30 o'clock Saturday evening, Miss Lois F. Rutherford eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Rutherford, of Auburn, became the bride of Lynn C. Fisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Bert Fisher, of Spencerville.

The bride chose an aqua blue crepe dress, with a side draping, ornamented with gold v's. Her corsage was of rumdrum lilies and white narcissus.

Miss Nona Rose Rutherford attended her sister. Her dress was of pastel pink wool with which she wore a double strand of pearls, a gift of the bride. Her corsage was of white crysanthemums and yellow roses.

Mrs. Fisher graduated from the Spencerville high school with the class of 1938 and is now secretary-treasurer of the Agricultural Conservation Association in the court house in Auburn.

Mr. Fisher graduated in 1932 from the Spencerville high school. He was recently given honorable medical discharge from Camp Croft, South Carolina.

Later Saturday evening the couple left for Chicago on their wedding trip. For traveling the bride wore a blue and gold plaid suit, gold colored hat and black accessories.

Upon their return the newly married couple will be at home in Spencerville.

Both the young people are well known about Coburntown and Spencerville. The Rutherford family lived on the O. K. Shull farm east of St. Joe and later moved near Spencerville, where the bride completed her high school education. They have the best wishes of their many friends.

Miss Virginia Goldsmith, daughter of Mrs. Stella Goldsmith, of Auburn, formerly of Spencerville, became the bride Sunday afternoon, Jan. 11, of Russell E. Praul, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Praul, of Butler. The single-ring ceremony was performed at 12:30 P. M. by Rev. Paul Schaefer at the parsonage of the Trinity Lutheran Church in Hammond.

The only attendant was Miss Virginia Corson of Downers Grove Ill., niece of Mr. Praul. The bride wore a brown silk street dress trimmed in velvet, and brown accessories, and her shoulder corsage was of pink carnations. Her attendant also wore brown and a corsage of white carnations.

Following the wedding, the couple spent a couple days at the home of Mr. Praul's sister, Mrs. C. E. Corson of Downers Grove.

Mrs. Praul is employed in the office of the Farm Bureau Hatchery. She was graduated from Spencerville high school in 1930. Mr. Praul was graduated from Butler high school in 1927. He served three years in the United States army at Camp McCoy, Wis., receiving his discharge papers in 1932. Mr. and Mrs. Praul will reside temporarily with his parents.

Blue Plate Special . . .

UNCLE SAM's paratroopers, going "downstairs" on business, carry three square meals in one small pocket of their uniforms.

It's very special food—powdered, concentrated—calories carefully counted—but complete from soup to coffee. It gives husky men the reserve power to keep going when other supplies are cut off.

Reserve power is just as vital in industrial as in military emergencies. When tank factories, plane plants and shipyards began to eat up more and more electric power, reserve rations were ready.

Reserves built up in advance by the business men who manage America's power companies. . . . Reserves that met almost every defense demand overnight. . . . Reserves available almost anywhere, because of carefully planned and inter-connected systems.

But no power reserves could continue to satisfy hungry, humming machines indefinitely. So the electric companies have been working fast to keep ahead. They put over two and a half million more horsepower into production during 1941—enough to light one-quarter of all the nation's homes!

Here is a basic defense industry, able and willing to do its part—glad to pledge all-out cooperation with government and industry—until the skies and seas around America are secure and free forever!

Winter in Florida

INTERESTING LETTER FURNISHED NEWS READERS EACH WEEK CONCERNING LIFE IN SOUTH

By CLYDE E. HART

Port Richey, Fla.
1-19-'42

To my Friends in DeKalb Co.:

These three words describe the weather in Florida, warm, warmer, Warmest. It is delightful. No need for a coat but the evenings are cool and you can sleep comfortable under a blanket.

I am writing this letter on the shores of a bayou near Tarpon prings. The bayou is walled and thirty-one people are standing along it fishing, among them are eleven from our camp.

Those who have never been in Florida think of its soil as being fertile, but such is not the case, in no part can vegetables grow without fertilization.

The native people who live in the sticks lead a very simple life, being poorly fed and clothed. I talked with one of these men the other day, he has seven children, the eldest a girl of fourteen years old was married last spring. The father apparently thought it was all right and passed it off as a joke. We are not traveling about much so I do not have much to write about.

As I come in contact with people here the more I am convinced that we in Indiana live in the garden of the earth. We are blessed with hundreds of privileges that are not enjoyed by others in our country. We arrived in Florida just one month ago today and I have enjoyed every minute of it. My wish is that more of you might be here and enjoy it with us.

With best wishes,
Clyde Hart.

SERENADERS VISIT THREE NEWLY WEDS

Monday night was the scene of a real old fashioned belling, the parties honored being Mr. and Mrs. Gene Newton, or Blanch Strong and husband, at their home three miles south and two miles east of Coburntown, when nearly one hundred united in making plenty of noise. The young people were prepared and passed candy bars and cigars to the crowd. After an hour's fun, the serenaders moved on to the home of Floyd Roberts and his new bride and treated them to a high class racket, for which they were also treated to candy bars and cigars. By this time they had gotten warmed up to noise making so wanted more, and moved on to Newville, where they serenaded Joyce Fusselman and her new husband. This couple was caught unprepared, but this was remedied by getting Mr. Smith's clerk out of bed to open the store and get the treats. After wishing the bride and groom a happy, prosperous life together, the crowd went home.

Friends here have received word of the serious illness of Mrs. Nina Hadsell, of Hicksville. Her condition is of such nature that the children have been called home.

YOUNG STUDENT IS MADE DIRECTOR

Thomas Seller, of St. Joe, has been named dramatic and music director for the annual musical production of Campus Chords at Ball State College. The production, "Trial by Jury," by Gilbert and Sullivan, will be presented in the near future. Mr. Sellers, a member of the senior class, is also directing "The Importance of Being Earnest." by Oscar Wilde, to be presented by Spotlight Club, Feb. 5. Mr. Sellers is a member of Music Club; Tau Epsilon, national honorary art fraternity; Choral Society, and Spotlight Club.

REPUBLICANS PLAN LINCOLN DINNER

Plans have been completed for the Lincoln Day dinner meeting to be held in the Chamber of Commerce building in Auburn, Wednesday evening, Feb. 11. The dinner will be served at 6:30 o'clock. Tickets are now on sale by a committee from each part of the county. Priced at 60 cents.

Ralph F. Gates, Republican state chairman, will be the principal speaker of the evening. An effort is being made to have Senator Raymond E. Willis as one of the speakers. There will be other prominent party leaders in attendance. Republican workers from over the coutny will attend the meeting. County Chairman H. C. Springer will preside at the dinner.

The ticket committee is as follows: Otis Fisher, Butler city, Franklin, Troy, Wilmington and Stafford townships. Louis Freeman for Jackson township. A. G. Stanley for Waterloo and Grant township. W. N. Huffman, Mrs. Edith Hall, Jay Olinger and George E. Mountz for Garrett and Keyser township. F. B. Leighty for St. Joe and Concord township. Walter Baker and Clyde Rectenwall for Spencerville and Spencer township. Vern Sparks and Mrs. Dorothy Conrad for Ashley and Smithfield township. Floyd Dixon and Frank W. McCullough for Fairfield township. Perry Foote for Richland township. Russell Houser for Butler township. Reo Martin, Mrs. Mabel Lyons, Mrs. John L. Orr and Vivian Yates for Auburn and Union township.

LIONS CLUB HOST TO ZONE MEETING

The Zone meeting for the Lions Club in this section was held at St. Joe Monday evening, and dinner was served to nearly 40 men, with the local club as host. Those represented were Auburn, Garrett, and Avilla.

C. G. Rectenwall, of Spencerville, made a brief explanation of the income tax reports, which are facing nearly all laborers and business men in one form or another. The state gross income tax is familiar to nearly all as it requires one to file who has an income of $1,000 or more each year, while the federal income starts at $750 for a single person, and a married man at $1,500 per year with some liberal deductions.

The Zone meeting was held following the dinner with Ward Jackman as chairman, and this was for the chairmen and secretaries of the club.

The next meeting of the local group will be jointly with the Legion boys in a patriotic meeting to be held on Tuesday evening, February 10, with public announcement as to plans to be made later.

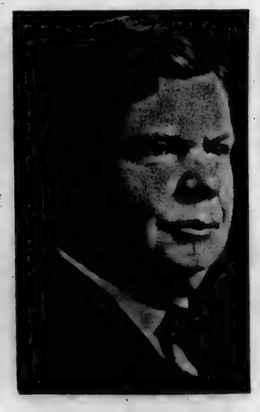
Brazilians bought 5,000,000 rubber balloons from the United States in 1940.

SENATOR WILLIS TO BE HONORED BY EDITORS

Tribute will be paid Senator Raymond E. Willis by his fellow Republican editors at the 64th annual mid-winter meeting of the Indiana Republican Editorial Association, when he is presented with a life-size portrait of himself, the work of Earl LeRoy Corwin, Fort Wayne artist. The meeting will be held Saturday, February 21.

The portrait, which will probably later be hung in some public building or educational institution of the state, was paid for through a subscription campaign inaugurated by the editors a year ago.

Details connected with the program planned for the meeting were withheld by President William B. Hargrave, of the Rockville Republican, pending final selection of the speaker.



RAYMOND E. WILLIS

We will have a speaker of national note, Mr. Hargrave said, and we are at the moment considering several, among them National Republican Chairman Joe Martin, Jr.

Indiana's junior senate will, of course, have an important part on the program. The meeting will be held at the Claypool Hotel.

The annual winter meeting of the editorial group will consist of a business session during the afternoon in charge of William Murray, publisher of the Bicknell News, first vice-president of the Association. At this business session the annual election of officers will be held, and other business in connection with the association's affairs will be transacted.

President Hargrave will preside at the evening dinner meeting at which time the cup awards will be made and the report of the resolutions committee will be heard.

The evening session will be informal, officers of the association stated, and the proceedings of this meeting will be broadcast over Indianapolis station WIRE.

YOUR RED CROSS

(By Meredith Nicholson)

Mrs. Meade Baker took the following from the Wabash Plaindealer in 1918, and placed it in her clipping file. Because of its call again being made she presented it to The News for publication.

The article follows:

"The Red Cross is the greatest instrument of mercy the world has ever seen. Noble as the service of mercy and helpfulness was in Civil War days, the Red Cross surpasses it immeasurably not only in the range and variety of its effort, but in efficiency and effectiveness.

"The Red Cross is, we may say, the arms of the mothers of the world reached out to their sons to bind up their wounds and comfort them. The Red Cross is an army without a gun that wages war only upon suffering and heartache. Where the flag of the stars goes there the banner of the Red Cross must fly beside it. We watch our boys go forth to war with a spirit of hopefulness because we know that this great agency of humanity presses close behind them; that its work is not incidental, but the intelligent directed effort of one of the most marvelous organizations ever contrived by American genius.

"We have all contributed to the Red Cross; we shall be called upon again to contribute to its funds,—again and perhaps again. And we will respond again and yet again! For this is a war for the defense of civilization, and we of great, free, splendid, glorious America, have every intention that it shall be fought with the army of the Red Cross solidly supporting our soldiers."

OUR MILKMAN

Here's to Jim, our milkman
He's the swellest guy alive.
He always comes to our house
A little after five.

If he comes and no tickets are in sight,
He knocks on the door, at my request,
And says as polite as can be
"Did you want any tickets tonight,
There's none in the bottle, I see."

So day after day he comes our way,
As regular as can be,
With a cheery smile he travels long miles,
A regular fellow is he.
His first name is Jimmy,
Oh, yes, his last name is Kees.

—by Ila Coburn.

We do more than celebrate Lincoln's memory, we cling to him with reverence and affection.

A man thinks a good business today might be that of selling buggies, harness and carriage robes.

With perfumes going up, maybe we will resort to corned beef cabbage and onions for an enticing aroma.

The harder the winter in the city the less company there is in the city.

Who is more conceited than the man who kisses his wife just for the pleasure he thinks it gives her?

Come what may there will still be rice and old shoes left as American institutions.

Many a man is spending what he thinks he makes and saves what he hasn't as yet earned.

Some folks are so anxious for publicity that they don't even mind having their scandals put into print.

The fellows of a few girls are already stressing the "cutting down" note as they draw nearer to St. Valentine's Day.

With a probable increase in the price of leather, there will no doubt be a lot of boys stepping into their father's shoes.

The war has affected the sewing circles. It his succeeded operations and scars in importance.

The girl who gives the fellows the biggest whirl is usually dizzy most of the time herself.

OFF TO MARKET

There should be more serious thought given to the present difficulty arising with the farmers problem concerning transportation and labor. First of all the department of agriculture comes out with a demand for farmers to increase production mightily in the line of dairy products, eggs and vegetables. This is necessary and the country's farmers are going to do all they can to produce the goods. But don't overlook the fact that the farmer is having his labor problem on his land and an increase of production is going to place him in a tight spot. The national defense jobs have drawn the rural laborer off of the farm and hied him to the city and higher wages. So work on this angle and give the farmer something constructive in the way of a helping hand and he in turn will get his crop across the line. Another matter that puzzles the farmer right now is regarding the transportation thing. He wants to know what he is going to do about getting back and forth to villages, cities and farms with his marketable goods. He must have means of transporting his produce. Lots of autos grace college and high school campus', hundreds of taxi cabs that are unnecessary stand on city streets. So sit down and figure this off to market situation more effectively you consuls, councils, co-ordinators and chiefs.

GROUNDHOG DAY

Here we come right around to "Groundhog Day" and even if you are of the school of thot, who can't take much stock in this sort of weather forecasting, you still are going to ask if the groundhog saw his shadow on Feb. 2. No one around St. Joe seems to be able to tell us how this business started and most every one treats it as a joke. If the groundhog does get a view of his shadow and creeps back for six more weeks of winter we don't remember at the end of that time whether or not it was the fault of the groundhog. If the day is dark and he doesn't see his shadow between sunrise and sunset, do we go out and spade the garden and sit down to order garden seeds because winter is over (according to groundhog rules?) Don't forget the fellow who used to make weather prognostications by a goosebone back in grandpa's day, got just as big a kick out of it as you do over this groundhog method.

BUSY HANDS

There are few idle hands in St. Joe, those of every citizen turned to daily tasks of earning a living and keeping up a home. There are those hands giving extra time to assisting their governmnet in defense, hands doing Red Cross work, hands to carry out orders for civilian defense. Busy world this! And so does it all tend to hearten us for a final victory for our cause. We are told that a military survey of our resources indicates that when our armed forces total 3,000,000 men, that there will be full-time employment for all of this country's workers. In other words, this removes unemployment from America, removing all idleness by men and women able to be employed. Should we exceed the mark of 3,0000,000 fighters there will be a drastic call for workers. It will lead to people who are doing non-essential work being shifted to keeping vital industries going. Then we will find women supplying the labor in mass formation. We are proud to have the number of men needed for the armed forces and civilian labor ready to supply the hands to scrub the decks ready for action.

OUR FARM HOMES

The average size of families is larger in the rural areas than in the cities, and where is there a better place to raise a family! They don't think the farmer is a pitiable object, so far removed from city life and culture, so isolated and lonely out in the open spaces. The man in the city is sitting trying to figure out ways of getting to the country. Take a weather-beaten farm building that is overrun with weeds and grass and with a little money you can make it home. Take some pretty fair farming land to fertilize and plant and furrow and you can eat a hearty meal. Make pasture land available for your small stock, raise a couple of pigs and don't forget a kitchen garden. Turn back the cover on your bed at night with a tired hand, but your crops, livestock and weather will be there waiting for you tomorrow. Rest ye well, raise your family to understand that births, deaths and marriages come to city and farm alike, and appreciate the rural United States for its true worth.

AGAIN, PLEASE!

If you haven't heard the warning cry yet then it is because you haven't listened! The OPM have asked each motorist in our country to use every means possible to save and sacrifice in order to preserve our tires. We have been requested to economize and aid in keeping rubber for defense purposes. And if co-operation will win this war—we have just as good as won it. If cars must be used, if you need yours for business reasons and not just pleasure, if you are anxious to help your country and yourself, observe the 10 rules laid down by the OPM to make your tires last longer:

1. Have worn tires retreaded instead of buying new ones; the cost being usually about one-half that of a new tire and giving about 80 per cent as much wear.
2. Cut out high speeds; tires will last twice as long at 40 miles an hour as at 60.
3. Inflate tires weekly to recommend levels. Never let pressure fall more than three pounds below recommended minimums.
4. Don't stop short or make jackrabbit starts.
5. Avoid striking curbs, road holes and rocks.
6. Check wheel alignment twice a year. A tire one-half inch out of line will be dragged sideways 87 feet out of every mile.
7. Repair all cuts, leaks and brakes promptly; delay may cause damage that cannot be repaired.
8. Change wheel positions every 5,000 miles.
9. Always get the tire made to fit the rim of your car; check with your garage if you are not sure what size tire you require.
10. Don't speed around curves.

WASHINGTON CURRENT COMMENT

The appearance of the city of Washington is changing so rapidly that even members of the Oldest Inhabitants' Association get lost now and then. A person who makes one more effort to locate the pocketbook which he lost in the woods last summer, runs a good chance of finding the ground paved or sodded, and well dotted with dwellings, or blanketed under widely spreading three-story apartment houses. The Speedway, a recreation park extending several miles along the Potomac, is taking on the aspect of serious business. The space in which the polo ponies formerly gave the populace an opportunity to see a somewhat uncommon sport, is covered with cement and furnishes a parking lot capable of accommodating approximately thirteen hundred autos. Emplacements have supplanted picnic tables, and anti-aircraft guns turn deadly eyes now toward the heavens and again upon the smoothly flowing river, as crews manoeuvre them. The papers speak casually about ten new temporary buildings, capable of housing fifteen thousand federal workers, and scattered in such manner as to reduce traffic problems as much as possible. The old timer can see few of his friends or acquaintances on the streets of the business district. They are lost in the crowds, composed largely of newcomers, as is established by frequent glances at street signs on the corners, or by the asking of questions which begin the "Where" or "Can you tell me."

Aside from the crisis which made it necessary, the change in the nature of the population is doing good. Washingtonians are notoriously prone to stay put. Few emigrate. The war has brot the social practices and the varying viewpoints of the entire land together in a relatively small field, for profitable study. The new residents, in many instances, are making their first examination of city ways, and are able to do so in a region where city pitfalls perhaps are at a minimum. Washington is an awakened and booming town. Possibly it will not like the quiet that is sure to come when the Japo-German tyranny is overpast.

The landing of Japanese troops on New Britain Island, gave Australia her first taste of invasion. It is true that the territory occupied is about eight hundred miles from the Australian mainland, yet the United States would be disturbed if Burmuda were American-owned, and if Hitler had acquired a foothold there. The situation in the South Pacific is even more serious. New Guinea and a liberally sprinkled archipelago form natural stepping stones from New Britain to the big island now threatened. Although the area of Australia is greater than that of the United States, her population is but ten million. Vast tracts are not under cultivation or are incapable of use. Portions of the army are on battlefields afar. What Australia can do for herself is something that cannot be foretold. Heretofore she has helped. Henceforward she will have to be helped.

Dealing with the general subject of helping, John Q. Public is getting some elementary training in self-denial, as everyone knows. The income tax blanks are out, and signify that the opportunity for useful service is large. The man whose tires are sickly, gave a chuckle when the War Department, after some publicity, decided not to ask for bids on a thousand rubber spittoon mats, a circumstance referred to in the Senate as indicating that even the government has to be pulled into line occasionally. Although labor as a mass is doing its part, it cannot be denied that the inter-union conflict is an impediment to the forward movement of the war program. Satisfaction is to be derived from the White House statement that renewed efforts will be made to establish a labor truce which will last until the war is over. But the terms of a bill before the Senate Finance Committee, the dependents of World War veterans will receive pensions, even though the soldier dies from causes not connected with his former military service. In a bristling editorial, the Washington Post alleges that the measure is out of order at this time of heavy Federal outlay and corresponding taxation; that the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion should take corporate action against it; and that it is the creation of lobbyists and politicians: all of which at

National and International Problems Inseperable From Local Welfare Problems.

The appointment of Donald Nelson as absolute head of procurement and production, with powers second only to those of the President, marked the real start of this country's all-out war effort. In the past, we simply did not do enough. There has been too much talk and too little work. Now, faced with enemies who have devoted all their resources for many years to the creation of gigantic armies, we must at last throw the potentially limitless American production machine into high gear.

The effect of that on the country's economy will be revolutionary. During the year which ended, we spent less than 25 per cent of our national income for military purposes. During the fiscal year which will begin next July, it is expected that more than 50 per cent of our income will be devoted to the needs of our Army, Navy and Air Force. And in the years to follow, if the war is still going on, the proportion will be further increased. The President has said that the building of military power only slightly superior to that of our enemies, is not enough—that we must, instead, build a military power which is overwhelmingly greater. The results of that program will be felt in every home in the land.

There is little point now in talking about the mistakes of yesterday, save as they can point the way to prevent similar mistakes in the future. Labor strikes stalled production and deprived our fighting forces of vitally needed supplies. Some segments of industry were reluctant to make the tremendous transition from a peace to a war economy. Government officials, including the President, vacillated before taking the steps that were necessary to real efficiency in administration. Congress dilly-dallied and debated endlessly while the Axis forces rolled inexorably on. Now we have entered a new period, and it is inconceivable that anything will be permitted to hamper the war effort.

The individual will find himself living a very different kind of life. He will have to work harder, and he will have to forego a long list of luxuries and a number of semi-necessities as well. The complete ban on automobiles and tires indicates the way the wind blows. It is expected that within a very short time the production of electric refrigerators, washing machines and similar equipment, will come to an absolute stop. There will be little or no tin to spare for canned goods. And while most workers will receive higher wages than ever before, a larger proportion of their earnings will be taken by government through taxation. Everyone may be required to devote a definite proportion of their homes to the purchase of defense bonds. In short, your pay check may be big, but the part of it which you will have left to spend as your whims and desires indicate, will be small.

The effect of the war on industry and business will be similar. Every kind of factory, from the great automobile plants down to the smallest crossroads machine shops, will be given some part in war production. Very large gross profits will probably be made in many fields. But net profits will be modest—because of taxation. The Treasury will get the bulk of every dollar over and above the cost of production. No one will get rich out of this war. It is to the credit of most industries that they aren't trying to make great profits, and are asking only enough earnings to keep going and to expand their facilities.

At the moment, there is considerable unemployment, due to the shut-down on cars. Hundreds of thousands of mechanics, tire and auto salesmen, service station workers, and others are being thrown out of work. The government expects that several months must pass before these men can be taken into defense activity. But, by the middle of the year, many anticipate an actual shortage of workmen. Any man, skilled or unskilled, will be able to find a job. It may not be the kind of a job he wants or is used to, but it will give him a living.

Before long it is probable that all able-bodied people, men and women alike, will have to give part of their time to public work. Those who are not directly involved in defense production or military service, will be called upon to participate in the fast-expanding civilian defense work. There is a shortage of people trained in first aid, fire fighting, policing, and similar activities. The government has made a large appropriation for equiping civilian defense forces, the bulk of which will be spent on the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts, and training is now underway on a big scale.

There is less and less talk of "sacrifice" these days. The reason for that is clear—the work we must do and the money we must pay are simply an inevitable and unavoidable part of the waging of a war which we must win if we are to survive. Every American knows what happened to those European countries which did too little and did it too late. They are all firmly bound in Axis chains. Only our own efforts can save us from that fate.

Increases now planned in income taxation will hit the middle brackets hardest. The tap brackets are taxed to the hilt already, and the low brackets are poor revenue producers. The expectation is that workers earning 5 to fifteen thousand a year may have to pay up to four times as much in direct taxation next year as they will pay this year.

Mrs. Hattie B. Roop, 83, of Ashley, died Sunday evening at the Gablick home for the aged here, after 18 months care. She was buried Wednesday afternoon from Ashley. Surviving are two daugthers, Mrs. Myrtle Vaughn, of Ashley, and Mrs. Ona Camp, of Hudson.

Vernie Collins reports seeing a Robin last Friday. The bird was probably sharpening up its beak to do a little frozen earth grubbing for worms. Whether the robin just returned from the south to spend the winter in Indiana, or hasn't found the Indiana climate a bit severe, and intends to see it through makes no difference. The robin was seen anyway.

An automobile destroyed by fire last week along the old Indiana Service corporation right-of-way at Fort Wayne, was stolen from Chester Tucker of Spencerville. Except for the tires, the machine was totally destroyed. An investigation disclosed that the gasoline pump was removed from the car after it had been driven into the secluded location. No other accessories were wissing. The machine was stolen from near Spencerville.

Upon application of Clyde E. Boots, C. E. McClintock, of Auburn, was appointed in the DeKalb Circuit Court Saturday as administrator of the estate of the late Wm. R. Boots, of Spencerville, who died Jan. 18, leaving $1,000 in real estate. The heirs are one brother, John T. Boots, of Pleasant Lake, two half sisters and a half brother, Pearl Wood and Clyde Boots, of Pleasant Lake, and Myrtle Kimes, of Dewey, Okla., and two nephews and two nieces, Fred Baltz, of San Leandro, Calif., Edith Kelley, of Modesto, Calif., and Merritt Butler and Audrey Wade of Spencerville. The administrator filed $100 bond, with Dan M. Link as surety.

Will Mr. Groundhog Aid U. S. Enemies In Annual Forecast?

Weather man or groundhog?

It's that time again and you're going to have to take your choice.

Legendary tradition holds that if the groundhog sees his shadow on Groundhog day, February 2, he dashes back into his burrow to await six more weeks of winter weather. At least that's one legend. Another holds the opposite. To wit: if Mr. Groundhog doesn't see his shadow, he goes back for six more weeks of winter.

Last year the U. S. weather bureau came out with a pronouncement flatly rejecting the qualifications of Mr. Groundhog as a weather expert. Said the bureau: "Trained observers stationed throughout the country working in close co-operation and employing scientific instruments and intricate mathematical calculations are more eminently qualified to forecast weather with a greater degree of accuracy than the groundhog who undeservedly has the reputation of being an instinctive weather forecaster."

However, this year, because of the war, the groundhog may come out with more definite information than the weather bureau. For under its wartime policy all wind and weather forecasts for ocean, coastal and marine areas have been greatly curtailed to keep all weather information likely to be of aid to the enemy from said enemy's ears.

Groundhog or weather man?

Well, maybe this year, the groundhog will recognize the enemy and he too will be stingy with his information.

Mr. and Mrs John Garsheau, of Fort Wayne, were Sunday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Woodcox.

A baby daughter arrived in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Walter, of Hicksville on last Thursday. The grandparents were delighted upon hearing the news.

The Indiana Alcoholic Beverages Commission Monday halted the sale of wine in half-pint bottles. The commission gave retailers 90 days and wholesalers 30 days in which to dispose of stock. The sale of wine in half-pint bottles has been prohibited by law for several years but the provisions of the statute were never enforced.

Mrs. Hollis Dilley is at the home of her sister, Mrs. Wm. Staman, where she is confined to her bed with pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. Clay Coburn, of Jackson, Mich., spent from Friday evening until Sunday afternoon at their home here.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Foltz and son, Clyde, of near Leipsic, O., Monroe Foltz, of Defiance and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Foltz, spent Friday in the J. P. Buckingham home.

Lysle McMaken is now doing some remodeling on his home purchased of Mrs. Aletha Kinsey. He will insulate, reside with asbestos shingles and roof the building, besides making some interior improvements.

Remodeling of the former Wm. Pepple home by Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Zuber is now in progress. The porches are being taken off and a complete remodeling of this home will be made at once, should the weather permit.

Wm. Brandon wishes, in this manner, to thank the following men, who so ably assisted him, on Jan. 22, preparatory to his farm sale: Fred Elson, Wm. Larue, Emmett Carper, H. H. Squires, Martin Mansfield, Boyd Mansfield. 50t1p.

TRUCK CRASHED AT BUTLER CROSSING

Damage to a big tractor trailer truck resulting from a collision with a Wabash train at Butler at 4:42 Sunday morning at the crossing on Road 6, was estimated at $3,000. The vehicle was owned by Peter Matoz, of Chicago, and was driven by Frank L. Shettler of that city. Shettler was going east on Road 6 and the train was running over the crossing. When the truck hit the train, the truck swung around and its right side was damaged. The drivers were not hurt and the cargo of butter was not damaged in the least.

WHAT EVERY HOME IS TO SAVE FOR DEFENSE

The question, today, on every woman's tongue is: "What can I do to help win this war?" One thing to do at once, at home and in the office, is to save paper.....Old newspapers, wrapping paper and scrap paper of every kind. Do not burn it as waste.

As you accumulate old paper, wrap it tightly in a bundle and call the local boy scouts, the boys' clubs of America, the Salvation Army, the Women's Voluntary Services, the Local Council for National Defense or your local chapter of Red Cross—any one of these agencies will be glad to collect your old paper and send it on its way for conversion into needed paper pulp.

Remember to use paper sparingly. Much that you toss away right now, can be reused.

Cleanse the paper in which butter is wrapped. Use it again as you would any oiled paper.

In writing, use both sides of paper.

Use envelopes from incoming mail for memo paper or interoffice correspondence.

Don't ask your storekeeper for unnecessary wrapping.

Save all card board and boxes.

Avoid extravagant use of facial tissues and other utility products of paper.

Save old rags, sell or give them to the junk dealer. Rags are useful in making paper, no scrap need be wasted.

Salvage List

Tin Foil wrappings on cheese, tea, candy, chewing gum, cigarettes, typewriter ribbons, kodak films and the many other products that reach your home and office. Cleanse it and fold it tightly. The mettal salvaged from this paper is needed for armaments.

Old Metal—clear out your basement and attic. Sell or give to the junk dealer, discarded metal toys, bicycles, sewing machines, lawn mowers, tools, etc. Save kodak film and typewriter ribbon spools, return wire hangers to your dry cleaner for reuse.

Aluminum is needed. Give all you can spare.

Question: "Need I save bottles or tin cans?" The office of civilian defense says "No." The cost of salvaging this tin is too high to make it practical for defense. Bottles and porcelain containers are useless except where reclaimed by manufacturers for reuse. But many discarded bottles and jars can be reused in the home in lieu of regular equipment that needs replacement.

The Red Cross Way

Somewhere, in the battle-scarred regions,
A life is ebbing away—
You may strengthen a hand to comfort and soothe,
If you follow the Red Cross way.

Somewhere, in the dull glare of battle,
A face shows, upturned and gray—
You may kindle a mystical halo of hope,
If you follow the Red Cross way.

Somewhere, noble comrades are striving,
The crucial pain to allay—
You may quiet a moan on the quivering lips—
If you follow the Red Cross way.

Somewhere, the poor eye-lids have curtained
Forever, the sweet light of day—
You may give a warm clasp to the hand groping out—
If you follow the Red Cross way.

Somewhere, how weary hearts clamor
For rest, from the blood-imbued fray—
You may thrill their worn spirits with fervor anew—
If you follow the Red Cross way.

Somewhere, somehow, will you do it?
Your bit—in a grand, zealous way?
Will you valiantly face toward the grim battle front?
Will you follow the Red Cross Way?

Winter in Florida

INTERESTING LETTER FURNISHED NEWS READERS EACH WEEK CONCERNING LIFE IN SOUTH

By CLYDE E. HART

Port Richey, Florida.
1-22-'42.

Dear Friends:

I would like to give you a description this week of the vast waste of money in Florida by those whose dreams did not come true. You will ride along and come to a place where some man thought he could build a great city, beautiful pillars were built, streets laid out, miles of sidewalks constructed but no buildings were ever built. Huge hotels were started in many places which remain unfinished, the frame work rotting away, wood work of any kind seems to deteriorate here much more quickly than it does in the north, probably because of the damp, salty air.

I viewed today the climax of waste when I looked upon "Dude Ranch." A man who was worth several million dollars bought fourteen thousand acres of waste land twelve miles east of here. He built a fence ten feet high entirely around it, then he stocked it with deer, goats, peacocks and turkeys. Moon Lake is located some where near the center of his tract of land and is the most beautiful body of water I ever looked at, entirely surrounded by cypress trees. His home is built on the lake, it is constructed entirely of cypress timber. He constructed a dining hall which will seat a thousand diners at one time. You will say he evidently does a big business. The truth of the matter is it has not been open for three years, and is fast falling into decay.

This letter would indicate that Florida is a dismal looking place but not so. There are many beautiful places never the less.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hathaway and son and family called on us yesterday, they are on their way to Miami. Travel is not so extensive this year as formerly and the people here are complaining. They are attempting to have the President give his idea regarding the matter so that they make their arrangements for next winter.

We are all well and enjoying ourselves.

With best wishes,
Clyde Hart.

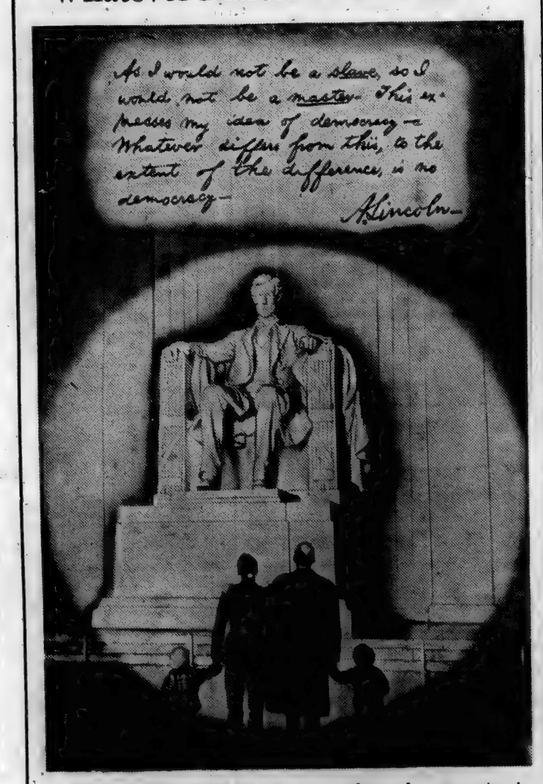
'Whatever Differs From This . . .'



ACROSS the years, Lincoln's great soul marches on to inspire Americans deeply, ever so deeply, this troublous year of 1942. Here you see three generations of Americans before the great Lincoln Memorial in Washington, the soldier and his two children, and the soldier's father. Can you not hear Lincoln's immortal words reaching out to them:

"As I would not be a slave, so I would not be a master. This expresses my idea of democracy. Whatever differs from this, to the extent of the difference, is no democracy."

* * *

"Let us have faith that right makes might, and in that faith let us to the end dare to do our duty as we understand it."

* * *

"Our defense is in the spirit which prizes liberty as the heritage of all men in all lands everywhere."

On the anniversary of his birthday—February 12—Lincoln's Americanism and humanitarianism is still ours, thank God, in mighty contrast to the doctrines of arrogance, barbarism and oppression. The arrogant make wars for conquest and enslavement of peoples. America fights to bring peace WITH freedom. No Hitler, big or little, could understand that, for no Hitler could humbly ask: "Oh why should the spirit of mortal be proud?" Abraham Lincoln did.

TRUSTEES ORDER SCHOOL HOURS CHANGE FEB. 9

The township trustees of DeKalb County, meeting Monday in the office of County Superintendent of Schools Carl F. Stallman in the court house, voted in favor of opening the district schools a half hour later for the balance of the present term, effective next Monday.

The change is to be made because of the new law by which the clocks will be set up an hour. At the present time the school hours are 8:30 to 11:30 A. M. and 12:30 to 3:30 P. M. The new hours are to be 9 to 12 and 1 to 4.

It was decided that the 9 o'clock opening hour would be better as otherwise it would not be daylight when the bus drivers start on their routes. However, the change may not be made in all townships. The term ends Friday, April 17. What action will be taken when the new term opens next Sept. 8 remains to be seen. A suggestion was made that the opening date of the fall term be delayed in order that the boys and girls could help with harvesting on the farms, but the trustees voted in favor of the usual opening time, which is the day after Labor Day.

The prospective shortage of school teachers next year also was discussed. This is expected to become a national problem. Some teachers will enter the armed forces and others will go into industrial plants where wages are high. It is deemed likely that it will be necessary for the school authorities to increase salaries in order to get teachers. The number of teachers in the district schools of this county is 83.

AUBURN YOUNG MAN INJURED AT PEARL HARBOR

"It was like being in a bush with a bunch of hunters shooting guns around you."

Donald Martin, of Auburn, now visiting his parents and sister, offered that short and understandable explanation of his experiences during the Pearl Harbor attack Dec. 7. Martin, a ship fitter in the U. S. Navy, was on board ship in the harbor when the attack began. He was put on the second deck when flying shrapnel wounded him. One piece hit him in the face, inflicting a deep gash and knocking out or breaking half his teeth. He was struck in both legs also.

"The attack began shortly before 8 A. M.," Martin related, "and lasted about two hours. The noise was terrific—airplanes, bombs, machine guns and anti-aircraft. For a moment we didn't know what was happening; we thought it might be maneuvers—but we sure knew better a minute later. I wish we had a fair chance at those Japs."

Martin said he didn't realize at first that he was hurt. He was taken to a naval hospital at Pearl Harbor, and after two weeks there was removed to a hospital at Mare Island, San Francisco Bay. He was given a 15-day leave recently. He expects to return to the hospital at Mare Island in about a week for further treatment.

F. D. R. ACCEPTS AID OF TOWNSEND CLUBS

The offer of organized aid in America's war effort of her 10,000 Townsend Clubs, their trained organizers and their rotogravure weekly newspaper made to President Franklin D. Roosevelt by Dr. Francis E. Townsend, has been accepted.

In a letter on White House stationery, Dr. Townsend has been assured that "in the all-out effort in which we are engaged there will be opportunities for all of us, individually, and collectively, to serve."

Although the clubs in many sections already have thrown themselves, as units, into Red Cross and Civilian Defense Work, President Roosevelt's note to Dr. Townsend should stimulate even these groups to greater efforts and to aid the Army and Navy in defending our homeland.

The letter to Dr. Townsend, signed by Marvin H. McIntyre, secretary to the President, read:

"My dear Dr. Townsend:

"The President has received your telegram and asked me to convey to you his appreciation of your loyal and generous offer of support. It goes without saying, of course, that in the all-out effort in which we are engaged there will be opportunities for all of us, individually and collectively, to serve.

"I am taking the liberty of forwarding your telegram to the Director of Civilian Defense in view of the offer you made."

HOOSIERS MARKETING LAST OF FUR CATCH

Hoosier trappers are marketing the last of the fur pelts taken during the open season which ended at midnight Saturday with the five-day "grace" period for disposal of their catch expiring at midnight, Thursday, Feb. 5.

Trappers with a live raccoon, opossum, skunk, mink or muskrat or the untanned hide thereof in their possession after Thursday midnight are subject to arrest as law violators. This statute does not apply to licensed fur buyers who are granted a period of 60 days after the close of the trapping season to dispose of untanned hides of the protected fur-bearing animals.

The law does not protect either the red or grey fox in any part of Indiana and these may be taken at any time.

Remember the change of time next Monday morning.

PIONEER SUBSCRIBER PAYS HER $1 ANNUALLY

Breedsville, Michigan.
January 21, 1942.

Editor St. Joe News,

Dear Sir:

At long last I am sending you a dollar on subscription, been trying to for some time but did not feel equal to writing, so kept putting it off.

When my girlie, Agnes Dunn was here to spend her birthday with me Sept. 13, I thought to have her do the writing, but she was kept so busy it was not possible. Almost as soon as she got back to Cleveland she had to go to California, wrote me while she was there she had to get back to Cleveland by Nov. 16. She went to ticket office to try to get her ticket fixed so she could stop over in Wheaton, Ill., to attend a wedding. Everything was arranged O. K. and she wrote she was starting Nov. 10, but her Dr. Nida, (Mrs.) was taken very sick and she is still there caring for her.

Now I didn't think I would write but a very few words when I started this but must tell you of a clipping I cut out of a News when I was in New York I think, but failed to put date on it as I should, ran across it the other day thought there are many folks would be interested to see it if you care to reprint it.

I remember Mort Olds many years ago, (more than 70) when he clerked in his father's store in Spencerville, also his sister, Nellie, and how I did admire her. I was a little girl, but would be sent to the store when others were too busy to go. My sister, Mrs. Royal lived a mile or two east of the town and I would drive on old horse my mother owned and drive through the old covered bridge east of the town over the old St. Joe River.

I have been thinking so much the last few years of that bridge and wondering if it could still be there, and why can't we have a picture of it in our old St. Joe News? ? ?

I had before my house burned in 1896 a first copy ever printed I think, very small not like it is now. If I live until March 8, will be 83 years old. Well excuse this long scribble, I am very tired and it shows it.

Sincerely,
Mrs. L. V. Dunn.

P. S.—I have no "Big Silver dollar" will this paper one do as well? ? ? ? And please excuse me for being so slow about it. L. V. Dunn.

The following was taken from the St. Joe News of Sept. 23, 1887. The article is about John Davis a former resident of St. Joe and was written by Barcus Q. Hippenhammer, or better known to some of our readers as M. E. Olds, editor of The News at that time.

"Everabody in this naborhood knos Jon Davis, an tha awl kno that ther is no one that kan laff ana longer an louder than Jon kan, when he sees sumthing funny to laff at. Last weak one day sumthing happened that wus fun fur the rest ov us, but was hard on Jon. It seams that Jon had a sow with sum young pigs an it so happened that the pigs wer up at one end ov the lane an the old sow was down at the othar end hunting sumthing tu eat. Jon thot he wood have a littel fun so he began to maik sort ov a sqeeling noise, tu maik the old sow think sumthing was after her pigs. The sow herd it an she caim pel-mel down the lane an maid a bea line fur Jon in a wa that ment busness. Jon thot it was fun at furst, but wen he saw that the old sow wus in earnest he actually clum the fence an woodn't cum down. He wont be apt to fule with the old sow ana moor.

USE STAMPS WILL BE SOLD DURING FEBRUARY

Monday was the deadline for purchase of the new federal auto-use stamps, but treasury officials said the $2.09 stickers will remain on sale during February.

Maximum penalty for driving an auto without the federal use stamp after Monday is a $25 fine and 30 days imprisonment. Treasury officials said enforcement rests with collectors of internal revenue.

The price of a stamp for a full year is $5 and stickers of this denomination will go on sale before July 1, beginning of the next fiscal year and deadline for putting them on autos.

Practically all the offices in this section were out of stamps several times and people were delayed in purchasing them. Only Saturday the local office had run out early in the afternoon.

ST. JOE BOY FIGURES IN AUTO ACCIDENT

A 1938 Ford Tudor driven by Merle Simanton, of just west of St. Joe, was upset by a collision Friday night at midnight with a 1937 Oldsmobile sedan driven by James Draggoo also of west of St. Joe. The accident took place on Road 8 five and a half miles east of Auburn. Both drivers were going east when Draggoo tried to pass Simanton. The Oldsmobile left the pavement and when Draggoo swerved it back it hit the front of the Ford, causing it to turn around and upset. The Oldsmobile went on around and stopped. The cars were damaged, but no one was hurt. A report of the accident was made to Deputy Sheriff Paul Miller.

A subscriber tells of the women folks in her family for many years back, using buttermilk for making pie dough. They use the same amount of buttermilk as they would water and the result is a tasty and very flaky pie crust.

Every Patriotic American Salutes His Nation's Flag

During the ceremony of hoisting or lowering the Flag, or when the Flag is passing in a parade or in a review, all persons present should face the Flag, stand at attention and salute.

Those present in uniform should render the right hand salute.

Those men not in uniform should remove their headdress with the right hand and hold it at the left shoulder, the hand being over the heart.

Women should salute by placing the right hand over the heart.

The salute to the Flag in a moving column is rendered as the Flag approaches the spectator and is held until it has passed.

FEWER CANS

What will happen to the marriage ceremony if a bride can't buy her dinner out of cans, for that is what seems to be facing us in the very near future. With a new method of reclaiming us in the very near future. With a new method of reclaiming tin and scrap steel from tin cans and being able to reclaim the tin considerably cheaper than the market price, we are going to put the can opener away. There will be casualties in the household where the canned food is the main dish if the order that is up for consideration goes into effect. Think of the grocery shelves and your home cupboards lined and spaced with canned goods. Consider that just in canned dog food alone this country uses about 650,000,000 cans a year. That is a lot of tin in anyone's reckoning. The idea is to market those things that will keep as well in other types of containers or can be sold in no containers at all. This is another form of giving our country more of this much needed metal.

ONE GOOD THING

A local News subscriber remarks that there is one good thing this war is doing for our children as she sees it. It is teaching them that they must not expect too much of life. Too many parents have not trained their children in this respect, letting them grow up expecting the same understanding and devotion in the world outside as that they received in their home. They soon find this is too rosy a picture since before long life brings its disappointments and heartaches to test them. The average child, so sheltered in the past, has not been equipped to meet the situation. Present conditions of the world compel parents to open their minds to their children and though convincing them of the rough going ahead, that there are still many happy surprises left to them. To take what comes with such pleasing and good grace is a quality that might well be stressed in the grown-ups as well.

GETTING WISER

There isn't as much complaint today about St. Joe children not knowing the value of money. We were living in a great spending age a few years back with luxuries heaped about us, living on top of the peak and many of us educating our children to expect life to hold the same and more for them. Of course even today there are youngsters who think money can be picked off of bushes and do not know the value of a dollar because they have never helped to earn a part of one. But our present way of life has been affected and there is a greater appreciation of money and its value. Children are surrounded by talk of what effort, time and industry it takes to get the money and they hear of increased taxes, prices of food and clothing, to know that things are coming harder today. Don't worry, this may be good for them, the considering of family finances of valuing cash in coins rather than in bills.

GIVE A THOUGHT

As we sit by our family fireside hearing the blasts blow, within the warmth and comfort of our homes, do we give time to sympathize with those who must remain out in the storm's wake and suffer the weather whatever it may be? We take service too much for granted, those of us who do our work within the walls protection. Many must work in the cold, in fact they fight the weather for their living. There is the news boy, the post man and milkman who make their daily rounds to serve you. There are traffic officers who make the way safe for us, truckers who travel night and day carrying fuel and food. There are repairmen who watch railway tracks, wires and pipes, firemen always on the alert to serve in the bitterest of weather. The sailors on the sea, men in training in the army, fliers scaring over head, serving us. To call ourselves civilized, since we enjoy the comforts and customs of our age, men must need face the weather.

FEATHER TICKS

When they talk of the passing of the cigar store Indian, there comes to our mind the more cherished feather bed of yesterday and its passing into oblivion with the years. There are still many homes about St. Joe where they fluff up that feather tick, puff it and stir it into a thing of billowy beauty for the tired body that seeks its downy warmth on cold winter nights. But according to many plans there isn't room for the feather bed in the modern bedroom. The farmhouse had its spare room for company and offered you the luxury of a feather tick as a luxury back in your grandfather's day. The bedrooms were so cold, closed up and unheated that they called for a lot of jumping about in the process of undressing as you made for that feather tick. The fire roared downstairs and you could hear the wood popping if you didn't stuff your head down too deeply into the feathers where you snuggled and burrowed deeper into the warmth. Of course you could get up easier in the morning if the pipe from the stove ran through your room but even so it was hard to leave the warm nest even for the enticing odor of breakfast. If you want to be technical we know that it wasn't a feather bed at all but a tick fatty with feathers and laid on another mattress stuffed with cornhusks maybe. But it still was a feather bed to you and offered a deep sleep and enveloping sense of comfort. Bedrooms today are so heated that you might suffocate in a feather bed but you don't sleep as well.

National and International Problems Inseperable From Local Welfare Problems.

Big question in the minds of millions of Americans has been: "Where is the Navy?" That question was partially answered on January 24, 25 and 26, when the Navy Department announced that a group of destroyers from Admiral Hart's Asiatic fleet had pounced upon a convoyed fleet of Japanese transports in the East Indies and destroyed numerous vessels and damaged others.

The actual disposition of the main fleet is one of the most closely held naval secrets. Those amateur strategists who argue that it should boldly sail into Japanese-dominated waters and come to grips with the enemy's main fleet in a gigantic action, are given no support by men who understand naval warfare. The advantages possessed by the Japanese fleet in the Far East are clear. She has major bases less than a thousand miles from the Philippines. Her ships can be given constant air support. Our nearest important base, Pearl Harbor, is thousands of miles away, far beyond the effective range of even the largest airplanes. We would, in short, go into battle with all the odds against us, and risk the loss of a great fleet which is still our first line of continental defense.

It may be that Admiral Hart is using his forces for what might be termed guerilla naval warfare. Small units can strike quickly, inflict damage on the enemy, and get away. They can constantly harry the Japanese, and make the enemy convoy problem one of ever-growing difficulty. Japanese land victories in the Far East have overshadowed the fact that we and our Allies are destroying tremendous amount of Nipponese shipping. That, in the long pull, will be exceedingly important. According to all authorities, Japanese ship-replacement capacity is exceedingly limited, now that she has been cut off from this country's scrap-iron and other resources. Every ship that goes down represents a serious loss.

It is clear what Japanese strategy is now. First, she must have oil—that is the reason for invasion of the East Indies. But the Dutch say that they have destroyed all wells in Jap-occupied areas so thoroughly that many months of labor will be required to return them to production.

Second, she must completely conquer the Philippines. As long as General Douglas MacArthur's magnificent troops are able to hold positions on the mainland, along with Corregidor fortress, key to Manila Bay, Japan will have to maintain and supply a tremendous army in those islands. MacArthur's headquarters have reported that the Japanese have between 200,000 and 300,000 soldiers in the field against him.

Third, she must take Singapore. Whoever possesses that great base dominates the Far East to a tremendous extent. If it should be lost to the Allies, the job of defeating Japan would become immensely harder and longer.

Japan has gone all-out following the German blitzkreig technique. According to reports from the front lines, she apparently cares little for casualties—MacArthur has said that wave after wave of Japanese troops, many without even complete uniforms, have been sent against his forces, mowed down, only to be followed by more waves. Japanese commanders apparently feel that they must win their objectives swiftly, if they are to win at all.

The next month of two may tell the story. If Japan takes Singapore, the Dutch Indies and the Philippines, there can be little doubt but what years must pass before sufficient Allied power can be turned loose to unseat her. If Singapore is held, and Allied air and naval units are able to inflict increasingly heavy blows on the enemy, the Japanese drive could lose momentum very suddenly. Today Japan is the strongest force in the Pacific. The hope is that the balance of power will be reserved before she is able to consolidate her gains and stabilize the positions she has seized and is attempting to seize.

This country did not get all that it hoped for from the meeting of the American Republics. Sumner Wells did a fine job, but Argentina proved adamant at the last, as many anticipated. However, it is certain that a considerable step forward was taken toward the goal of hemispheric solidarity.

The overwhelming majority of the Latin-American nations have now broken off all diplomatic and commercial relations with the Axis. Many have declared war on Japan, Germany and Italy. All have declared that their sympathies lie with the United Nations.

Next job will be to use Latin-America's limitless natural resources and raw materials for war purposes. South America has rubber, ores of all kinds and other essential materials in potential abundance. But these resources are largely undeveloped and there are difficult problems of transport and geography which must be solved. The job will be a long one. It will probably begin with attempts to put Brazilian rubber to productive purpose.

To all those who plan NEW BUILDINGS

THE production of the enormous volume of planes, tanks and ships needed to insure victory over the Axis powers has caused an acute shortage in many metals including the copper for electric lines. So that our essential business may be carried on, Uncle Sam has given your electric company authority to secure supplies sufficient for needed operations. No materials are available for the extension of our service areas except where the extension is for defense purposes. Under certain conditions and where the distances are relatively short, the Government will also assist us in securing wire and equipment necessary to connect new customers to our existing lines.

This advertisement is published to acquaint the public with existing conditions and to urge all persons contemplating the construction of new buildings or any major changes in existing buildings to consult us FIRST before making any plans. We will be glad to advise you if the materials to connect your project to our lines are available.

OUR ARMED FORCES COME FIRST

If you plan to build, consult us about civilian supplies.

The Pacific fleet made an effect attack on 6 of the Japanese bases in the Marshal and Gilbert Islands this week and hardly anything was left after the tons of bombs, torpedoes and shells had been released. This was "the opening gun in the great battle in which we are engaged."

Mrs. Mable Furnish of near the County Line, is carrying her left arm in a cast, January 15, she fell breaking her elbow. She had gone out for the mail and in returning to the house she started running and fell. She is getting along fine, although still under the care of her physician.

Mrs. Clara Sible, who has been suffering with high blood pressure for the past few weeks, is staying with her daughter, Mrs. Bernard Sechler, at Kendallville and there being under the care of her physician. She was home Friday for a short time to see her son and to look over the farm home.

With the daylight saving schedule to take place on Feb. 9, the Wabash trackmen will have their hours changed to from 8 to 5 o'clock, and will continue until March 6 when they will have hours from 7:30 to 4:30 and this schedule continues until March 26, when they will work from 7 to 4 for the balance of the summer.

Corn meal and ammonia successfully cleans rugs, according to one of our subscribers. She takes one pint of coarse cornmeal and uses enough ammonia to moisten the corn-meal. Rub it on the rug with a large sized cloth. Let it stand for a while and then sweep it off with a broom. Don't forget that ammonia evaporates so only moisten about one pint of corn-meal at a time, she suggests.

Harry Franks called at News office Tuesday and stated that he was living with Mrs. Alonzo Brace, north of Hicksville, helping with the farming. He came here to the flour mill for a supply of flour and said they liked the St. Joe flour the best of any for general home use. We had not seen Harry for so long that we had to ask his name. He is looking fine, only a few years has been placed to his credit and this does change one.

Mrs. Wm. Hough, of South Bend, was a guest of Mrs. Inez Hadsell from Friday until Sunday. She came to attend the funeral of Mrs. Nina Hadsell at Hicsville on Saturday. The ladies also called on Mrs. Cordelia Hadsell, who is at the Grace Hospital for the aged in Fort Wayne, and found her in quite a good physical condition. She is rather deaf, and her mind is clear at times and she is able to get about her room. Mrs. Hadsell is 98 years old.

A heart attack caused the sudden death at 12:30 P. M. Monday of Edward J. Dullaghan, age 65, at his farm on Route 1, Auburn. Mr. Dullaghan has just finished his noon meal when he left the house, telling his wife, Josephine, that he would be back in a few minutes. When he did not return, she looked out into the barnyard and saw him lying there dead. Dr. R. A. Nason, DeKalb County Coroner, said death was due to coronary thrombosis.

Betsy Ross, 1942

Embroidering Quartermaster's Banner

The year 1942 marks the 165th anniversary of the adoption of the Stars and Stripes, today a battle-flag proudly carried by American armed forces in every continent on the globe.

In January, 1777, the American people, elated by General Washington's recent victories at Trenton and Princeton, were seeking an emblem for the new nation. The Congress on June 14 following adopted a resolution providing for a flag of 13 alternate red and white stripes with 13 white stars on a blue field. And then the inspiring story of Betsy Ross who made the first Star-Spangled Banner in her little upholstery shop in Arch Street, Philadelphia.

Today the modern Betsy Ross still sews in Philadelphia—any one of hundreds of women skilled in needlecraft. She plies her art in the Philadelphia Quartermaster Depot where all the flags used by the United States Army are made.

Story of Betsy Ross

Betsy Ross was born January 1, 1752, and died January 30, 1836, but it was not until a third of a century after her death that the legend of her handiwork in the making of the first flag became generally known. One of her descendants, W. J. Canby, related the incident before the Historical Society of Pennsylvania in 1870 and since then she has been exalted as a national heroine.

The modern Betsys take keen pride in their work. Many have reached the highest perfection in the art of embroidery, in designing and the blending of colors. Nameless though they are to millions of people who are thrilled by the sight of glorious banners fashioned from their delicate stitches, they are rewarded by the knowledge that the flags they have wrought are today the signals of liberty and freedom afar amid the fogs of Iceland and in the battlesmoke of the Philippines.

The most stirring sight at the Quartermaster Depot is the making of the flag. After thorough inspection of the cloth to insure that it comes up to rigid specifications, the bunting is marked and cut with an electrically driven cutting machine into strips of two lengths for making the flag. One hundred strips are cut in a single operation. The blue field for the stars is cut in the same manner. The material for stars is stamped out with a steel-cutting die on an electric-driven stamping machine. The alternate red and white stripes are joined together on a double-needle sewing machine.

Each blue bunting field is carefully marked for its stars, and the stars are stitched on with a special machine that produces a zig zag stitch. Other operations complete the making of the flag of the United States.

The manufacture of silk colors and standards is a specialized art at the Philadelphia Quartermaster Depot. The stripes and field are cut by hand but the stars are made of solid embroidered silk on a Swiss hand embroidering machine. The blue fields are placed in frames on a machine provided with many needles and these turn out a stitch resembling hand embroidery, both sides alike.

Regimental Standards

Regimental colors and standards, with their coats-of-arms and mottoes, each distinctive unto its own military unit, are embroidered by hand. As many as 30 different shades of silk thread are used in embroidering each flag. This calls for exceptional skill and care to produce the predetermined designs in their exact blending of shades. All designs are passed upon by technical experts in the office of the Quartermaster General.

Proudest moment of the Philadelphia flag makers is when they receive an order for the colors carried as a symbol representing the Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States—the President. This color has a blue background in the center of which is embroidered the seal of the President. There is one white star in each corner of the flag, representing his grade as Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy. This color has gold and silver fringe on three sides, and also has a cord and tassel secured immediately below the flagstaff headpiece, consisting of a gold-hued, spread eagle. The design of this flag was established by Executive Order of President Woodrow Wilson on May 29, 1916.

Two Wars . . . Two Letters

On Abraham Lincoln's birthday his famous letter to Mrs. Bixby is recalled. Special interest is attached to the letter this year in light of letter written by President Roosevelt at the beginning of the war with the Axis. This letter was addressed to the "President of the United States in 1956," in honor of Colin Kelly, one of America's first heroes in this war. Both letters are reproduced herewith.

Executive Mansion
Washington, Nov 21, 1864

To Mrs Bixby, Boston, Mass,

Dear Madam.

I have been shown in the files of the War Department a statement of the Adjutant General of Massachusetts that you are the mother of five sons who have died gloriously on the field of battle. I feel how weak and fruitless must be any word of mine which should attempt to beguile you from the grief of a loss so overwhelming. But I cannot refrain from tendering you the consolation that may be found in the thanks of the republic they died to save. I pray that our Heavenly Father may assuage the anguish of your bereavement, and leave you only the cherished memory of the loved and lost, and the solemn pride that must be yours to have laid so costly a sacrifice upon the altar of freedom.

Yours very sincerely and respectfully,
A. Lincoln.

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

December 17, 1941

TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES IN 1956:

I am writing this letter as an act of faith in the destiny of our country. I desire to make a request which I make in full confidence that we shall achieve a glorious victory in the war we now are waging to preserve our democratic way of life.

My request is that you consider the merits of a young American youth of goodly heritage -- Colin P. Kelly, III -- for appointment as a Cadet in the United States Military Academy at West Point. I make this appeal in behalf of this youth as a token of the Nation's appreciation of the heroic services of his father who met death in line of duty at the very outset of the struggle which we thrust upon us by the perfidy of a professed friend.

In the conviction that the service and example of Captain Colin P. Kelly, Jr. will be long remembered, I ask for this consideration in behalf of Colin P. Kelly, III.

Delicate Judgment

The judgment may be compared to a clock or watch, where the most ordinary machine is sufficient to tell the hours; but the most elaborate alone can point out the minutes and seconds, and distinguish the smallest difference of time.—Fontenelle.

Winter in Florida

INTERESTING LETTER FURNISHED NEWS READERS EACH WEEK CONCERNING LIFE IN SOUTH

By CLYDE E. HART

Homestead, Fla.
1-30-'42.

Dear Friends:

You will note by the heading of this letter that we have changed our abiding place. We left Port Richey this morning and drove three hundred and twenty-five miles south of Port Richey. We are located at the extreme southern tip of Florida, the fact is there are only three homes farther south. We drove to Tampa then southward through Bradenton, Sarisota, Ft. Myers, and Naples. At Bradenton we met Mr. and Mrs. Burl Enzor, they are enjoying their trip. Sarisota is said to have the largest trailer camp in the world.

The Tamiami trail runs from Naples to Miami, it has been built of the rock which was thrown out in the constructing the canal which runs along the north side of the road the entire distance. This canal contains a large amount of fish. The negroes do a great amount of fishing in the canal and it was surely lined with them today. Literally thousands of white and blue herons feed along this canal, a heron resembles a crane but is same what smaller.

Homestead is the home of early vegetable growing. The crops of tomatoes, beans, cabbage, squash and peppers will be somewhat later than usual this year because of excess rain fall. This ground lies only four or five feet above sea level, and when a rain of seven inches comes it floods everything, then the hot sun comes out and cooks all vegetation. Thousands of acres of this reclaimed everglade land is used in the production of vegetables. The risk is great but when they make a killing they prosper.

Evidently every body has their ups and downs. The citrus growers problems are the same as the apple growers in the North, excess crops always mean low price for the producer.

Before you read this letter, February will be with us, and soon we will be back with you once more. There is no place like home.

With best wishes,
Clyde Hart.

P. S.—How about a "short berry straw cake." Berries sell for 19c a pint here, and some growers ask more.

JUNIOR HIGH TOURNEY BEING HELD IN ST. JOE

On February 17, 19, and 21, there will be held at St. Joe the first junior high school basketball tournament ever to be held in St. Joe, and the first one to be held in DeKalb County for many years. The tourney is an invitational one in which Butler, Leo, Hicksville, Harlan, Waterloo and the St. Joe Tiger Kittens will participate.

The first game of the tourney, to be played between St. Joe and Leo, will start Tuesday, Feb. 17, 7:30 P. M., CWT and will be followed by the Waterloo-Hicksville game at 8:30. Thursday at 7:30 P. M., CWT, Harlan and Butler will tangle, following which the winners of the first two games will play. The finals of the tourney will be played Saturday at 8:30 P. M., CWT. A trophy will be presented to the winning team immediately following the final game.

The admission charge is 9c for those in junior high and younger, and 15c for all others. Those in charge are anticipating large crowds.

Music before and between games will be furnished by the Concordiers, a band that specializes in popular music. This instrumental group is led by Mr. Wilbern, principal of St. Joe high school, and is composed of students of the school. For a period of forty-five minutes before the final game on Saturday night there will be music furnished by these same Concordiers, and the St. Joe drum majorettes will do some twirling.

The five visiting teams are all strong and have piled up impressive records throughout the season. St. Joe's Tiger Kittens will be the smallest and least experienced team in the tourney, but they are a scrappy outfit, and there is reason be believe that they will make a creditable showing.

Grave of Nancy Hanks Lincoln Scene of Annual Pilgrimage

A lonely, windswept hilltop in Spencer County where a simple stone marks the resting place of Nancy Hanks Lincoln was the scene of the annual memorial exercises this afternoon (Thursday, Feb. 12) as officials of the Indiana Lincoln Union and the Department of Conservation joined in placing a wreath on the grave.

Participating in the ceremony was Col. Richard Lieber, chairman of the executive committee of the Indiana Lincoln Union, and Hugh A. Barnhart, director of the Department of Conservation. Both spoke briefly, calling attention to the significance of the memorial area which encompasses the site of the home in which Abraham Lincoln lived for fourteen years, the grave of Nancy Hanks Lincoln, and the Commemorative Building—now nearing completion—which will finish development activities. The transformation of this area into a shrine of national importance, was cited as a demonstration of how civic minded people can work with government in worthwhile accomplishment.

Following the ceremony at the grave, the official party visited the Commemorative Building to inspect progress on the completion of the structure. It was recalled that just a year ago when a similar visit was made, the foundation of only one building had been completed. Today exterior construction work has been completed on both buildings and on the cloistered court connecting them. Work is progressing rapidly on the interiors but no attempt has been made as yet to determine a date for dedication ceremonies.

4-H CLUB NEWS

The following songs were sung: "Star Spangled Banner," "Ploughing Song," "Dreaming," and "Smoke Goes up the Chimney." Mr. C. E. Baker gave a very interesting talk on "4-H Club Members and Defense," and motion pictures were shown by Mr. Albert Berg.

Games were played and refreshments served.

MATERIAL WASTE MUST BE STOPPED

Retail merchants are being called upon to take a leading part in the campaign against waste of essential materials.

At the moment, principal attention is being given to conserving rubber and paper. Merchants are asked to use a minimum of paper in wrapping parcels, and to use none at all for packaged goods. It is recommended that the number of store deliveries be reduced whenever possible.

The consumer should understand what is being done, and co-operate. Don't ask to have your purchases wrapped or put in bags if you can conveniently carry them as they are. Take your purchases home yourself, instead of asking for delivery service, whenever you can. Save boxes and paper of all kinds—they can be reclaimed and put to further use.

Experiments are now being conducted to discover whether or not it is feasible to reclaim the tin content of cans, and before long you may be asked to save your used cans. Tin, like rubber, is fast becoming scarce.

Both chain stores and independent stores are taking active part in these "prevent needless waste" endeavors. Your co-operation will enable them to give you the best possible service consistent with current conditions. And your co-operation will help conserve materials which are vitally needed in defense work.

TO IMPROVE SERVICE

Establishing of a new star route from Fort Wayne to Waterloo for a connection with New York Central railroad train No. 10 is expected to give faster, better mail service to points in New York. The Short Way Bus lines tentatively has been awarded the route contract. Mail leaves Fort Wayne at 5:40 P. M. and reaches principal New York points the following morning.

HOG RECEIPTS LOWER

Hogs sold 10c per cwt. above competitive markets in last week's auction. Receipts were lower than previous week on account of the icy roads.

Hogs 180 to 220, $12.60 to $12.80. Slaughter sows, $11.50 and $11.65. Stags, $9.50. Slaughter boars, $6.50 to $6.70.

Veals were taken quite liberally at $15.50 to $16.00 with a few sales above $16.00. Day old calves are 50c per head lower and light, thin veals for the Chicago market $1.00 per cwt. higher. Dairy cows sell higher each week, one hit a new high in this week's sale at over $100.00. Good slaughter cows $7.50 to $8.10. Fair to good butcher heifers $9.00 to $10.00.

L. L. C. ENTERTAINED BY MRS. CARL CARPENTER

The eleventh meeting of the Ladies Literary Club, of St. Joe, was held at the country home of Mrs. Carl Carpenter, on Wednesday evening, February 4. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Leslie Wilbern, and the club collect was read by all.

The evening's lesson taken from the Reader's Digest Books and entitled "Wake Up and Live," written by Dorothea Brande, was given by Mrs. Ed. Storer. In Wake Up and Live! Dorothea Brande offers a formula for success which, she says is so simple and so obvious that I could hardly believe it responsible for the magical results which followed when I put it into practice."

Special work, "Handicrafts and Hobbies," was presented by Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser. The critic's report for the evening was given by Mrs. Fred B. Leighty. The secretary's report by Mrs. Ralph Keeler was read and accepted. A parliamentary drill was presented by Mrs. Allen Haller. After all business was taken care of the meeting was adjourned.

There were fourteen active members present. The hostess served pineapple-nut sherbet, wafers and coffee.

CANDIDATES ARE BEGINNING TO ANNOUNCE

A. G. Stanley, of Waterloo, announced last week that he will be a candidate for renomination for county recorder on the Republican ticket at the primary in May.

Mr. Stanley is serving his first term in the office, having been elected in 1938. He has been a resident of Waterloo practically all his life and is a World War veteran. He was formerly connected with the R. L. Holben Auto Co in Auburn.

Oscar F. Fitch, of Garrett, Democratic opponent to Artus Coyle in the last election for sheriff, has announced his candidacy for nomination.

Paul Miller, who resides at 709 So. Lee Street in Garrett and has been deputy sheriff since Jan. 1, 1939, announces that he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for sheriff at the primary in May. Mr. Miller is a graduate of Garrett high school and is a son of Frank Miller, a retired B. & O. conductor. He also was formerly an employe of the Baltimore & Ohio.

Arthur Grube, a well known farmer who lives in the southeast corner of Keyser Township, announced Friday that he has decided to be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for county recorder at the primary in May. Mr. Grube was born and raised on the farm where he resides. Many years ago he operated a restaurant in Auburn and later he was for three years field agent in DeKalb County of the Van Camp Packing Co. He served as county commissioner for three terms from Jan. 1, 1931 to Jan. 1, 1940.

ANY BONDS TODAY?

The Defense stamp and bond drive will be conducted in Spencerville and St. Joe and vicinity just as soon as the supplies are printed. This drive had its start in Indianapolis a month ago and is now supposed to be carried to every home in the state. Canvassers will carry pledge cards with them and it is their hope that every family will agree to buy at least one stamp a week. These stamps can be bought in denominations as low as ten cents. The stamps are then placed on cards or in books until an amount is reached which can be exchanged for a Government bond. If you have been saving your money for this drive and wish to purchase bonds immediately, the canvassers can help you do so.

Buying Defense stamps and bonds serves many purposes. First, it is an investment for your savings which will bring you nearly three per cent interest; second, if enough money is loaned to the government in this manner they will need to take less in income taxes; and for a third reason, there exists no one, we hope, in this U. S. A. who does not hope that this war will end quickly and victoriously. To that end it is necessary that we send not only soldiers, or sailors, or marines, but ships and tanks and planes and bombs. All of these cost huge sums of money. The sooner we provide the where withal for purchasing this war equipment, the sooner we will be successful in our "all-out" war effort. Won't you as a worker or as a housewife plan some economy where you can save the price of at least one stamp each week and lend that money to Uncle Sam. Let your canvassers tell you all about it.

ANGELONE ANNOUNCES FOR PROS. ATTORNEY

Attorney James A. Angelone of Butler, has announced his candidacy for the nomination for Prosecuting Attorney of DeKalb County on the Republican Ticket it was learned today. Mr. Angelone has been engaged in the practice of law for nearly six years and was admitted to the Bar of the Supreme Court of Indiana, upon examination conducted by the State Board of Law Examiners, April 1, 1936; since said time he was admitted to practice before the Bar of the District Court of the United States for the Northern District of Indiana and United States Circuit Court of Appeals, 7th Circuit, in Chicago. The change from Standard Time to War Time caused but little inconvenience in St. Joe Monday morning as residents are more or less accustomed to moving the clocks ahead during Daylight Savings Time. The hour of sleep lost Monday night will be regained some time but the exact date is uncertain as the federal law provides that the war time continue until 6 months after the end of the present hostilities.

GOVERNMENT RATIONING OF SUGAR STARTED

Government printing presses roared into a 24-hour schedule to turn out the nation's first food-rationing books which will limit every man, woman and child in America approximately to three-quarters of a pound of sugar a week.

As soon as the enormous job of printing rationing books for 130 million persons is completed, every consumer will be registered by public school teachers in order to qualify a book. Each book will contain 28 stamps all numbered and they may be used only to purchase sugar during a designated week. New books will be issued at the end of the 28-week period if the rationing is continued and all indications are that it will be.

To get sugar with the book, the purchaser will go to a store and hand the clerk a stamp—and the necessary money of course. The storekeeper after selling the sugar will stick the stamp to a card which he will turn over to the wholesaler so that he can get another supply for the next week.

In the registration, the date for which has not yet been determined, only one person will have to report for an entire family which includes the mother, father, children and wards. Others living within a household, boarders, relatives, etc., will have to register for their own books except in such cases as invalids.

PATRIOTIC MEETING SPONSORED BY LEGION

Mrs. King Chapman, of Butler, an eye witness of the surprise Japanese attacks on Pearl Harbor, discussed her personal experiences at the time of the attacks, before the patriotic meeting at the gym Wednesday evening, sponsored by the American Legion and Lions Club.

"Bombs were falling all around us and yet most people didn't realize it was a real attack," stated Mrs. Chapman. She told how the U. S. S. Arizona as it was burning sent out a perfect smoke screen to protect the other ships, all of which were zigzagging back and forth to avoid being hit. Many of the ships were inadequately manned as half the crews and officers were on week-end shore leave.

The speaker stated that the U. S. lost five warships in the attack and the navy cannot be expected to regain its former strength immediately.

Mrs. Chapman pointed out that many people living in Hawaii have a dual citizenship. They were born of Japanese parents in United States territory. It is reasonable that they would be loyal to Japan. They had acted as informants so that the Japs knew the exact location of the U. S. ships and occupied airdomes.

Oahu is the only fortified island in the Hawaiian group, the speaker explained. It has a population of 258,000 people, produces pineapple and sugar cane and is the home of the University of Hawaii in Honolulu. The speaker described the activity in Honolulu after the bombing. Hospitals were more than filled. Supplies of food were limited.

On the trip home the passengers wore their life belts continually and did not remove their clothes or shoes during the entire voyage. Quarters were crowded but no one minded.

In closing, the speaker paid tribute to the Red Cross, which was always present when needed, supplying clothes for the people who had none and gave money to those who could not pay for transportation to their homes.

Music was furnished by the Concordiers of the St. Joe high school. Miss Dorothy Hook, gave a splendid talk on our democracy and Mr. West, of Auburn, explained the drive that will soon take place in DeKalb County, sponsored by federated clubs, in selling stamps and bonds. Mr. John Crothers acted as chairman.

VALENTINE DAY

Fashions in dress change with the passing of time, fashions in morals differ as well, fashions in war making have suffered variations through the years, but the fashion of celebrating St. Valentine's Day has not altered with the other fads of our generation. The sending of valentines on Feb. 14 has remained a custom that we hope to maintain for without the attraction and fascination of love and valentines we would be without a sentimental bit that adds charm to the yearly calendar. There has been a change in the types of valentines that have been sent thru the varied years, from sugar-coated messages surrounded by cupids and hearts to a present day sort of valentine that shows sentiment but in a more practical sort of way. Lovers of old used to take this valentine means of approaching their fair ones with serious intent. But modern ladies don't necessarily expect a proposal to follow the missive. They tell us that back a long time ago they would put the names of the young women and men in a box and those who wished to keep company would draw a name from the box. Those two chosen by chance would be sweethearts for a year. We don't think our young folks today would be so willing to take the chance. So though fashions in valentines and love making may change we still haven't altered the custom of observing Feb. 14. Don't let it slip your mind, husbands and sweethearts of St. Joe. You will find most desirable cards at News office for mother, friend, teacher, sweetheart and the children.

OUR ROADS

Have motorists of DeKalb County fully appreciated the system of roads over which we travel, plying our way here and there over the country? This is another of the many things that we have taken for granted but should not. Perhaps we are becoming more aware of our immense net-work of pavement as we see the highways carry loads of trucks, automobiles, motorcycles and bicycles. The fitness of our roads finds us able to move supplies and materials around the country. During the last World War, back in 1917, American roads were practically in the mud compared to what they are today and fortunately, since they will carry at least 40 times the load they carried then. With all of the improvements that have gone on in this country the extending of roads and the improving of them has been a prominent issue. For which we give thanks!

TAKE HEART

There was a slacking in the usual New Year's auto accidents and some one made the remark that he couldn't see why anyone should celebrate the advent of a New Year when the old one was such a flop! Why not look forward? There is before us the first shooting daffodil and the sweet smell of things 'springish,' and isn't this an inducement? Life is reason enough to look forward, life of days of cold followed by filtering sunshine through birch leaves and rain drops glistening on velvety pansy faces. There remains days for enjoying friendship and nights for reading and rest. Of course there is grimness and dispair in the pattern but all of us have certain obligations to society and to ourself. To lose the triumph of watching days lengthen, the ripple of water to shore, the sound of rustling leaves and the shadow of moonlight on a sleeping farm house, to lose all of this we might lose heart. But we haven't lost it, we are soon to enjoy it if you watch those fresh leaves on your calendar.

LINCOLN

It is a question none of us can answer but there still arises the question. What would Lincoln do today? But why should we add our burden to that great man's shoulders who so faithfully bore the cares and worries of his own day. Does he not deserve his peace?

There can be none to say that luck was with this leader of men, borne in a lonely Kentucky cabin of a poor and humble family. The cabin contained no windows but surely from his very birth, did the babe Lincoln see the light as no man before him or after him. From the son of an illiterate farmer to the position of sixteenth president of this United States he climbed to posterity. Truly an American figure starting from the bottom he rose to the pinnacle in statesmanship. He knew hard work for he was a farmer's son who labored from dawn to dark but who still managed to educate himself as he went along. He saw sadness as he saw his mother die. He knew deep grief as he lost his dearly beloved sweetheart and almost let this blow wreck the brave spirit of the man. He attempted to conduct a business by running a small store but failed here. He knew passing political success and then returned to his home a forgotten candidate. Called a "hick lawyer" and coming from "the sticks," as president of his country he was ridiculed by his associates at the capital. He was censored for chosing the wrong men for political posts. He lost his little son as he sat in the highest station in the land. There was talk of impeachment and also of dictatorship from his enemies. He waged a losing war for two years until the tide turned. This great heart was stopped when a crazed man shot the country's president and the tall, gaunt figure passed from the highest office in the land to a surely higher place in his God's house.

So after this suffering and guiding to keep his nation on an even keep, to work out a cause in the way he felt was right, let the man Lincoln sleep his deep sleep which he so justly earned. His devotion to the American principles were vital enough to live after him and equal to the occasion today as during his lifetime.

NEXT MONDAY IS REGISTRATION DAY FOR MEN 20 TO 45

Mr. H. M. Messenger, chairman of the DeKalb County Local Board, together with the members of the board, have completed the following plan for registration.

At St. Joe Town Hall, registration in charge of American Legion Post. Roscoe George, Chief Registrar.

All male persons not previously registered, who attained their twentieth birthday on or before December 31, 1941, and who have not attained their forty-fifth birthday on or before February 16, 1942, must register between 7:00 A. M. and 9:00 P M. on February 16. In other words, all unregistered men who were born between February 17, 1897, and December 31, 1921, must register.

Men between 21 and 36 years of age who registered in 1940 and 1941 are not required to register again, Mr. Messenger said.

While any one who is unavoidably away from his home on Feburary 16 may register at the registration place most convenient on that day, Mr. Messenger said, he urged all DeKalb County registrants to make every effort to register with their own local boards to avoid possible confusion in the future. Any person who must register while away from his home, he warned, should be careful to specify his home address, so that his registration card may be forwarded promptly to his own local board, and to insure that he will be included in its potential manpower to fill calls for quotas.

Special registrars also will be provided to register men who cannot appear at a designated registration place because of illness or other incapacity.

Every man subject to registration who is an inmate of an asylum, jail, penitentiary, reformatory, or similar institution on February 16, is required to register on the day he leaves the institution.

Registrants will be asked:

1. His name.
2. His address.
3. His mailing address, if other than his place of residence.
4. His telephone number.
5. His age in years and date of birth.
6. His place of birth.
7. Name and address of a person who will always know where registrant can be reached.
8. His employer's name and address.
9. Location of his place of employment or business.

After registrants have signed thir cards, they will be given a certificate signed by the registrar which they must carry with them at all times.

National and International Problems Inseperable From Local Welfare Problems.

January 31 marked the end of an era. On that day the great Detroit automobile factories turned out their last cars. The next day marked the beginning of a new era. The motor plants, working on a 24-hour-a-day basis, began the tremendous job of switching to war production. There is a striking symbolism in that change. The automoblie industry is a magnificent example of free enterprise at work to improve the standard of living, and to give the public a better product for less money. But the arts of peace must take a back seat now, and the arts of destruction hold the center of the stage.

What is taking place in Detroit is taking place in all the other industrial areas of this country, in a thousand-and-one different kinds of industry and business. The American production machine is unequaled. Its potential arms capacity is greater than that of all the other powers combined. But we are starting to use this machine at a very late date. Our enemies have a long head start of us. While the democracies were giving their energies to bettering the lot of the people, the total tastes were devoting theirs with ruthless single purpose to the creation of armies, navies and air forces. The most valuable commodity in this war is time, and we must make the most of it, stinting nothing, now.

The series of disasters which have taken place in the Pacific, are a grim testimonial to more than 20 years of blindness, inefficiency and wishful thinking on the part of this country, England and other democracies. So far as the fighting quality of the United Nations troops are concerned, we need have no qualms. It is a fact that in every instance where those troops have met Axis troops on anything resembling even terms, they have emerged victorious. The tiny Dutch navy and air force has inflicted blow after blow against a Japan which is infinitely stronger in every military branch. Empire troops in Malaya took a heavy toll of an enemy which outnumbered them terribly and had virtually complete mastery of sky and sea. A relative handful of American and Filipino soldiers under the great General MacArthur have held off a Japanese army estimated at more than 200,000 men—and they have done that with almost no hope of relief or aid. The tragedy is that MacArthur and other leaders were given so little to work with. We delayed, we refused to read the writing on the wall, we practiced business as usual and politics as usual and strikes as usual, and so the defeats we have suffered became inevitable.

Now there has been some reorganization in government, designed to give it flexibility and speed. Donald Nelson is using the vast powers conferred upon him to cut out dead wood and clear the way for swift and decisive action. Industry is confident of its ability to do the job, no matter how long and arduous it proves to be. As Raymond Clapper recently wrote, "I have talked with executives of the chief automobile companies and I haven't heard a defeatist word. They are making it a matter of personal and firm pride to demonstrate that in war production they can astonish the world just as they did in automobile production." That confident attitude extends thru out all industry.

One of the most difficult jobs for the immediate future will be to mobilize small factories for war work. It is much easier to produce the peace-to-war transition in gigantic industries with their great staffs, endless facilities and vast resources of capital, knowledge and talent. But these great plants can't do the whole job. There are thousands of small plants in this country which can make needed parts, and which possess machine tools and other equipment which must be utilized. Past efforts to do this were ineffectual. Now a new division has been established by Mr. Nelson to deal with the problem, and much is expected. Some think that even one-man ships will be drawn into the vast plan of total war production.

There will be no unemployed soon, save for a scattering of unemployables. The Army will be doubled in size, and that will mean that 4,000,000 or more American men in the prime of life will be serving in uniform. Plans are on foot for putting women to work in jobs that used to be done entirely by men—driving trucks and taxis, performing minor industrial operations, etc. Six months from now the problem will be how to find enough workers. This arms program will require the use of every pair of capable hands in the country.

The Roberts report on the Pearl Harbor debacle, which showed that the main cause of unpreparedness there was lack of cooperation between the commanding officers of the Army and Navy in the Hawaiian Department, has done much to stir agitation for greater unification of the three fighting services.

In the German army, ranking officers are trained in all fields of cambat. An infantry officer understands air warfare and vice versa. In our Army, the commands have been jealous of their own prerogatives, and have often resisted efforts to bring the three branches closer together.

General Marshall, who is no respector of sterile traditions, believes in unification. Changes are being made whose result will be an American Army which will be vastly different from the old, and will be really geared for modern global warfare.

Lincoln's Documents To Be Opened in '47

What will five years from now reveal?

When Robert Todd Lincoln, the martyred President's son, died, he left Abraham Lincoln's private papers for the Library of Congress with the provision their seal may not be broken till 1947.

They reveal something of Lincoln's birth, about which amateur historians, at least, have made quite a mystery. In the past year Judge Felix E. Alley of North Carolina wrote a book in which he claimed proof that John Calhoun, famous South Carolina statesman, was Lincoln's father. The same story had been given circulation before. Authoritative historians, however, have never given it any credence. Nevertheless much material of historical and biographical significance is expected when the papers are made public.

CAMP LIFE IN FLORIDA

No doubt the evenings spent around the camp fire at Stewart's Cabin camp are very enjoyable, from clippings sent The News by Mrs. Fred Hart, who with her husband, Fred, and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hart, were located at this place for the first few weeks of their stay in Florida. Since the weather was slightly cool for a few days, the camp fire made an ideal place for new friends from far and near residing at this camp, to gather and relate their experiences and travels.

At the first meeting 33 gathered for a weiner roast and entertainment. After the supper hour a miscellaneous program was given, which included community singing two original poems, one of them by Mrs. Fred Hart on her trip to the Yellowstone Park, a travelougue of a six weeks trip to Alaska and Yukon territory, and an invitation by Mr. and Mrs. Stewart, owners of the camp, to a deep sea fishing trip. Fred Hart was chairman of this meeting and was made chairman of the season. At another meeting pictures of a trip to Hawaii in colored film were shown by guests who had vacationed there.

A mock wedding was the main feature of one meeting which took place beneath a beautiful arch made of palm branches and built by a florist from Fort Wayne, Ind. The ever jovial Mr. Clyde Hart, as the groom, wearing clothes beyond description stepped beneath the arch with his beautiful bride, who wore a lovely wedding dress of pink and white candle wicking, and carrying an arm bouquet of ferns, foliage and flowers. Another guest performed the ceremony in a very capable manner. This caused much merriment.

One guest from Mendon, Mich., was surprised recently when his friends in Stewart's Camp came to his door singing "Happy Birthday." After the usual visiting, refreshments were served. Friendships are formed in these gatherings and camps that will never be forgotten even tho hundreds of miles separate them after leaving the South.

Lincoln's Voice Down the Ages

President Lincoln, affectionately dubbed "Father Abraham" by the rank and file of his soldiers, always spoke to them in a spirit of comradeship when he visited their camps. His speeches and writings of eighty yeare ago seem like messages to the indomitable men of our Army and the people of America today.

On a sultry August day, 1864, addressing the 166th Ohio Regiment, he declared: "I always feel inclined, when I happen to say anything to soldiers, to impress upon them the importance of success in this contest. It is not merely for today but for all time to come that we should perpetuate for our children's children that great and free government which we have enjoyed all our lives... Still, let us not be over sanguine of a speedy, final triumph. Let us be quite sober. Let us diligently apply the means, never doubting that a just God, in His own good time, will give us the rightful result."

He denied no citizen the right to express an opposing opinion, but he called upon all factions to stand up for the country's defenders. Answering serenaders from the White House portico November 10, 1864, he said: "May I ask those who have not differed with me, to join with me in this same spirit towards those who have? And now let me close by asking three hearty cheers for brave soldiers and seamen, and their gallant and skilful commanders."

Lincoln did not possess the polish of formal society, but no President has paid a more graceful compliment to the work of women of war time. In an address March 18, 1864, he praised their efforts: "I am not accustomed to the language of eulogy. I have never studied the art of paying compliments to women. But I must say, that if all has been said by orators and poets since the creation of the world in praise of women were applied to the women of America, it would not do them justice for their conduct during this war. I will close by saying, God bless the women of America!"

How Lincoln would deal with isolationists and agitators is hinted in the following quotation from Carl Sandburg's biography, THE WAR YEARS:

"Pointing to the death penalty as a requisite of military organization, he (President Lincoln) inquired: 'Must I shoot a simple-minded soldier who deserts, while I must not touch a hair of a wily agitator who induces him to desert? This is none the less injurious when effected by getting a father, or brother or friend into a public meeting, and there working upon his feelings till he is persuaded to write the soldier boy that he is fighting in a bad cause, for a wicked administration of a contemptible government, too weak to arrest and punish him if he shall desert. I think that, in such a case, to silence the agitator and save the boy is not only constitutional, but withal a great mercy.'"

Winter in Florida

INTERESTING LETTER FURNISHED NEWS READERS EACH WEEK CONCERNING LIFE IN SOUTH

By CLYDE E. HART

Port Richey, Fla.
2-4-1942.

To my Indiana Friends:

In my last letter I told you of a trip to Homestead. We visited with Mr. and Mrs. Glen Knepple who live in Whitley County. Mr. Knupple is one of our South Side Market friends, who comes to Florida to raise vegetables.

South Florida is a gambling place in every sense of the word. Miami is a hot bed of gamblers while the farmers and truck growers gamble with the elements. 1941 and 1942 were years of vast losses. They are counting on 1943 to recoup these losses. They sure have fine prospects but a frost or heavy rain may wipe out their chances.

Fishing is good. Fred still holds the title of champion fisherman in Port Richey. He caught two Drum yesterday which averaged four pounds each, besides several smaller ones weighing a pound or more.

A friend of mine from Cincinnati and I took a walk today out to the gulf to see the tide come in. You probably know that they come in and go out twice a day but each day they are one hour later. Some days it rises as much as three feet. It would be well for children if they read these letters to ask their teachers the cause of this rise and fall.

The weather became cooler here last Sunday following the cold spell you had in the North. It was necessary to have some fire in the cabins. A small piece of fatty pine no larger than your foot is all that is needed to make your cabin comfortable. Fatty pine is made up almost wholly of resin which makes an intense heat.

The war seems to be the chief topic of conversation around our campfire each evening and all the questions concerning the conducting the same have been settled? ? ? However, we do have several who have traveled in the Philippines and the East Indies, and they have given us a good description of them.

An old captain of the Marines spent twenty years there and his explanations and descriptions are especially interesting.

Hoping this finds you well and happy, I remain,

Yours truly,
Clyde Hart.

P. S.—Fred just came in from fishing with a big catch of fifty or more today.

DEATH DUE TO NERVOUS BREAKDOWN FOLLOWING THE FLU

Raulen F. Moffett, of Auburn, age 71, died at 10:30 o'clock Sunday morning at the Dr. Bonnell M. Souder Hospital. Death followed a nervous breakdown suffered after a severe attack of influenza. Mr. Moffett entered the hospital three weeks ago.

The deceased was a lifelong resident of DeKalb County. He was born May 9, 1870, in Jackson Township. In 1894 he was married to Euta J. Baltz at Spencerville, and the couple moved to a farm in Spencer Township. Four years later Mr. Moffett went to Auburn and entered the livery business. With the advent of the automobile, he changed his livery barn to an auto storage establishment. He also operated a taxi service for 30 years, until his health failed a few weeks ago.

Mr. Moffett devoted much of his time to activities in the Presbyterian Church and he was an elder and member of the choir. He also was a member of the Wittenberg Brotherhood.

Mrs. Moffett preceded her husband in death four years ago. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Ray Rhoderfer, of Auburn, and Mrs. Paul Adams, of Fort Wayne; a brother, Walter Moffett, of Auburn, and two sisters, Mrs. Emma Irven, of Jackson Township, and Mrs. Orange Herrick, of Fort Wayne.

Funeral services were held at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday at the Presbyterian Church, Rev. Craven officiating and burial in Woodlawn cemetery.

Perry M. Provines, of Jackson Township, is out again after seven weeks confinement to his home. He stated Tuesday in calling at News office that he is taking X-ray treatments for cancer of the stomach and is feeling much improved. He is careful about his eating and expects to slacken up on his farm work. Perry has been a man with a strong constitution and always worked hard, and never sick worthy of mention. We hope for his recovery.

PAVE THE WAY

REGISTRATION OF MEN BETWEEN 21-45 YEARS

The third registration of men under the selective service act started at 7 o'clock Monday morning. It was estimated that 1,600 would register in DeKalb County. Tri-Township reported 101 men, with Walter George as the chief registrar and assisted by members of the local Legion.

The final result of the registration is 1,336. The number is considerably less than anticipated. However, the estimates made by the selective service officers varied. The distribution of the registration over the county as reported by the chief registrars follows: Auburn, 427; Garrett, 393; Butler, 231; Waterloo, 130; St. Joe, 101; Ashley, 54. The total is approximately half of the number that signed up on the first registration day in October, 1940.

The chief registrars filed their reports with the county board in Auburn Monday night. The board met Tuesday and counted the cards. A report by wire of the total number was made to state headquarters at Indianapolis which in turn advised the national headquarters in Washington. On March 9 the boards thru out the nation will meet to shuffle the cards and attach serial numbers.

A report will be made to Indianapolis of the highest serial number. The state office will report the highest serial number in Indiana to Washington. A drawing of the numbers will follow and the order numbers will thus be selected. The order numbers will begin at 10,001 and go up. The new registrants will be added to the rolls behind those who signed up in the first two registrations.

Good humor and wholesome merriment prevailed throughout the entire evening. In the closing hour, songs by the men's gospel quartet were enjoyed. The meeting of good fellowship was ended in song by the entire group, with concluding thanks to their genial friends, Mr. and Mrs. Washler, Mr. Delbert Washler and Miss Marjorie Lott.

HUGH SANDERS A CANDIDATE FOR PROSECUTING ATTORNEY

Attorney Hugh Sanders, a member of the law firm of Atkinson & Sanders in Auburn, announced at the Lincoln Day dinner in Auburn Wednesday evening that he would be a candidate for the Republican nomination of prosecuting attorney for DeKalb County at the primary election on May 5.

Mr. Sanders is 32 years of age and was born and reared in Steuben County. He graduated from the Angola high school and later attended the Anthony Wayne Business college at Fort Wayne. He then entered the Indiana law school at Indianapolis, graduating from that institution. For four years he practiced law at Angola and in the year 1936 he entered a partnership with his father-in-law, E. W. Atkinson, an Auburn attorney, and moved to that city.

Mr. Sanders resides at 1002 No. Main St., Auburn, and has been active in politics and civic affairs in DeKalb County. He has served as city attorney in Auburn since 1938, is district chairman of the Boy Scout finance committee and city chairman of the Red Cross disaster relief committee. Mr. Sanders also served as Auburn and Union Township chairman of the Young Republican Club of DeKalb County.

GILLIE-WILLIS OPPOSE PENSIONS FOR GONGRESS

On December 1, 1941, a bill presented by Congressman Ramspeck, of Georgia, slipped through the House without a roll call which, if left on the statues, would provide pensions for the President, members of the Cabinet, Senators and Congress at age 62, after at least five years of service. Mr. Gillie says: "Your Congressman did not vote for this pension bill; neither did Seator Willis when the bill reached the Senate a month or so later. However, it passed and President Roosevelt signed it on January 24th."

Immediately after the bill was signed into law, a movement was organized to repeal this measure which had also been before Congress two years ago, but which we succeeded in defeating at that time. Many of us are now pressing for action on this matter and hope to force a vote on repeal in the early future.

In my opinion the Ramspeck bill is unwise and should never have been enacted into law. Not only am I oposed to it, but I resent and oppose the secrecy and subterfuge employed to get this bill through the House.

REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN OPENED WEDNESDAY

The Republicans of DeKalb County fired the "opening gun" in their 1942 political campaign in a Lincoln Day Rally at the Chamber of Commerce in Auburn Wednesday night. Candidates for office made their announcement and the issues of the coming campaign were discussed.

The following announcements were made:

Sheriff—Paul Miller, of Garrett.

County surveyor—Wayne T. VanAuken, of Union Township, for renomination.

County auditor — Burley Ensley, of Auburn, for renomination.

County recorder— A. G. Stanley, of Waterloo, for renomination.

County councilman—Clyde Husselman, of Grant Township, for renomination.

Trustee of Concord Township—D. B. Ridgway.

Trustee of Union Township —Guy Myers for renomination.

Ralph Gates, of Columbia City, state chairman of the Republican party, was introduced by Mrs. Lyons, as the principal speaker of the evening.

The state chairman opened his address by declaring that Republicanism is not dead in Indiana, that there is harmony in the party and that he is optimistic about the results this fall. "We face serious days as we go forward with the Republican party," he asserted. "We are facing the same challenge as in the year 1861—whether our liberties and institutions are to be preserved." Mr. Gates said that Indiana is proud of the part it played in the formative years of Abraham Lincoln. The Civil War president lived in Indiana from the age of 7 to 21 years and Mr. Gates is certain that much of the philosophy which he later expounded, must have been injected while he lived in Indiana.

"We are now confronted by two opposing philosophies in the world—whether representative government is to live on or whether totalitarian rule is to take its place. Whether we believe that we should enter the war or stay out is now a question behind us. We must wage war now to preserve Lincoln's philosophy of representative government.

"This is not a war of any political party and I resent the recent statement of Chairman Edward J. Flynn of the Democratic party that it is essential that a Democratic congress be elected in 1942 to carry on the war. I resent his implication that Republicans are not patriotic. Our ancestors stood by Lincoln in the trying days of the Civil War and a Republican congress in 1918 voted every dollar that was necessary to win the first World War. We Republicans are going to stand back of the present war effort, in fact, we're going to lead this war effort. It is a serious question whether the war can be won with such people as Harold Ickes, Mme. Perkins, and Leon Henderson in Washington.

"Winning the war will mean sacrifices never known before. We Republicans are fighting to preserve the two party system in the United States. This form of government has not existed in the past five years—everything has been done by presidential edict. Dictatorship is not the American way of life.

"What must we do to preserve human rights and liberties? We must elect sixty more Republican congressmen in the United States so that we can control the purse strings of the government. In that way we can eliminate all non-essential expenditures, abolish all subsidies to special groups and do away with much of the foolishness in Washington. Many of the departments in the nation's capital are over-staffed. The Republicans will have little hope of carrying the election in 1944 if we lose in 1942. We must save the part of America that is still left. We are confronted with a challenge to preserve the liberties and institutions that have made us the greatest nation in the world."

Good business management made this possible—the same management that produces about ⅞ of the nation's electric power, and now pledges its unending effort to supply millions of Jims with all the power needed to make America POWERFUL!

Continuous production, 24 hours a day, makes tremendous demands on men, machines, and on the electric service that powers practically every operation from blueprint to bomber!

Fortunately, the electric industry was ready when the crisis came—ready with power to turn the eager wheels of almost every armament factory now in operation—ready to meet new needs with new construction

Farmers around St. Joe want to know if they raise cane whether they would be investigated.

They can call them "Victory measles" if they want, but there has never been anything victorious in measles to us before and there isn't now.

Many a St. Joe gardener lays down a seed catalog with visions of roasting ears to go down and fire the furnace.

There is usually good coming out of everything they tell us and perhaps abstaining from pleasure driving may reduce the traffic accidents.

Each wife in St. Joe thinks her husband nicer than the other wife's husband but she wouldn't want her husband to think so.

The pre-view of the new type wartime suit of narrow pants leg, small coat lapels and no trouser cuffs, will look awfully funny on our local fashion plates.

We may be approaching a traffic condition, where it is safe for a man to day-dream as he crosses the street.

According to Ed. Storer the amount of saliva expended on auto tax stamps would be enough to see all American "spit ball" pitchers through an eternity of baseball.

They say we are appreciating music, poetry, friendship, and family more than before the war. Too bad these things can't be as beneficial during peace.

The scientist who says Americans are the healthiest people in the world should have waited until after these added tax burdens to take our blood pressure.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

Always when we are in troubled times there is someone to offer a few words of wisdom uttered by our great heroes and statesmen of the ruffled past when this nation was in the making of being glorious. Of course what was felt to be of the most good for the land during those years of Lincoln and Washington might not hold good internationally in the years of Franklin Roosevelt and Winston Churchill. To think that we should act today in the same manner as they suggested in those early formative years is perhaps questionable since new conditions call for a new handling of them. You can prescribe all sorts of tonics for us today and twenty years from now the remedy would be entirely unfitting for the malady might be treated in a wiser way at that time. But what ever we may say about the passage of time and wisdom, there is still always many truths uttered by our forebears that might well be heeded today. As a statesman whose love for country was inbred, who led his country through a revolutionary movement that achieved a goal of permanent foundation for a brand new government, Washington was a character that balanced his times. He was a builder of democracy and he realized fully that building wisely you must build well and so laid down many anxioms of conduct for his new structure. He was a conservative, feeling that "time and habit are at least as necessary to fix the true character of governments as of other human institutions." He displayed moderation in his temper and in his thought. Consequently he thought out much he said thru this restrained devotion to his country. He handed to us many reasonable charges which have not been out-moded by time. It might benefit us all to read some of George Washington's meditations.

SEED CATALOGUES

Maybe we are a little late getting out the seed catalogue this year with all the other things on our mind, but even attention and Indiana reported that they had 20,000 applications for special plates that have proven a nuisance. The issuing of special plates means time, time of public employees who are paid by the tax payer. Since the mere mention of the word is apt to cause a ten degree raise in blood pressure, surely the nuisance of special license plates ought to be of interest to tax payers.

SPECIAL PLATES

There is not so much time being given to the issuing of special license plates as there used to be. Perhaps you might want your telephone number, wedding anniversary, first child's name or maybe your initials on your license plate and maybe you have been getting it, but chances are you will go back to an ordinary number and letter that doesn't spell anything by state and government taxes. A few states are charging extra for this special

MARRIAGE IN WAR

War brings statistics and we have printed many of them on all sorts of subjects, but up to date we haven't mentioned them in regard to the topic of marriages and births. Perhaps we can go by what England found as typical of war marriages.

At the outbreak of the war in England there was a decided increase in marriages and births, but as war progressed this has altered and shows a decrease. To figure this in our own country it would take a longer time of fighting, the number of casualties that occur and the number of men drafted all affecting the statistics. Taxation will have its affect on war marriages more than any other reason. By limiting incomes to certain amounts and taxing heavier than in normal times through the income tax, marriage during war time in the United States will suffer a drastic change.

"BIKE" RIDING

We go back to bikes as tho we were returning to a means of travel enjoyed back in the pioneering days, that due to a shortage of rubber and gasoline we must take up pedaling to cover the ground is another way of roughing it. Bicycles might not be popular normally with our adults in past years but have been quite common in foreign countries always, where the automobile was not the important family bus that it has been here in St. Joe. Now that we are considering the bike for business purposes we might consider it as a means of improving our health. Of course we don't help our health if we don't observe traffic laws on the highways! There aren't many of us who would choose bicycle riding as a regulation means of exercise, but if we have to pump up we might as well look on the brighter side. Only don't make a business appointment too early if you are planning upon keeping it via bicycle.

National and International Problems Inseperable From Local Welfare Problems.

Few men have any precise knowledge of the extent of American arms production today. And none can or will describe it except in general terms. Facts and figures which could be of any service whatsoever to the enemy are not released or published. It is to the credit of the American press that it has accepted and made workable a "voluntary censorship" system which keeps the American people the best informed in the world, and still makes public nothing which could be used to advantage by the intelligence and espionage services of the Axis powers.

But non-statistical reports are being printed, written by men who have been permitted to see what history is doing for the war effort. At long last, those reports are becoming encouraging. But it is approaching that goal, and in some instances schedules are being exceeded. Industry, big and little, is making the complex change from peace-production to war-production with far greater celerity and economy of motion than many expected. And in Washington, Defense Head Donald Nelson is making use of the unprecedented powers recently given him to weed out bureau heads and employes who threatened to smother the defense drive in red-tape.

The main emphasis is on airplanes. As Time writes, "The world has not yet seen, felt nor imagined the full and awful might of air power." What the Germans did with planes in conquering Europe is regarded as merely the beginning. Ships of almost incredible range, fire-power and load capacity are planned. Today the largest airplane engine in actual production has an output of 2200 horsepower. Designers say that such engines will seem almost tiny by comparison with gigantic ones of the future. Writing some months ago in the Atlantic Monthly, Major de Seversky said: "Research is proceeding successfully on airplane engines that develop as much as 8,000 horsepower!.. ..The super bombers of tomorrow will fly from 50 to 100 tons of explosives....A thousand such craft will accomplish as much destruction in a single action as Germany has been able to score in six months of continuous bombings....At least 200 Coventries could be destroyed."

In the meantime, this country is building planes which reliable experts say are unsurpassed anywhere. The war has made it plain that the bomber is the most effective offensive weapon any nation can use, if it is adequately supported with sea and land power. The United States airplane production schedule involves a very high proportion of giant four-engine ships of the Flying Fortress and Consolidated B-24 types. It is those ships which the Dutch have used so effectively to harry and destroy Japanese shipping and military concentrations. To quote Time once again, "It has already been established that in building the heavy bombers with which air power strikes, the U. S. is far and away ahead of the rest of the world." And the rest of the world combined cannot equal our potential bomber production capacity.

The grave disasters we and our Allies have suffered in the Pacific can be laid to but one thing: lack of supplies and equipment, and a terrible inferiority in airpower. In the Philippines and Malayan campaigns Japan's control of the air has been almost unquestioned. Mere handfuls of Allied planes have gone into action against veritable swarms of enemy planes. The Allied pilots and ships have given a magnificent account of themselves, but in the long run the very weight of numbers wins the day.

That is what we are working for now—to gain for ourselves and the United Nations the vital weight of numbers—in planes, in ships, in guns—which is essential to victory. Everyone who has actually seen action in this war reports that the Jap planes are slower, frailer, poorer-armed than ours. The British report that, plane for plane, they have no doubt of the R. A. F.'s ability to outdo Goering's Luftwaffe. The talk is simply to produce enough equipment, and transport it to the fighting fronts, to overcome the great numerical supremacy the enemy possesses.

That will not be done in a hurry. Churchill has said that at least another year must pass before it will be possible for the Allies to effectively take the offensive. Other authorities plan on a three to five-year war. It will be hard and costly to regain positions the enemy has seized—in the Far East, in Europe, in Africa. The factories of America have been given a production job which is unprecedented in world history. They have accepted that job without reservation.

One country has certainly lost the war. That country is Italy. Late reports indicate she amounts to little more than a German province.

At the present time, Italians are permitted but 3½ ounces of meat a week, 1-5 of a pint of milk a day, and 2½ ounces of butter a month. Even oil, basis of Italian cooking, is limited to half-a-pint per person monthly. Mussolini's German friends are literally bleeding the country white of foodstuffs and other supplies.

To Conquer or to Die!

By GEORGE WASHINGTON

Welcome to the day returning,
Dearer still as ages flow,
While the torch of Faith is burning,
Long as Freedom's altars glow!
—Oliver Wendell Holmes

Editor's Note—One hundred and sixty-six years ago, George Washington addressed a few remarks to his soldiers before the battle of Long Island. Spoken in August, 1776, his first few sentences might well have been addressed to the American people and their armed forces today. The battle against tyranny and for liberty is still on. Washington's introductory remarks on that historic occasion follow:

THE time is new near at hand which must probably determine whether Americans are to be free men or slaves; whether they are to have any property they can call their own; whether their houses and farms are to be pillaged and destroyed; and themselves consigned to a state of wretchedness from which no human effort will deliver them. The fate of unborn millions will now depend, under God, on the courage and conduct of this army. Our cruel and unrelenting enemy leaves us only the choice of a brave resistance, or the most abject submission. We have therefore to resolve to conquer or to die.

Chas. Agler, of Spencerville, Louis Noirot, of St. Joe, Route 1 and Gordon, Martin St. Joe, were classified Tuesday by the county board and placed in class 4 for various reasons.

Lloyd Mason, of Butler, escaped injury but suffered from exposure Monday night when a stake-body truck he was driving swerved off State Road No. 1 two miles south of Cedarville and plunged into swollen Ely Run. The truck was half submerged Mason told Allen County officers that he was following another automobile north which stopped without warning. The truck driver was unable to turn out because of approaching traffic and swung to the berm. Before he could right the truck, it went out of control down the creek bank.

Figures In Auto Accident

John Knight 73, of 4½ miles north of St. Joe, suffered a sprained knee and had his 1932 Ford sedan wrecked in a collision at the intersection of State Road 8 and a county highway east of Auburn at 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, of last week.

Mr. Knight was driving west when Herman Westrick, of Rt. 1, Auburn, approached the corner from the south in a 1928 Dodge sedan. Westrick afterward told Sheriff Artus Coyle that on account of the icy condition of the road he could not stop and his car went into the intersection in front of Knight's machine.

The Knight car went thru Ford Schligel's wire fence and upset. Damage to the Dodge was small.

FORMER ST. JOE GIRL WRITES FROM MONTANA

Bozeman, Montana.
Feb. 10, 1942.

Mr. F. B. Leighty, St. Joe, Ind.
Dear Mr. Leighty:

Enclosed is a check for my subscription to your paper. Although there are few names mentioned in it now that are familiar to me, being a Hoosier I find it pleasant to have this "little bit of Indiana" coming my way.

I am especially interested in your woman's club programs and Farm Bureau doings as I serve on the program committee of my club and my husband is chairman of our Gallatin County Farm Bureau unit.

My father retired from active ministry some time ago on account of poor health. My brother, William, lives in Terre Haute, is married and has a son, three years old.

My own family is growing up fast, one boy being in second year high school, another boy in Junior High, and the little girl in second grade.

Enclosed is a poem I wrote in a sentimental moment several years ago. You many use it when you need a space filler some time, as I wrote it with St. Joe in mind.

Best regards to my old friends, especially those with whom I went to school.

Sincerely yours,
Esther McCaslin Harrer.
(Mrs. W. J.)

OUR TOWN

Somehow, I love out little town,
When lawns are green and shadows fall
In dappled peace on leafy lanes,
O'er-hung by stately trees and tall;
Where children's joyous shouts at dusk,
As sun-glow stains the distant hills,
Are hushed by parent summons home,
And star-lit dark the silence fills;
Where wash-lines billow proudly white,
And friend greets friend by given name,
Where toil is bless'd by Sabbath prayers
Of humble folk unknown to fame.
I think God loves our little town
For in one such long years ago,
He chose for His own to dwell,
And there, in Grace, to manhood grow.

E. M. HARRER.

LANDIS ASKING PENSION FOR PERSONS OVER 60

Representative Gerald Landis, of Indiana, urged that "we had better take care of our elderly citizens before we spend all the money for fan dancers to win the war."

Landis proposed a $40-a-month pension, paid from the federal treasury without the added expense of investigators of all persons more than 60 years of age with an income too small to require them to pay a federal income tax.

"More must be done for the elderly. Most of them are too old to participate in the high wages offered in war plants today, but they will nevertheless be required to pay the high war time prices for the things they must buy. Obviously they will need aid."

Washington, 66, Ready for War Against France

Little Remembered Incident Stirred Up by Modern Turn of Events.

If in the present World war, American relations with France appeared strained at times, history was only repeating itself. For in July, 1798, George Washington, who had then been in retirement at Mount Vernon and had but another year to live, accepted appointment from President John Adams, commander in chief of the American army in a threatened war with France. He was 66 years old and he stipulated exemption from active service save in the case of actual hostilities. Alexander Hamilton was named second in command for immediate purposes.

Until the past year, little has been written about this chapter in French-United States relations. But war there was between the two nations. It was an undeclared war, and the fighting was confined to naval engagements. It was at this period, in fact, that the American navy was born. The department of the navy was created with Benjamin Stoddard as the first secretary of the navy, on June 18, 1798. The American seamen proved their mettle, effectively drove French raiders from American sea lanes, and when Napoleon came in as head of the Directory a peace was effected.

The trouble started when the Jay treaty was negotiated between Great Britain and the United States in 1796. France claimed a permanent alliance with the United States and regarded the Jay treaty as an unfriendly act. It was probably this attitude by France which led Washington in his Farewell Address to warn the American people: "It is our true policy to steer clear of PERMANENT alliances with any portion of the foreign world." But Washington was at pains at the very same time to add: "Taking care always to keep ourselves by suitable establishments on a respectable defensive posture, we may safely trust to TEMPORARY alliances for EXTRAORDINARY emergencies."

Washington had led his countrymen in a successful revolution against Britain. LaFayette, the great French democrat, aided him in no small way. LaFayette's help was sincere. But Washington knew that the aid given by Louis XVI, who was later beheaded for undemocratic rule, was merely for expediency. Washington therefore was neither a Franco-phile nor an Anglophobe. The Jay treaty was concluded under his direction and it smoothed many points commercially and otherwise between England and this country. France had passed its terroristic years of the Revolution and was now governed by a Directorate. Soon French ships began fearful raiding of American vessels, confiscating them, and imprisoning sea men. It was at this point that an American commission, seeking a diplomatic understanding, was asked to pay a secret "loan" of some millions to the Directorate. It was nothing more than a bribe proposal. The "appeasement" was flatly rejected and one of the commissioners, C. C. Pinckney, is credited with saying: "Millions for defense, not one cent for tribute." John Marshall, later chief justice of the U. S. Supreme court, was another of the commissioners, and their report of the "X.Y.Z." affair, as the incident was called, stirred up the nation to a high pitch of excitement.

Like Cincinnatus of old, Washington was ready to leave the peace and quiet he had sought after 45 years of public service. Fortunately the "war" blew over. But once again Washington proved that he was "first in peace, first in war, and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

DIEHL BROTHERS DIE IN THEIR AUTOMOBILE

A defective exhaust-manifold type automobile heater was blamed Monday for the deaths early Sunday of Alfonso Diehl, 48, and his brother, Otto M., 58, both of Harlan.

Bodies of the two men were found in their car hours after it had veered off the highway near Fort Wayne and rolled to a stop almost against the farm home of Herman Poehler. The motor was still running and the lights of the car were still on.

Dr. A. P. Hattendorf, Allen County Coroner, said that carbon monoxide gas, gradually leaking from the heater, had slowly asphyxiated the brothers, who first lost consciousness at 12:30 A. M. when they rolled off the road. Dr. Hattendorf set the time of their death at around 3:00 A. M. and they were not discovered till after 7. A. M.

Neither of the two men was married, and the only survivors are two brothers, Emmett Diehl of Sherwood, Ohio, and Samuel Diehl, of Niles, Michigan.

At one time Otto Diehl operated a store in St. Joe in the west room of the opera house block and later a store at Scio.

ST. JOE NEWS

VOL. LVII (57 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, FEB. 26, 1942 NUMBER 20

Winter in Florida

INTERESTING LETTER FURNISHED NEWS READERS EACH WEEK CONCERNING LIFE IN SOUTH

By CLYDE E. HART

Port Richey, Fla.
2-11-'42.

To my Indiana Friends:

You fishermen along the St. Joe might be interested in that subject. Yesterday five of the campers went deep sea fishing. It was a beautiful day and the gulf was smooth, they started at 6:30 A. M. and went out forty miles. They succeeded in making a good catch of a little more than one hundred and fifty pounds. The largest one caught weighed 14 pounds. The catch consisted of Grouper Black Bass, Grunts, Sail fish and many other varieties which I could not name. In cleaning these fish I found inside of one of the larger ones a fish at least eight inches long, and several smaller ones also a flat piece of lead.

The camp folks enjoyed a fish dinner today, there were thirty-one persons there and we sure did eat fish to out hearts delight.

Last Monday we attended the Florida State Fair which is held at Tampa. They had a very good display of vegetables, citrus fruits, poultry and dairy cattle. It is surprising what great gains have been made in the dairy industry in this state, in the last few years, nearly all the feed is shipped into the state from the North and it sure costs, oats sell for one dollar a bushel and every other feed sells in proportion.

The sky is overcast today and some rain has fallen, of course, this is an exception to the rule and is the second cloudy day we have had in the six weeks we have been here.

This will probably be my last letter as we will leave for home around March first. Hoping you have enjoyed these letters as well as I have in writing them.

So long until I see you.

Clyde Hart.

BIG LOSS SUSTAINED IN FARM FIRE

Monday evening about 6:30 o'clock, fire was discovered in the Aaron Holman barn and chicken house on the Glen Cole farm, one-half mile east of the Widney Orchards, which resulted in the loss of the building and much of the feed and equipment.

Mr. Holman had just been at the home enroute to Newville with a load of feed, and Mrs. Holman had just completed the chores, when Hugh Drake a near neighbor gave the alarm. Hugh Strong appeared on the scene and the two men took the cow out of the barn and removed equipment.

The fire company responded quickly and was able to save a granary and the lean-to cow shed, after heroic fighting.

The barn had been completely repaired by the owners at the time Mr. Holman moved there, was 30x42 feet in size and was a real plant for raising of poultry, and was divided into two rooms.

Mr. Holman had 270 laying hens that were producing three cases of eggs a week, besides 25 choice roosters, and about half of the flock was burned.

The loss to Mr. Holman was $600 with insurance coverage amounting to $300, and to the Coles a loss of $1,000 with $500 insurance coverage.

The building will be replaced in some form, soon as they can decide what will be best.

Card of Thanks

Little do we appreciate the efforts of a fire department until disaster strikes close at home, so we wish to express our deep appreciation for the efforts of the department to save our farm property, and also the kindness of neighbors in their efforts to save everything possible.

Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Holman.
Mr. and Mrs. Glen Cole.

RUBBER IS VITAL TO OUR WAR NEEDS

The following statement was issued by Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, and Jesse Jones, Secretary of Commerce:

It is extremely important that every citizen understand our situation in rubber.

We cannot win the war unless our military forces have an ample supply of rubber. If rubber is lacking our planes can't fly, our tanks can't move, our field guns can't operate, out warships can't function.

It is perfectly true that we have in the United States today a large stockpile of crude rubber. It is also true that more rubber is coming in. In addition, we have started a program to make synthetic rubber which eventually will give us t substantial supply.

Fighting with the Japs is now occurring in the area our rubber comes from. In fact, the Malayan Peninsula from which a large part of our rubber supply is normally obtained is wholly in Japanese possession today. We have to drive them out before we can get any more rubber from that area.

The rubber we have today, plus the rubber that is on its way in and the rubber we shall eventually make in our new factories, is all the new rubber we can count on at this time. There is about enough to enable us to complete our great armament program—but there is not going to be any to spare. We dare not waste any.

So we have made our choice. We go without any new rubber tires for civilian use this year so that we need not go without rubber for our tanks, planes, guns and warships next year. Unless we restrict all civilian use of rubber to the bare essentials, we shall not have enough for our military machine during the next two years.

We are rationing rubber now. We are doing so because it is an absolute military necessity. Every American must understand that the fact that we do have large supplies of rubber in this country does not in the least mean that we civilians may have all we want. It simply means that because some foresight was exercised our military needs during the next couple of years can be met—provided that civilian use is held to the absolute minimum.

We should not be rationing rubber today if our national safety did not depend on it. Everyone of us who is used to riding on rubber without giving the supply a thought should look at his tires and say "That's all there is. There isn't any more"—and proceed accordingly until adequate supplies are once more assured.

Your government is aware of the seriousness of this rubber supply problem and is working on all fronts to alleviate this situation as much as possible.

We need rubber to "keep 'em rolling" for the United States and every one of our allies.

Thy days, our darling one, were few—
An angel's evening visit,
That came and vanished with the dew—
'Twas here—'tis gone—where is it?
I can not tell to what sweet dell
The angels may have borne thee;
But this I know, thou canst not go
Where our hearts will fail to find thee.

Most dogs in St. Joe would rather have their meat off of the bone than out of the can, anyhow.

The youngster who can't remember his geography lesson from one day to another hasn't anything on the history book.

Men should make the best defense workers for they have had so much experience at home.

A youngster was once heard of complaining because he understood there was to be a cod liver oil shortage and there isn't.

Some husbands have already begun to worry about when they are going to start spring housecleaning.

They are forgetting those courses of teaching college girls to fall in love intelligently and dwelling on intelligence in making one egg do the work of two in home making.

With a rubber shortage, how are St. Joe boys going to shoot paper wads?

We are very apt to call a man selfish because he won't do what we want him to do.

One thing about putting up the car, you won't have to listen to back seat driving on a bicycle.

Many things have changed with the years, but what Sherman said about war still goes.

To listen to some radio programs, one would think they had already begun to ration jokes.

As you look around one might almost believe they have begun to ration razor blades.

ON WITH THE GAME

There was current talk of keeping sports going through the land to keep up with the country's morale. The way we look at it, as much as we enjoy sports, there wouldn't be any need of keeping the game going if it was just to keep up our morale. If we haven't the morale to fight and win this war there probably won't be any baseball, football game or prize-night that will give it to us. For the sake of the sport itself, for the benefit of athletics, it is good that we continue to enjoy the games. Of course we realize that baseball especially has felt the effect of war upon its ranks of players, but baseball will be able to put up a show in spite of the draft with its withdrawals. We use sports to work off steam, we need to let out a hurray now and then in the name of athletics for it helps relieve the tension of our lives. Bnt it isn't necessary for sports and public diversions to build up our "fighting morale." England has carried on her athletics for three years and so far there has been no reason for America to discontinue hers.

THE BEST OF FOOD

Someone in St. Joe remarked that he couldn't see why there would be a food shortage since after all we were still feeding the same number of mouths even though many of them were in training camps instead of around the family dining table. There is this answer. The American soldier is receiving more nutritional value in his food than any other soldier in the world. Most soldiers will tell you that their food is good and many will acknowledge that it is better than they were eating at home. They are not only receiving better food in many cases but are getting more of it. The kitchens which feed our selectees watch the menu with regard to improving the physical condition of the men. They go into the subject of scientifically balanced meals that deal with vitamins, using body building minerals and proteins, pep-producing carbohydrates and fats. This wise feeding is producing results in proportion to the efforts expended.

MIRACLE MAKERS

Medical science continues to produce miracles — miracles that cheat death, that give life and health and happiness to mankind.

Writing in the Reader's Digest, Paul de Kruif tells of one of them. In the past, peritonitis following acute appendicitis has meant a death rate running as high as 75 per cent. Each year some 25,000 Americans have died after appendectomies. Medical authorities knew that when an appendix burst, billions of intestinal microbes were sprayed out. But they had no remedy.

But the doctor never admits failure. Experimentation went on. And finally, a way was found to use that amazing saver of life, sulfanilamide, in treating peritonitis: The result, one doctor and his co-workers last year handled 331 successive emergency cases of acute appendicitis—without a single death! Other physicians had comparable success.

"As the news of this simple, powerful science spreads from coast to coast," writes Paul de Kruif, "many thousands of lives will be saved. The humblest backwoods surgeon today can be a more successful death fighter against peritonitis than the greatest knifeman of three years ago. All the citizens who get this news, and all the practicing physicians and surgeons, can now get together in a drive toward this goal: appendicitis mortality—zero!"

The American system of private medicine has been responsible for unrivaled progress in a war which never ends—the war against disease, against pain, against human waste. In these days of military war, with all the new perils to health that world-wide conflict creates, the men of medicine are redoubling their efforts. Their service to this nation and the world cannot be over-estimated in value or praised too highly.

National and International Problems Inseperable From Local Welfare Problems.

The great lesson of World War II is this: Victory belongs to the aggressor—to the nation which carries the battle to the enemy. Hitler and his Axis mates have consistently followed that principle. They have not hesitated to take the greatest risks of the possible gain was worth the gamble. Theirs is the most daring plan of warfare in the history of armed conflict.

The grave losses which the United Nations have taken may be laid, in part, to the once-commonly held belief that it would be possible to fight a defensive war and still win. France pinned her faith on the Maginot Line which her military leaders said was impregnable—and today she is a beaten, starving, slave nation. England at first thought she could bring Hitler to his knees thru the use of that classic weapon, the blockade—and today Hitler is master of all Europe, and exploiter of all its resources. At the beginning, Russia too placed her hopes on defensive positions, such as the so-called "Stalin Line," and saw them destroyed by the invader, almost as if they were made of paper. Not until the fine Russian troops took the offensive was the legend of Nazi invincibility shattered. The last example—and one of the most tragic examples—of the falacy of defensive warfare is found in the fall of Singapore, the greatest naval base ever built in the world. The English believed the Malayan jungles would make land attack on this bastion impossible. The Japs proved otherwise.

Here in our own country, most of us have been "defense minded" instead of "war minded." The great natural barrier provided by our oceans has been our solace. We took pride in our latent power, and thot that no nation, least of all Japan, would dare attack us. And so, at last, decades of defensive, wishful thinking—decades of inaction, decades of avoiding unpleasant truths—have resulted in the grim series of debacles to which we and our Allies have been subjected.

We are changing our views fast now. In military circles, and to a lesser extent in the public mind, the fact that defensive war is losing war is being fully accepted and realized. The blueprints are being made for taking the battle to the foe once our potentially limitless power in men and weapons can be organized. It is significant that our airplane-building program calls for a relatively small proportion of pursuit planes, which are primarily instruments of defense, and for a high proportion of long-range bombers and dive bombers, which are entirely instruments of offense.

Where will the United Nations strike? No man can answer that now. Much will depend on what further successes the Axis achieves. Now that Singapore is gone, tremendous numbers of Jap troops, fully equipped, can be used for the assault on the Dutch East Indies, India, and even Australia. Every position Japan has taken or will take must be won back. There must eventually be air attacks on Japanese industrial areas. Africa—where the German forces under Rommel have retaken much lost ground—must be placed firmly under Allied control. Finally, most military authorities are certain, distasteful as the thought is, that the war cannot be ended without an Allied invasion of Hitler's Europe. He must be beaten, in short, on his home grounds.

This is a project which staggers the imagination. By comparison with this war, World War I was only a skirmish. Its demands on our resources and our population are already infinitely greater—and will become greater still. It is not only possible but probable that it will last five years or more. To recapture lost positions, especially when over-water operations are involved, is almost invariably a slow, costly and tortuous job.

At this moment, the principal American-British task will be to muster sufficient naval strength to deal with the strong German surface fleet which took the incredible risk of attempting to escape from Brest virtually within sight of the Dover Coast—and succeeded. If that fleet is loosed in the Atlantic, as it no doubt will be after repairs are made at Helgoland base, it will be the worst threat which has yet appeared to Britain's long Atlantic lifeline. Its destruction or immobilization is vital.

It may be another year before the United Nations are in a position to wage offensive war on a big scale. But no one can now logically doubt that we must wage that kind of a war if we are to win. The Axis has effectively demolished all past concepts of the potency of defensive warfare.

Sentiment for a sales tax grows in Congressional circles. Reason: there is grave doubt if sufficient increase in individual and corporate taxes to meet current needs, are possible. And sales of Defense Bonds and other government securities can pay for only a small part of the war budget.

A sales tax, it is figured, could produce three or four billion a year without hitting the public too hard!

SAFETY CONTEST IN COUNTY IS PLANNED

The DeKalb County Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance company has announced a youth safety contest to be sponsored by the National Association of Mutual Insurance companies. For eligibility, a participant must have passed his 14th birthday on January 1, 1942 and must not have passed his 22nd birthday on Dec. 31, 1942. He must live on a farm or in a home conversant with farm life.

Three activities are to be included in the contest. First, the participant must inspect three sets of farm buildings and file reports on forms furnished, setting forth any farm hazards. Second, he must write suggestions for correction of fire hazards found and make observations of fire prevention measures used. Third, he will either write a story (500 words or less) telling "What I have learned about fire prevention," or prepare an illustrated booklet dealing with fire prevention.

All inspections and entries must be in the hands of the county committee not later than June 1, 1942. The boy and girl winner in the county must be certified to the state association not later than June 15. County winners will then compete in the state contest, and winners in the latter vie for national prizes.

County prizes, the same going to each boy and girl winner, follow: First, $5; second, $4; third, $3; fourth $2; and fifth, $1.

Cash awards also will be made in the state contest, and the boy and girl winning the national contest will receive an all-expense trip to the national safety convention.

Lester Boger, of Union Township, secretary of the Farmers Mutual, is chairman of the contest. Application blanks may be obtained from him or from the township solicitors of the DeKalb County Mutual Fire Insurance company.

Officers of the DeKalb County Farmers Mutual for the year 1942 include the following: E. E. Turner, of Grant Township, president; Oscar Noel, of Butler Township, vice president; Lester Boger, of Union Township, secretary; Perry Foote, of Richland Township, treasurer, Rooky: Yeh? How about the big West End fire, when I was a kid? Those hydrants were dribblers.

Old Timer: But that was 'fore this town was inspected* by the insurance companies. The whole fire-fighting system's been done over from reservoir to nozzle. That inspection was the best thing ever happened 'round here.

THE LITTLE TOWN
by Mrs. Robert Watt

I like to live in a little town,
Where the trees meet over the street,
And you wave your hand and say "Hello"
To everyone you meet.

I like to stop for a minute,
Outside the grocery store,
And hear the kindly gossip
Of the folks moving in next door.

For life is interwoven,
With the friends you learn to know,
And you feel their joys and sorrows
As they daily come and go.

So I'm glad to live in a little town,
And I care no more to roam,
For every house in a little town
Is more than a house—it's home!

A lady entered a store and asked to be shown some table cloths. A salesman brought a pile, but none suited her.

"Haven't you something new?" she asked.

The clerk then brought another pile and showed them to her.

"These are the newest pattern," he said. "You will notice that the edge runs right around the border and the center is in the middle."

"Isn't that lovely?" said the lady. "I will take half a dozen of those."

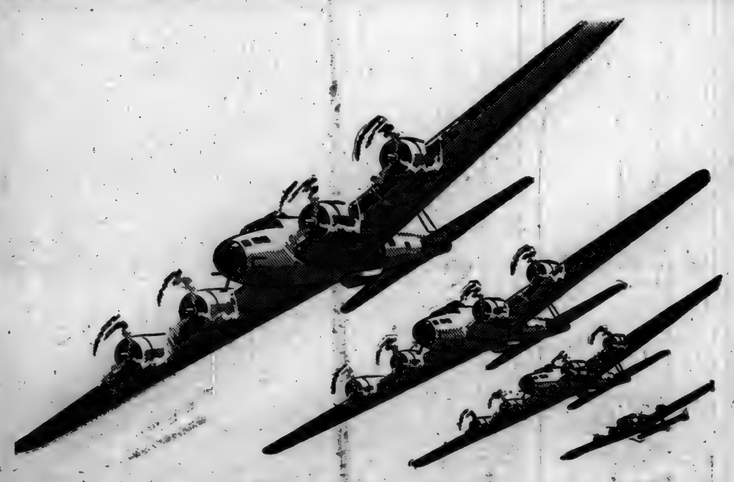
YOU DON'T HAVE TO BE RICH to help American Defense. That's the theme of the above poster, one of the newest of the Defense Savings promotional pieces now going up in streetcars, on bulletin boards, and at other public places. This poster emphasizes the point advanced by the Treasury Department that every American can—and must—pitch in if the United States is to have the arms and the tools necessary to protect her freedom.



Eclipse of the Rising Sun!

• CHALLENGED in two hemispheres, America faces a tremendous test. But the bombers that will blot out the Rising Sun and smash the Swastika are pouring off our production lines.

The biggest industrial job in all history is being done because America has the electric power for the job!

The electric industry was ready when the crisis came. The business men who manage the nation's electric companies had built up power reserves in advance. They were ready, too, to meet new demands with new construction. They added enough power in 1941 to light one-fourth of all the nation's homes.

We're glad that the electric industry has been able to help make Uncle Sam so powerful. We'll stick to the job until the blood-red sun has set and a new day follows darkness!

TAKE IT OR LEAVE IT!

By IROQUOIS DAHL

THE next time Winton C. Phipps of Independence, Va., goes grouse hunting he may take a baseball bat or a tennis racket instead of his gun. According to D. T. Painter, a grouse flushed and flew straight at Phipps, who, not having time for a shot, protected himself by coming to "present arms." The grouse hit the gun, broke its neck and there was general rejoicing.

IT MAY COME

We may be going back to the horse and buggy yet if this production ban, gas and rubber shortage keeps the autos off the road. They inform us that there would be plenty of horses and mules to serve the public needs however. In fact, there are 14,000,000 of these draft animals awaiting the people's pleasure. But the people are not pleased to return to the age of horses and carriages. They are satisfied with keeping the garage for the power buggy and besides the garage is too genteel looking for a horse. In these years the horse has been maintained for fashionable riding and costing a bit to own. It has almost been that just the 'smarter set' could afford to keep riding horses and the poorer fellow stuck to his auto. Would it cost us so much more to buy oats instead of gas, more work to harness the creature or to shine up a car's fenders? Your prestige wouldn't be measured by the wheel base of your horse as it might be by the make and year's model of automobile.

COLLEGES IN LINE

Even colleges are going on war-time schedule, arranging programs to fall in with the plans of the emergency drive. All over the country there are institutions that are making arrangements to shorten the graduation period and bring college courses to an end in three years and less. This setup means that there will be no summer vacation and there will be graduations twice a year. Criticism is raised concerning this rushing the student through in such 'quick' time that he will suffer thru the loss of a more thorough training. Will he wind up with less knowledge and training than in the old days of a four year course? Many of our educators say this will not be so, that the students will get every bit as much training but there will be less leisure in the college course. Saturdays in class rooms, less time for exams, short vacations, if any, all to provide education without a stop during a crises.

SPRING MILLINERY

They are probably going to blame the war for some of these funny looking styles in spring millinery that are upon us. And from what the pictures line up for feminine heads we are of the opinion that war has indeed gone to our heads. Some of the high-crowned "Uncle Sam" stove-pipe numbers with the bill of rights insignia on the side, may be patriotic, but not exactly becoming in our eyes. Anything in the name of patriotism—a sailor's cap on a stout individual, or a chapeau made of cellophane and trimmed in garden vegetables. If St. Joe suffers from the attack there will be many a local man who will remark if war has the millinery trend then Sherman was indeed close to the truth.

ALPHABETICAL HOARDING

The government should immediately investigate the charge that large quantities of copper, aluminum and other scarce metals and materials are being hoarded by Federal power authorities.

That charge has been made on the floor of the House of Representatives. It has been made by reputable publications and informed writers. It has never been disproved or denied. According to these critics, the Rural Electrification Administration, the Bonneville Administration and other such bureaus have been guilty of purchasing and storing unnecessarily large quantities of materials which are vitally needed now

The private electric industry, which provides 90 per cent of all the central-station power in this country—and does it with its own money, not Treasury funds—has pledged itself to operate on an all-out war basis. It has announced that the only limitation on expansion of generating and distributing facilities will be those imposed by scarcity of wire and other needed supplies. In other words, the industry will create new power capacity, wherever needed, just as fast as it can obtain the materials. It cannot expand if those materials are denied it because of hoarding by privileged agencies.

Hoarding by a commercialized branch of government is every bit as serious as hoarding by private enterprise. If the Federal power projects have hoarded scarce supplies, the fact should be made known to the public, and the supplies should at once be made available to productive use.

It is significant that the Federal power agencies accused of hoarding, have been ruthlessly seeking to destroy private enterprise in the power field. They have continued to do that after the declaration of war, despite its obvious depressing effect on military production. It is about time the people were officially and accurately informed as to exactly what the socialists in high places are doing..

FEAR

A four-letter word but one that can bring collapse to a country if once started, and it is FEAR. It is well to remember what starts runs on banks, shakes financial markets and upsets our national system of exchange, closes up insurance companies, makes women rush to buy silk hose, lay in sugar and probably soap. Fear will overcome reason and make housewives buy and store supplies that they don't need but want to be sure they won't be without. Let us take this sugar shortage as an example. Folks started out to ask for sugar from their groceryman when they didn't need it. Sped the rumor from the attack on the Pilippines that there would be a sugar shortage and off to the store the shopper rushed to really lay in a supply in quantities. There we were in the clutches of fear with the government having to ration sugar to keep us from hoarding it. They tell us that there is enough sugar in this country to keep each of us supplied with a pound a week, and surely that is enough from the standpoint of health and hips. Americans lead the world in the number of diabetics so we have evidently consumed more of the product than is good for us. Every time a 16-inch gun is fired, a fifth of an acre of sugar cane is consumed in the form of ethyl alcohol, of which sugar is the major source. Here is an emergency need for sugar but by using our heads in St. Joe and not falling a victim to fear we can keep the 16-inch guns supplied as well as our own tables.

National and International Problems Inseperable From Local Welfare Problems.

A short time ago, Japanese Premier Tojo described, in part, what the Nipponese war lords have in mind in the way of conquest. The present program, he said, involves taking Burma, China, India, the Dutch East Indies and Australia into Japan's so-called "Co-prosperity Sphere." To Americans, that program may seem ambitious and vainglorious. But the hard fact is that Japan has gone a long way in a short time toward reaching her goal of absolute dominance of everything in the Pacific, and the United Nations have so far been able only to slow her down. She has not been stopped anywhere.

The fall of Singapore has added immensely to our military problem. Japanese submarines are operating in the Indian Ocean, across one of the United Nation's vital oil supply lines, and this underseas fleet is expected to receive surface ship support. It is possible that Japan will soon make physical contact with her principal ally, Germany. The situation in Burma, where American supplies go to the aid of the seasoned, hard-fighting Chinese forces, is bad. There, as in Malaya and at Singapore, it has not been possible to supply the defenders with equipment which is in any way comparable to that of the invader.

The situation is further complicated by the fact that Japan has organized a great deal of fifth column activity in Burma —precisely as she did so successfully in Malaya. The natives are controlled by a rich, corrupt clique of priests who have little love for either the Chinese or white races. So the defending forces must fight a war within, even as they fight one without.

The possibility of the loss of Burma, the Indies and other points, including existing United Nations' sea and air bases, must be faced. It may not happen, but there is no room in this grim war for false optimism. If it does happen, the center of Pacific warfare will undoubtedly shift to Australia, which has already suffered air attack at Darwin.

What chance would we and our Allies have to hold that all-important continent? There are certain definite assets on our side. The Australians are magnificent fighters. They have done remarkably well in building up sizable air and armament industries. The continent is divided by a vast desert which is a geographical advantage. Both the British and the Germans have learned, in Libya, how difficult it is to fight on the desert wastes and hold gains.

On the debit side is the fact that Australia, gigantic in area, has a population of only 7,000,000. It is not self-contained and must import to live. And the bulk of its fighting equipment, if it is to have enough, will have to be sent from this country. Today, Australia looks to the United States more than to Britain for the military aid which she needs for survival.

In this connection, it should be pointed out that the lack of adequate war equipment of the United Nations is not entirely a problem of production in this country. There is a shipping problem also. That is why an effort is being made to immensely accelerate our merchant ship output. The success of that effort may, in the long run, prove the key to the winning of the Pacific war.

The experts are saying today that Japan is likely to invade Asiatic Russia this spring. The strategy would be obvious —to help the hard-pressed Nazis, who have been blasted out of many of the positions they intended to use as springboards for a new offensive against the miraculous Red Army. If Japan sends troops into Siberia, it will make the Russian position extremely difficult.

War between Japan and Russia, however, would do one thing for the United Nations. It would provide them with needed Russian air bases, in the Vladivostok area, from which air war could be carried straight to the Japanese cities. From these bases it is only a few hunderd miles to Yokohama, Tokyo and other key cities. Russia has refused their use to her Allies for the reason that, understandably, she doesn't want to have to take on a new major antagonist while she is still up to her ears in the war with Germany.

We must think of this war in terms of global strategy. Each scene of action, each engagement, has a bearing on all the rest. The protection given by oceans grows less and less. It is no wonder that many an expert gloomily predicts that the war may last five years or even ten.

Civilians who believe the artificial rubber program will provide the nation with tires are probably victims of wishful thinking. Best guess is that there will be no civilian rubber whatsoever for the duration of the war—all that can be made or produced will be needed for military purposes.

It is forecast that 35 per cent of America's cars will be off the roads in a year—and that two thirds will be through in two or three years.

NEWS FROM THE OFFICE OF GEORGE W. GILLIE

Washington, D. C.—While the first three months of war in the Pacific have gone badly for the United States, and the outlook for the immediate future is none too bright, Americans have wisely refused to become panicky or demoralized by initial set-backs on our far-flung battlefronts. Instead there has sprung up a grim determination to prosecute the war relentlessly, making whatever sacrifices are necessary to ultimate victory.

If lack of preparedness and equipment accounts for early defeats, the equipment and materials must and will be built and directed to where they are the most needed. Americans remember that it is the last battle—not the first—which wins wars The Axis nations have won the first round in this war. America must win the last.

No time must be wasted in useless arguments over what should or should not have been done; all time must be devoted to getting ourselves into a position to emerge victorious from the conflict. This is the time for rearmament and not recrimination. A time for action not acrimon.y A period of work rather than worry. In that manner and with that spirit America cannot fail to finish the job successfully.

Big Jobs for Little States

Embassy row at the Nation's Capitol isn't what it used to be. Many foreign embassies are closed for the duration. Others are so completely occupied by war time activities that peace time pursuits are practically eliminated.

With almost half the World at war with the other half, warring States are hard put to find neutral embassies to look after their interests in warring countries. Only three nations are now considered neutrals—Switzerland, Sweden and Portugal. All of the complicated matters of American financial interests in Japan, Japanese interests in America, and so on around the world have to be handled through these three embassies.

As the war continues and as the fighting grows more violent, the complicated problems of tracing ownership, exchange of wounded prisoners, return of marooned diplomatic officials and newspaper men, and dozens of others are all routed through these important but isolated little nations.

Tires for Farmers

Some time ago your correspondent urged upon Price Adminstrator Henderson the importance of giving special consideration to farmers in the rationing of automobile tires. It was pointed out that original restrictions were not reasonable when applied to farmers who depend upon motor transportation to get to town to sell their produce and transact business. Since food is to be an essential factor in winning this war, it is therefore essential that America's food producers be granted tire concessions which will permit them to stay on the farm and produce this food.

In a ruling recently published, Mr. Henderson granted the concessions requested, stating in a letter that, "The revised Tire Rationing Program provides for the rationing of retreaded tires and retreading materials, as well as new tires. Farm trucks and trailers used to transport produce to market and supplies to the farm are eligible, with certain restrictions, for new tires. If a farmer does not possess a truck or other practical means of transporting his produce, under the Revised Regulations, he becomes eligible for the purchase of retreaded tires to be used on passenger cars."

Agency Initials Confusing

Nothing seems to thrive in Washington as well as Government Boards, Commissions, Bureaus and Departments. Of late years, they have increasingly been identified by their initials rather than their full names. This came near to putting the "WPA" in charge of America's war effort!

It was originally planned to name Donald Nelson's new all-powerful agency the War Productions Administration, but since this would prove confusing with the already existing WPA, the name was changed to War Productions Board and so WPB now identifies the supreme command of America's production-for-victory drive.

NEWS FROM COUNTY AGENT

GARDEN VEGETABLES

All garden vegetables are benefitted by having a liberal amount of fertility in the soil. The fertility should be readily and also slowly available to the plant to care for plant growth requirements throughout the season, according to Purdue University agricultural extension specialists.

Unless there are sufficient mineral elements in the soil, the plants may become dwarfed and fall short of full development as well as production. There are several ways of supplying the soil with the essential plant foods and Hoosier gardeners are urged to use whatever is available.

Manure could be applied profitably at the rate of 20 to 40 loads per acre with lesser amounts of the more concentrated kind, such as poultry and sheep manure. Manure should be applied during the late winter and early spring and at least two weeks before plowing. Manure supplies quite a few of the necessary mineral elements as well as organic matter.

If manure is not available, 300 to 500 pounds per acre of O-20-20 (phosphate and potash) fertilizer broadcast over the garden just before plowing will be beneficial to any garden soil. When this material is plowed under, the plant food will be in the bottom portion of the seed bed.

Nitrogen may be supplied as a top or side dressing to the growing plants. Neither seed nor roots of transplants should come in direct contact with the commercial fertilizer.

Wise Landlords Give Tenants Home Garden

Wise landlords and employers generally provide a free farm garden spot for the renter or the regular hired laborer's family, says O. G. Lloyd, head of the Purdue University farm management department and an authority on farm leases.

Many of the most capable farm renters and regularly hired labor have farm gardens with small fruits and perennial vegetables. Grapes, currants, raspberries and strawberries with asparagus, rhubarb and horseradish provide little labor competition with major crop and livestock enterprises.

Wise landlords and employers make an acre or less ground available for the use of the renter or hired man's family. The living furnished by the farm is obtained at cost of production prices and therefore contributes to the thrift and social values of country life.

In 1940, Indiana had more than 50,000 farms on which renter families lived and more than 10,000 farms where labor, hired by the month was employed.

Few renter and hired man families, it is stated, are respected by their landlords and employers who live out of a grocery store instead of taking advantage of the living furnished by the farm at so low a cost and with so much satisfaction.

HOOSIER HOME FRONT

For Release Week of March 1. Bulletin No. 1

Every day the impact of the war grows heavier on the Hoosier civilian home front, both industrial and agricultural. Almost every day it is necessary to give up more of the things of peace so that Indiana may produce her share of the weapons of war and the food for our armies.

But the process has just begun. In the end it may require more sacrifice that we can now imagine. Leon Henderson, Price Administrator, has warned that we are necessarily heading for a new low standard of living because of war effort.

How does that come about in Indiana? Well, a good many hundreds of persons who a few months ago were producing civilian goods now are making powder in the greatest powder factory in all the world—in Indiana.

A good many hundreds of carpenters and other construction workers who, not so long ago, were building dwellings and new filling stations and commercial buildings now are engaged in constructing a new and even larger powder factory and a new, huge army cantonment—here in Indiana.

One of the largest hosiery mills in all the world—here in Indiana — recently scrapped more than a million dollars worth of perfectly good machinery for knitting silk hose and today is installing machinery to make parachutes and other textile weapons.

The great auto factories of Anderson and South Bend and the great refrigerator plants at Evansville have dropped their peacetime business and are converting their plants to make war goods.

And those who know in Washington warn that these changes came, and more will come, because we have learned bitterly the folly of half way measures even since Pearl Harbor.

The amazing extent of the war effort might be illustrated this way: The location and estimated tonnage of scrap metal of every auto graveyard in Indiana today is a matter of record—an army secret—and a War Production Board field man is seeing to it that this scrap gets to the mills and back into the war assembly lines...a temporary ceiling on prices of used egg crates has been fixed by Washington in order to control the price of eggs (for Indiana prices are fixed at Grade 1, 26 cents; Grade 2, 21 cents and Grade 3, 16 cents per case)....manufacturers of sporting firearms have been ordered to make no further deliveries of 12-gauge shotguns, except for official war use....more than a half million burlap bags will be returned to the wool growers by the mills for this year's clip, a move to conserve burlap.

These and hundreds of other orders, touching almost every conceivable thing, from the glycerine content of soap to the conversion of million dollar industries, cannot fail to alter the life of every individual in some way. And more are coming.

But there's a silver lining department, too. Washington announced that Hoosier homes and institutions will be able to buy tin cans for use when the canning season starts; that the Hoosier "bread basket" farmers will be able to buy fertilizer for his fields at prices no higher than "any seller of fertilizer at retail did business during the five day period from February 16-20 inclusive." This price regulation will be in effect for 60 days and then be supplanted by a permanent ceiling....March tire and tube quotas for Indiana are substantially larger than those provided for rationing to eligible vehicles in the preceding month. This may help take care of some counties where huge construction projects for war have created localized tire-tube headaches. Indiana's March quota for passenger cars, motorcycles and light trucks is 2929 new tires and 2452 new tubes for passenger cars, motorcycles and light trucks; and 7450 new tires, 8373 new tubes, and 3207 retreaded tires for trucks and busses.

And if anyone still thinks the war effort hasn't touched him, and still hopes to escape, let him remember—sugar rationing is just around the corner.

POWER—where it's needed!

• The amphibian tractor—a startling product of American industrial ingenuity—delivers military power where it will do the most good.

The electric network—another example of industrial resourcefulness—connects hundreds of operating electric companies and delivers electric power at points of need.

Built up by the business men who manage America's electric companies and produce ⅔ of America's power, this nation-wide web of electric lines has proved its vital value in the war emergency—by providing power for tank and plane plants, shipyards and arsenals almost anywhere overnight.

The careful, planned production of electric power will continue—we pledge it—until the war is won—until America's tractors turn from dealing death to planting peaceful fields.

Mr. Harley Struble, of Lima, Ohio, brother of Mrs. Henry Shroyer, was her guest over Saturday evening and Sunday. H. C. McCarthy and wife, of Fort Wayne, were also Sunday guests.

THESE VANDALS IN CREAM DAMAGE ITS GOODNESS

Bacteria are so very tiny that many thousands of them could be put on the period at the end of this sentence, yet the farmer must wage a continuous battle against them lest they deprive him of his livelihood.

The production of cream is a perfect example of this struggle. From the time the farmer draws the milk from his cow's udder until the minute he delivers the cream to the creamery or his cream buyer, he must be alert every minute lest the bacteria get the upper hand, outsmart him and nullify the hours of care and attention he has invested in his product.

In the case of cream, the farmer must be doubly alert. For here he is dealing with a product which contains a small number of bacteria even as it comes from the cow's udder. Exposure to air causes these bacteria to multiply rapidly and unless this process is halted the product soon becomes unsuitable for food. This is the reason dairy authorities urge farmers to separate the milk immediately after milking and then quickly cool the cream. Quick cooling puts a stop to the multiplication of the bacteria and preserves the quality of the cream.

But most of the bacteria which appear in milk get there after it is drawn from the cow. Carelessness in milking or insufficient attention to cleanliness are the principal reasons for the presence of this second batch of bacteria (illustrated above). Dust, loose hair, imperfectly cleaned utensils are among the principal external sources of bacteria. Once the causes are understood, the remedies suggest themselves. Milking a clean cow with clean, dry hands, the use of a seamless, hooded pail, with perhaps a filter-type strainer for further protection provides the complete answer, according to these same dairy authorities.

VOL. LVII (57 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, MAR. 12, 1942 NUMBER 11

L. L. C. ELECTS OFFICERS

The Ladies Literary Club of St. Joe met at the home of Mrs. Inez Chapman on Wednesday evening, March 4. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Leslie Wilbern, and the Club Collect was read by Mrs. Chas. O. Krise.

The lesson for the evening was taken from Reader's Digest Books, and entitled, "Singing in the Wilderness" which was written by Donald Culross Peattie, was presented by Miss Elizabeth Smith. "Singing in the Wilderness," subtitled, "A Salute to John James Audubon," is essentially and notably an American Book. Our country; its woods and prairies and rivers; its horizons, geographic and spiritual; its early eagerness, and its hope and courage in the face of adversity—they are all here, sung by a poet, described by a naturalist, and interpreted by a philosopher. Miss Smith showed pictures of the many birds found in America and concluded her lesson with a poem entitled "The Song of the Flamingo and the Turtle."

The critic's report for the evening was given and the secretary's report was read and accepted. Old and new business was taken care of and reports from several committees were given.

The following were elected as officers for the next club year, with Mrs. Frank Curie, presiding: president, Mrs. Leslie Wilbern; vice-president, Mrs. Charles O. Krise; recording secretary, Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Carl Perkins; treasurer, Mrs. Harvey Hull; critic, Mrs. Fred B. Leighty, and parliamentarian, Miss Elizabeth Smith.

The meeting was then adjourned. There were sixteen active members and one guest, Mrs. Margery Ramsey. Refreshments were served at Keeler's Restaurant.

Next meeting will be Wednesday evening, March 18 at the home of Mrs. John R. Leighty at 7:30, CWT.

WE HOPE!

"When the trumpet of the Lord shall sound,
And time shall be no more"—
That time is here my brother,
As its never been before.
We used to have one good old time,
We gauged it by the sun—
When he 'rose we called it morning,
When he set the day was done.

But now that good old time is past,
Gone with the days of yore,
We set our clocks to suit ourselves,
There is no time no more.
First, back in nineteen-seventeen,
We got into some scrapping.
We turned our clocks one hour ahead
To catch the Kaiser napping.

We called that "Daylight Saving Time"
Just why nobody knows—
The sun went down the same old time,
The same old time he 'rose.
And now again the god of war
Has raised his ugly head,
But we will win the vic'try, if
We turn our clocks ahead.

So up they go. Ha! Mr. Sun
Just watch us get in step,
Your old, and slow and obsolete—
And you don't have the 'pep.'
In Congress there's a move on foot,
To get you fired, they say,
And in your place a movie star,
Would shine to light our day.

New Dealers call this "War Time"
With it we'll win the fight,
Republicans say "Defense Time"
Some call it "Dynamite."
The name makes little difference,
For on Ararat's rugged face,
This staggering, reeling world, at last,
Will find a resting place.

'Till then, Oh God of Gideon,
As well the Sun should stay,
Nor change its course in heaven,
Nor night give place to day.
When power-crazed men have ceased to fight
When earth has dried her tears,
We will turn our clocks to "Peace Time"
That will last a million years.

—Written by Mrs. Gertrude Borthwick, St. Joe, Ind.

May Present Petitions

Candidates for office in DeKalb County may present petitions with their declarations if they desire.

Secretary of State James M. Tucker, of Indianapolis, announced that he also would accept petitions with declarations, but would require only the declarations.

Attorney General George Beamer made public an opinion recently to the effect that under the present law petitions signed by voters are not needed and the state board of election commissioners followed with a corroborative ruling. However, it is expected that some candidates will take the trouble to file petitions in order to forestall any trouble in the future if the act repealing the petition law is attacked in the courts.

The period for filing declarations is thirty days in length. Candidates for state, legislative, judicial and congressional offices file with the secretary of state; those for county and township offices and for precinct committeemen file with the county clerk; and for city offices with the city clerk. The necessary forms are available and telephone calls and telegrams will not be accepted.

Kent Woodcox, of Providence, R. I., and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Woodcox, is here for a short stay. Kent has been attending college and has decided that he would like to enter the air corps of the United States. He met his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vance Woodcox at their farm home Sunday. Seven months of special training will be required and Kent feels confident he will be able to meet every requirement in this branch of the service.

MANSFIELD MAKES A BULLS-EYE RECORD

A letter from Henry Mansfield, who is stationed at Fort Leonardwood, Mo., stating that he has gone through a rigid test in sharp shooting just recently, and he came out victorious and was given a medal. The wind was strong that day and Henry had to apply all the skill he possessed, but was successful in hitting the bulls-eye sixteen times out of 20 shots, and was one of four high out of forty men. That's a record to be proud of and he can attribute his success to to the training here when he spent much of his time in hunting.

BOYS HOME FROM CAMP

Kenneth Ridgway arrived home from Camp Leonard, Saturday morning and remained with his parents until Sunday morning. His mother was at Hobart, and came home on the B. & O. train Saturday afternoon when she learned of his arrival. Robert Musser was also home over Sunday from a camp in the East and upon his return will be sent to the West Coast. The boys were glad to be home, if only for a day.

FROM FORT JACKSON

A line from Frank Shull, who has been stationed at Fort Jackson, S. C., said, we have been delayed in leaving camp, but I am sure we will leave by Tuesday and will stay at our port of embarkation a few days before being shipped. We are going fully equipped. We may come back to Fort Jackson in three months. Tell the neighbors and friends that I am in good health and that the doctor examined me and "I was fine." His latest address is: Frank Shull, A. P. CHAPMANS EXPERIENCED A BLACKOUT

"We have settled down after last week's excitement. Santa Baraba is about one hundred miles from us so we did not get in on that affair but we had ring-side seats for the plane episode.

"The sirens awakened me about 2:30 A. M. Sirens are not unusual but these howled steadily for about five minutes. So I knew it was an air-raid—but being a typical American I just thought nothing could happen. However in about ten minutes the guns started booming. Max was nervous and wanted me to sit in he closet but I said 'nothing doing.' If we are going to be bombed I am going to see it.

"So we went out of doors. We are well out of the anti-air craft gun range but of course we could see and hear them. There were about twenty search lights piercing the sky and the shells were bursting at the point where the lights came together. Looked just like the Fourth of July.

"Things calmed down by four o'clock and we went back to bed. We got up at 6 o'clock and it is still dark at this time. We had no lights so we fumbled around in the dark. I got breakfast by the light of the toaster.

"Max got ready for work but the air-raid wardens had stopped all traffic, so he had to wait until the all-clear siren sounded, about 7:30. And now no one knows just what happened. There is no hysteria out here. Almost everyone is working on defense and they all know they have a job to do and so do it as calmly as possible.

"The Japs are being moved out. I do not know just what is being done with them but I will not be surprised if you get some of them. Although you are in the mid-west you probably know as much about what is going on as we do."

Love, Eloise.

JAMES HAMILTON WRITES MOTHER ABOUT WORK

U S. Naval Reserve Aviation Base March 4, 1942.

Dear Mother:

Received your letter today, was very glad to hear from you. Received the box of candy and picture, thanks.

I presume you wonder how I got here. I took a mental test the same time I volunteered for submarine duty at Great Lakes Training School, Great Lakes, Illinois, also passed 100 per cent in health, but before they got to me they had enough boys for submarine duty so they sent me here, just what I had wanted to do, and was I glad. All you have to do is study and obey orders and everything is swell.

We had our first test today since coming here, one fellow got 100 per cent, I got 90 which the corporal said was very good and I was glad again. I am on guard duty every fourth day with a 45 on my side, this place is guarded very close.

The weather has been quite warm the last few days, and hope it stays the same.

The barracks are not finished so we stay in the city five miles away and back to the airport each day. You ask me if I had a buddy. One of the finest in the world. I sure like the Navy, in fact, I think I'll spend the rest of my life in the Navy.

Say hello to everyone and tell them to write. My address, 3525 Harrison St., Kansas City, Mo. The first of April I will have another stripe on my sleeve. Well so long for now and lots of love.

Your Sailor Jim.

WASTE NOT

No one needs to tell us that we are a very wasteful country. In St Joe we admit it but are willing to help put a stop to it if by so doing we will assist in putting an end to this war. Perhaps it is because America has always had such an abundance of everything that we have become a nation to forget a shortage in our needs. By advertising products and offering attractive prices Americans have been sold on the idea of purchasing new, rather than using up the old. It might have been alright then, but not today. Of course we all know it is necessary to sacrifice luxuries during a war and few who haven't already tasted of the denial, but even at this there is no such acute shortage as has been facing the other nations, especially the Axis powers, who for a long time past have been sacrificing as they built up their machine for the present conflict. They have been even cutting down on the necessities in order to be ready to strike. We are today having far more in the way of food and materials than other countries have been having for years. But now we consider what we can get along without, pulling out of trunks in the attic certain castoffs that might be fixed, bringing out of the shed and garage discarded items that might come in handy again. But daily we must bear in mind that there are many things which we thoughtlessly waste that are vital in defense, to squander them will prolong the war. We can help by carrying our packages than to have them deivered since this saves gasoline and rubber for trucks. Save old scrap iron and remember the vast amount we shipped to Japan a few years ago and what she has done with it! Don't burn paper and cardboard since you already know of its importance. Tell your merchant to save his paper bags if you can carry the article without, or not have a parcel wrapped if unnecessary even though it has been customary.

WE CAN'T TALK

There has been critism in England of discrepencies on the part of the highest office to the lower of the matter of conducting this war. This is hardly a fight of any kind but that when the going gets tough, some of the fans want to change managers and coaches. They blame the score on the other fellow. There has been no doubt but that the situation is severe enough to cause grimness on the part of a people who have undergone a severe strain for a long time. Patience is difficult to practice without a letting off of steam during a three year stretch and without finding fault because the home team meets with reverses. England has had her hands full, has borne her trials nobly and her people have served as examples of courage under pressure. They have been singing "Rule Britannia" in key for over three years of this wearisome fray while we are newcomers to the fight and haven't yet begun to realize that this is a war to the death. Americans cannot afford to criticize England in her quarrel for surely we have enough to occupy our hands and minds right here at home. The Pearl Harbor failure is reason enough for us to look to our own lack of co-operation among the nation's branches of military service. Enough to keep us busy for quite a spell!

LOTS OF CARS

With all of the wailing over the automobile famine, the disaster in the cutting down of business to both manufacturer, dealer and the buying public, we can take a look back at last year's production of autos and see where many men saw this coming and bought cars before the scarcity arose. The Automotive News sends out its report for the 1941 production of cars and trucks and figures are the highest since the peak in 1929. The total for 1941 is over 5,000,000 which proves that while many garages hold some pretty old models that there are a lot of folks with new cars on hand and with good treatment they will have them shining for several years to come. We do not know what the future business will be in the automobile industry and it is using only common sense to take care of our cars today.

SEWING TO SAVE

A woman of St. Joe says that one of the most sensible of 'special weeks' on our calendar is the sew and save week. There is a principle of reasoning back of it even though it may originate with merchandizing in view. Always the guarding of family budgets, using of remnants, of altering hems and side seams, designing new models, comes into this picture of sewing to save. Women feel there are so many attractive patterns of materials and guides to assembling and finishing which make the work more simple, that almost anyone can sew today and do it well. You don't have to fumgle in the dark. Sewing is fascinating work to many women and when the men folks can't tell whether the woman wears an outfit that speaks of large style centers and actually came from the yard goods department of the local store, then that is really putting the needle where it belongs, as we see it.

INTO MARCH

It won't be long before the north winds that sweep from across the street moaning of winter's chill, will undergo a change and sound a more cheerful note and boom with less force. They will temper themselves to the approaching season and realize they must give way to the sun which is climbing higher week by week. The days are lengthening and daylight makes nature anticipate a revival of bloom. Comes the first stirrings from a deep sleep with plans for activity. We aren't opposed to winter here in our town for there is a friendliness that comes with fireside chats, evenings spent with the children doing home work round the dining room table, babies sleeping soundly upstairs, maybe a crowd stopping in after the game, some good reading and radio to enjoy before going to bed, so snuggly tucked inside against the blasts. Winter is a visiting time in St. Joe. But as the sun rides higher and brings us spring we will make ready for the shifting of scenery and season.

PERIOD TO FILE MORTGAGE EXEMPTIONS

The annual period for the filing of mortgage exemptions opened Monday, March 2, and continues to Monday, May 4. Claims for soldiers' exemptions may be filed in March and April only.

A standard form, known as No. 5, is in use for mortgage exemptions and County Auditor Burley Ensley advises that this is the only one acceptable. It is necessary to place the amount of the assessed valuation of the real estate and improvements in the affidavit. In case the mortgagor is not a resident of the county where the affidavit is filed the form must be prepared in duplicate, a copy then being sent to the county where the owner resides in order to check against exemptions beyond the legal limit.

Approximately 2,000 DeKalb County people take advantage of this law and in most cases the exemption is the maximum allowed. The description of the property, the name of the holder of the mortgage and its amount, the volume number and page number in the recorder's office, must be set out in the blank and the instrument must be sworn to before a notary public.

The law also provides that any soldier or sailor who served three months or more in the army or navy during the Mexican or Civil War and who shall have reached the age of seventy years or more may have $1,000 deducted from his taxable property where the assessed value of his taxables does not exceed $5,000 as shown by the tax duplicates for that year, and the balance constitutes the basis of taxation.

The widow of any soldier or sailor who shall have reached the age of sixty years or more is entitled to a like exemption. Soldiers and sailors of other wars have the same rights, but must have like qualifications as to age, etc.

The News is prepared to take care of this work for any wishing its services and will see that the instrument is recorded, when all the information needed is not furnished by the owner of the property.

See those "Mystery Pal" cards at News office.

VOL. LVII (57 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, MAR. 12, 1942 NUMBER 11

BOND SUNDAY FOR INDIANA APRIL 12

For the first time in 125 years of state history, Indiana voters will go to the polls Sunday, April 12, not to name public officials or to vote in a referendum, but to register their voluntary participation in the nation's drive to finance its greatest war by sale of Defense Bonds.

The day, which for the first time will see the two political parties join hands at the polls, will be known as "Bond Sunday." Significantly, it follows Easter Sunday by one week.

For the sake of state-wide unity in the war financing effort, leaders and precinct officials of both parties will work together on Bond Sunday setting up machinery for the registration and opening their poll books three weeks before the May 5 primary elections.

Originated by Indiana Defense Savings Staff Chairman Eugene C. Pulliam and Administrator Wray E. Fleming, Bond Sunday may set a pattern for other states in the nation. The one-day polling emphasizes voluntary participation in war-savngs. It replaces the long-drawn-out house-to-house convass method used in Liberty bond Drives in World War I.

Bond Sunday, because it is predicated on a voluntary pledging plan and because it will call on everyone in the state to visit his precinct polling place, embraces principles as democratic as the ideals for which America is fighting in World War II.

Nearly 4,000 polling places decorated by Defense Savings posters and with the national colors by American Legion Auxiliary members and staffed by workers of both political parties and by American Legion poll captains will open at noon following church services. Between noon and 8 P. M., when polls will close, almost everyone in the state will sign a pledge form indicating to what extent he is participating or will participate by investment of Defense Bonds. The pledging will be secret, with the pledger to receive one copy of the form and two additional copies to be placed in government envelopes for mailing to Indiana Defense Savings Staff in Indianapolis. Thus will the complete Bond Sunday poll-call of Hoosier families be made in exactly 8 hours.

Each registrant will be given a window sticker for display in his home to show that he is doing his share. The stickers will be obtained only after the pledge form is signed and only by those who sign pledge forms.

"The pledge form signed on Bond Sunday does not necessarily represent an additional or duplicate pledge," said Mr. Pulliam. "Object of the pledging is to put the whole Defense Savings program on a uniform basis, with everyone signing the same form at the same time. The pledges will provide a comprehensive registration and give recognition to those already taking part, in some way, in the bond investment program."

It was explained that those who because of illness or absence cannot go to the polls on Bond Sunday may mail pledge forms to Executive Chairman in their areas. Pledge forms, which will be reproduced in all newspapers of the state, can be clipped from the papers and used by those absentees instead of the actual forms available at the polls.

Churches of many denominations have asked to take part in Bond Sunday, some with special services and prayer and all with announcements reminding church-goers to go to the polls during the afternoon or evening.

LIONS CLUB BANQUET ST. JOE-SPENCERVILLE BASKET BALL TEAMS

BOB NULF TALKS ON ATHLETICS AND DEFENSE

The St. Joe and Spencerville basket ball boys were entertained Monday night by the Lions Club at the Akins Tea Room with a 98% attendance. Bob Nulf, coach at North Side High School in Fort Wayne, made the talk of the evening.

He said he had been interested in athletics all his life, went to college with athletics in mind, and after he was placed in the management of athletics, he began to wonder whether the schools and the players were getting the good out of it. At a recent meeting of coaches at Detroit, in conjunction with government representatives of Army and Navy, he changed his mind completely, because these men stressed the fact that boys who had experienced the training for school athletics were much more able to safely care for themselves in time of war, because they had been taught to think fast, were physically alert and keen. Not that the schools are training for war, but if in their program they can actually train the boys for such an emergency as war, then all the efforts were not merely wasted.

The government has recognized this training as vital for physical fitness and has set up a program of physical development in four of the induction centers, and here three months of rugged athletic training is being given. The boys who have had this athletic training are recognized as tops in all classifications of boys chosen throughout the country for military service.

Training such as given in the smaller schools, as ours, gives the boys a desire to do things, to win games, not just merely play because they like athletics.

Physical training creat e s four things in those who take part, sportsmanship, nerve, loyalty and courage and in fact, these are essential for any undertaking of life as well. Champions are soon forgotten unless they are men who possess these four qualities.

The St. Joe and Spencerville teams were friendly enemies, they play to win of course, but one had to give in to the other every time they played, and this is the essential training for youth.

"We have a great conflict ahead," said Mr. Nulf, "and we are all a part of a big team, and must all go on regardless of mistakes and do our utmost to win this war which we are in."

Spencerville members will entertan on April 6, and this will be ladies night.

GLEN MILLER WRITE OF AIR RAID EXCITEMENT

3293 Lynwood Rd.,
Lynwood, Calif.
March 1, 1942.

Dear Cousins:

I am indebted to both you and Belle's for letters received since I wrote letters to either of you and I cannot remember which of you I heard from last, so I shall make this do for both of your families as they would be very similar in contents at this time as far as news from here is concerned. I had intended to write you immediately after the excitement of a few nights ago but when I learned that the newspapers were not agreed on the details of what actually occurred I decided to wait until I had more authentic information, but as it does not appear to be forthcoming I have decided to give you my version of what we saw and heard.

We were staying a t J. Glenn's house which is on high ground and overlooking much of Los Angeles, Hollywood, Santa Monica and the beach cities, so we had quite a wonderful view. I happened to be awake when the sirens began to screem and thought at first it was ambulances or fire alarms, but when they continued several minutes I spoke to Nell and she immediately got out of bed—it was about 2:30 A. M.—and called the children and turned on the radio.

When we found that all radio stations were off the air we began to look for the worst. Within three or four minutes from the first alarm all city lights were out and the long shafts of search light beams were criss-crossing the sky and quickly covering on the object of their search which they followed in its course for perhaps 30 minutes, under a thundering barrage of anti-aircraft guns which were plainly visible when they fired and as the shells exploded.

We were strongly reminded of Francis Scott Key as we watched "the rockets red glare and bombs bursting in air." No one appeared to be afraid nor the least bit excited, particularly at the time, but I beleve people are now more war conscious than before, especially since the government has been evacuating the Japs by the thousands from the coast area. There can be no doubt that they have full information of everything that will be of value to fifth columnists.

We have been living between J. Glenn's and Vera's but plan to get located more permanently soon. We have enjoyed the winter immensely. One of our former Ordway bankers is spending the winter near here and he calls for me frequently with his car and we spend lots of time together. We are all quite well and trust this will find everything O. K. with you.

Sincerely, Glen.

Operation of Electric Brooders

By S. A. Anderson
Agricultural Eng. Department
Purdue University

Electric brooders have proved to be safe, practical and economical in operation on many Indiana farms. Seven years of tests on electric brooders have been completed at the Purdue Experimental farm near Bedford during which 14,315 chicks were brooded with electrical heat in six standard 10x12 portable brooder houses. Brooders of different makes were used in these houses each year during the months of February, March April, and May and during that time without the aid of supplementary heat. The records from these tests answer many questions regarding the operation of electric brooders.

What does it cost to brood chicks with electric heat? The average cost of electricity for brooding the 14,315 chicks in the tests was one and one-half cents per chick raised or approximately $5.50 per brood of 350 chicks. This cost was based upon a charge of three cents per kilowatt hour for electrical energy, a rate available in practically all areas of Indiana.

How did outside temperatures effect this cost? The cost ranged from three-fourths cent per chick raised during the late spring period to two and three-fourths cents per chick raised in the winter months. A well insulated brooder should be selected for cold weather brooding.

Did cold weather cause a greater loss of chicks in the unheated houses? No. The mortality of chicks averaged 4.4 per cent for all of the tests. However, the loss of chicks under the group of brooders started earliest in the season averaged slightly lower, 3.9 per cent. This mortality was unusually low and should not be contributed entirely to the use of electric heat. Healthy chicks, proper feeding, and good management played an important part in reducing losses.

Is supplementary heat necessary for the brooder house? No. The loss of chicks was exceptionally low in these tests. Chicks will no become chilled if they have access to a warm hover and are trained to go under it. Keep a layer of from two to three inches of litter under the hover at all times to prevent heat losses. Train the chicks by completely surrounding the hover with a guard for the first few days. A roll of sheet metal approximately one foot high and long enough to allow three feet of open space around the hover will prevent drafts and make an excellent guard. The feed and water vessels should be placed near the edge of the hover when the chicks are small.

What temperatures should be used under the hover? Follow the recommendations of the manufacturer of your brooder. The brooders used in these tests were operated according to the manufacturer's instructions and the results indicate their practiceablity.

How mank chicks should be placed under a hover of given size? For winter brooding 15 chicks may be brooded per square foot of space under the hover. As many as 20 chicks may be brooded in the same area during late March, April, and May. Do not over-crowd the brooder house, however. More than 350 chicks are not recommended for a 10 by 12 foot house.

How much ventilation of the brooder house is required? Plenty. The electric brooder does not heat the brooder house. Closed windows will not make the house warmer but will cause dampness. Open the windows as much as possible. On windy days, close the windows only enough to prevent floor drafts. If freezing temperature occurs place the water founts under the hover.

What size of wire is necessary for wiring to the brooder house? The size of wire depends upon the wattage of the brooder and the distance at which the brooder house is located from the transformer. Consult the rural representative of your supplying company for reliable information on this question. Too small a wire will increase the cost of operating the brooder. Also have the wiring installed properly since carelessness may create a fire hazard.

HOOSIER HOME FRONT

For Release Week of March 1. Bulletin No. 1

It's spring again. The world is at war, and that means this to Indiana:

Industrial workers in the war effort must produce 25 per cent more bombs and tanks, guns and planes than they have been producing—for the armed forces.

Farmers must produce all the food their farms can grow—for the armed forces and for the civilian population.

And it also means that day after day through the spring and summer and until the war ends, each person is going to make more and more sacrifices as more and more materials go into war goods. The effect of this is being felt, slowly but certainly, in the retail stores.

Big and little things have happened in the last few days that eventually will affect each Hoosier some way. For instance, the WPB has telegraphed manufacturers of binder twine made of agave fiber that it may be delivered during March and April to persons having contracts to sew sand bags. Previously such twine was reserved for agricultural products.....Donald M. Nelson, War Production Board chief, has ordered that war contracts be negotiated in the future, instead of being awarded on the basis of competitive bidding. That means that the war effort will be greatly speeded and that fewer and fewer civilian goods will be produced....Effective March 30, men's suits will be made without trouser cuffs, patch pockets, pleats, tucks, bellows and there will be no vests for double-breasted suits....rents in the South Bend area have been ordered back to January 1, 1941 levels by the OPA, and more such orders are on the way.....

To produce all this war goods, scrap metal is badly needed. Farmers have been asked to gather all on their farms and sell it. The drive is being conducted by the County War Boards of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Adams County in Indiana has made a fine record. From 777 farms a total of 332,036 pounds of scarp metals was collected. That, translated in war language, is 3220 aerial bombs.

Any farmer wanting to install electricity on his farm or to expand his present equipment will have to get a priority rating to do so....in applying for such a rating, he should show that the current is needed to run labor-saving devices made necessary because of the increased work and the scarcity of farm labor, if such are the cases. The priorities office, 14th Floor, Circle Tower, Indianapolis, can be of much help to him.

There's a touch of silver lining, too. An Indiana firm has developed a new type glass canning jar, light but engineered for durability, that will take care of whatever shortage in canning equipment the war demand for tin creates.... protective price regulations have been placed on 15 canned vegetables and 11 canned frunits by the OPA. Maximum ceilings were set at the highest prices at which sellers did business during the five days between February 23rd and February 27th. Protected foods are apples, apple sauce, apricots, cherries (red, sour pitted,) cherries (sweet,) fruit cocktail, fruit salad, peaches, pineapples, plums, asparagus, beans (all dry varieties,) lima beans, green and wax beans, beets, carrots, corn, peas, pumpkins, saure kruat, spinach, sweet potatoes, tomatoes, catsup and tomato juice.

Moreover, your government recognizes that if you are to produce as you never have produced before, you will need recreation and relaxation. To see to it that this costs you no more than it should, the OPA has asked manufacturers of all sporting goods and hunting and fishing equipment to prevent prices from advancing beyond those in effect Jan. 10, 1942, and to rescind any advances since that date...OPA also says that tire and tube quotas allotted to counties have been revised on the basis of need shown by the extent of war activities and seasonal operations such as farming or lumbering, which ought to take in a good many Indiana counties and cure these defense construction area headaches.

Speaking of autos and spring—here's a tip. Instead of draining your auto radiators of the anti-freeze mixture and allowing it to waste, save it. Drain it into containers, seal them, and put them in a cool place. Next fall, pour it back into your car. Because next fall you may not be able to buy new anti-freeze. The ingredients are needed for military purposes.

And so it goes. There may be no new or retreaded tires for civilian cars for three years or longer, Leon Henderson says.... Double present taxes on incomes under $10,000 a year, Secretary Morganthau asks Congress....convert industries from unessential production to war production at an ever-increasing rate, WPB chief Nelson demands.

It is as President Roosevelt said, "This crucial spring."

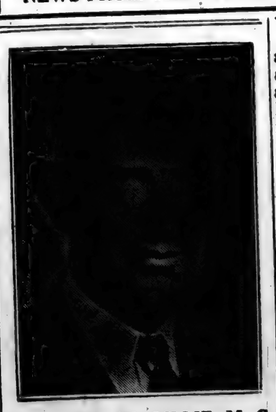
NEWS FROM THE OFFICE OF GEORGE W. GILLIE



HON. GEO. W. GILLIE, M. C.

Washington, D. C—Washington staged a highly successful "Blackout" this week—a dress rehearsal for any eventuality that might happen—and as an Air Raid Warden, assigned to patrol duty, your Congressman had a close-up view of its operations.

A tour of the city revealed very few violations of the law, which provided a penalty of $300 for anyone refusing to comply with blackout regulations. Most of the violations were caused by householders who attempted to comply, but whose operations were not wholly successful. In these cases the violators were warned but no arrests were made.

Even the large hotels such as the Willard, the Mayflower and the Carlton were as black as the proverbial ace of spades. Downstown restaurants remained open, but successfully extinguished all outside lights. It was quite an experience to go through a black door and find light and business as usual inside. The customary glitter of the movie palaces was reduced to the feeble glow of two or three blue lights.

The blackout was not without its humorous side. Stores did a rushing business on black curtains, flashlights, black oilcloth and other necessities for several days before the 10-hour "Lights Out." The next morning long lines formed in the same stores with people returning the blackout material in an attempt to exchange it for other merchandise. This of course defeated the purpose of rehearsal which was to force householders to provide themselves with the necessary materials for use in an emergency. It is hoped that not many were successful in returning their purchases.

Our American Government

One of the purposes of these weekly newsletters is to make available to constituents as many as possible of the free Government services and helps which everybody pays taxes to help provide and to which Hoosiers are entitled if they but request them.

This office has come into possession of a goodly supply of official pamphlets entitled "Our American Government. What is it? How Does It Function," Printed as a House Document, the booklets contain 252 questions and answers concerning every phase of Government operations, and are popular for use in family quiz questions.

A copy of this pamphlet should be in every American home. Send a post card or letter to Congressman George W. Gillie, House Office, Washington, D. C., and one will promptly be forwarded to you.

Japs Hurt Tax Collections

It may seem a far cry from the fall of Singapore to the decline of tax collections in America but the formula of cause and effect is there just the same. In brief it is: "No cars, No Gas—No Gas, no Taxes."

Last year motor vehicle ownership and operation yielded in taxes the vast amount of two billion, four-hundred seventy-four million dollars. More than half of this went to build and repair highways.

Rubber shortages are greatly curtailing all types of commercial and pleasure driving, thereby reducing gas consumption to the point where tax collectors have begun to notice an acute reduction in their collections of gasoline taxes. Taxing bodies already are studying various substitute taxes to raise the funds formerly collected from the ownership and operation of motor vehicles.

Hints To Visitors

Wartime precautions have placed restrictions on several sights of interest in Washington formerly open to the visiting public, and the result is expected to be a sharp drop in the Spring and Summer tourist trade. No longer are visitors from "the States" welcome at the White House. Also closed is the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, Extra precautions are likewise being taken in the Capitol Building, and only vistors personally accompanied by their Congressman or a member of his staff are being admitted to the galleries of the House and Senate. A bomb was placed in the Senate wing of the Capitol in the last war and considerable damage was done.

Washington has changed from the tourist center to the war center of the World, and prospective visitors are being urged to delay their trips to the Capital until after the war has been won.

ALERT FARMERS GET READY FOR SPRING

Many thousands of Indiana farmers have checked their farm machinery, purchased new machines, ordered repairs that were needed and have their equipment ready to roll for summer work, today reported R. C. Shipman, Purdue University extension agricultural engineer.

The farmer who has not yet placed his orders for essential repairs and has not decided what new equipment he will need to carry on, despite the farm labor shortage, may be out of luck when actual farming operations begin, warned Shipman.

There is still time, if it is done immediately to get farm machinery in shape so that it will not break down and thus cause valuable time to be lost this summer when every minute counts, the engineer said.

More efficient operation of farm machinery, more work accomplished with less power, more work accomplished each hour of the day are factors that will make possible the increased production of food needed for the war effort.

Repairing farm machinery before the busy season is a good farm practice at any time, but now, when the country is at war, it is every farmer's duty to have his machinery ready for work, he said. Large supplies of materials that were ordinarily used for making farm equipment are now being used to produce tanks, airplanes, and other war supplies.

Machinery manufacturers will not be able to furnish all the new equipment that would ordinarily be purchased. This means that every farmer will need to take better care of the equipment on hand, make it last longer, and keep it working to the best advantage.

No farmer in Indiana should want for information or help on his mid-winter machinery repair problems. Machinery dealers and their service departments are ready to give assistance on those jobs that cannot be done on the farm. Each county has a farm machinery repair organization consisting of the county U. S. D. A. war board, township committeemen, the county agricultural agent, vocational agricultural instructors, farm machinery dealers, blacksmiths, welding shops and other supplies of machinery repairs and service. Every farmer who has not already done so is urged to obtain a farm machinery check list from this organization, list all repairs needed for his farm equipment, and then order them immediately from his local dealer.

Many repairs can be avoided by properly adjusting, operating, and caring for farm machines. The plow lifting clutch or the pawls in the wheel of the hay rake may not be working because they are gummed up by last year's dust; washing out with kerosene may be all that is necessary.

The binder canvas or the draper on the grain combine, stored in a dry place where it will not be damaged by mice, may prevent delay. Worn knife head guides on the mower cutter bar may need replacing to keep the knife bar from breaking.

Four common causes of worn out farm machinery are:

1. Loose nuts and bolts on frame parts allowing bearings and working parts to get out of line.
2. Rusting or corrosion of parts while in storage, causing rapid wear when in use.
3. Lack of proper lubrication or failure to oil fast moving parts often enough.
4. Operating machines at too high speed or overloading.

Paying particular attention to these four items will help to keep more form machinery rolling with less repairs. Not only is a saving of new machinery necessary but also a saving of repair parts means more equipment for the armed forces.

National and International Problems Inseperable From Local Welfare Problems.

There can be no question of Japan's intention to absolutely dominate all of Asia and the East Pacific, and to completely drive the white races from that vast, rich, little-developed area. For many years, Japanese foreign and military policy has been based squarely on the principle of "Asia for the Asiatics," and her statesmen and warlords publicly affirm that doctrine at every opportunity.

In addition, many an authority is convinced that, incredible as it may seem, Japan also intends to dominate and rule the world.

Basis for this belief is found in the famous—or infamous—"Tanaka Memorial." This astonishing document, so the story goes, was conceived and prepared by Baron Giichi Tanaka and handed by him to Emporer Hirohito in July, 1927. The Emperor, the story continues, gave it his seal of approval and ever since it has been the official guide for Japanese diplomatic, naval and military strategy.

A copy of this Memorial, according to the accepted story, was stolen by an agent of Felix Dzershinsky, who used to be the chief of the Russia Cheka and was considered one of the ablest spies in the world. When the text of the Memorial was made public, the Japanese government promptly branded it a forgery. But Leon Trotsky, who was Soviet War Commissar at the time of the incident, insisted that it was absolutely genuine, and accurately represented Japan's program for world conquest.

The Memorial runs to some 10,000 words. It states that Japan must first conquer Manchuria, Inner Mongolia and other provinces—ends which Nippon has already achieved in whole or in part. It states further that this must be followed by seizure and conquest of the Philippines, Thailand, Malaya, Singapore, the South Sea Islands, and Australia. Everyone who has followed the news since that fateful December 7 of last year, knows that Japan is doing in that direction.

These Japanese victories, it continues, will permit the subjugation of India, and once that is accomplished, the way will be paved for invasion of Asia Minor and Europe. And, says the Memorial flatly, to achieve these goals, it will be necessary to crush the United States, and defeat Great Britain, Russia and other Pacific and Asiatic powers.

Additional evidence of Japan's intentions is found in a speech made some time ago by an Admiral who is now in command of Nipponese naval forces. He said that his ambition was to invade, conquer and occupy the Pacific Coast, to drive the defending forces back toward the Middle West, and so eventually dictate the terms of peace to a helpless President in the White House at Washington.

The Japanese have obviously placed great faith in their enemies' indolence, blindness, and pacific ways of thinking. The faith that has already paid them great dividends. They have built up a highly efficient fifth column organization, which played a major part in the Malaya and Singapore disasters. Experts believe that a long-established organization of that kind exists in this country, and that unless it is destroyed we may suffer a disaster even greater than Pearl Harbor, somewhere within our continental boundaries—probably on the Pacific Coast, with its great plane factories, water-power plants, etc.

At any rate, all must have learned by now the suicidal folly of underestimating Japan, and of believing that we could end a Pacific war with unqualified victory in a matter of weeks or months, as we were long told. The Jap is a wily, cruel, fatalistic and intelligent enemy. His weapons and equipment are superbly well suited, from a military standpoint, to the various campaigns he has undertaken. He has been checked only by men who are his match in intelligence and foresightedness—such as General MacArthur. Wherever he has been opposed by armies headed by commanders who blindly believed that he wouldn't dare to attack them, as in Singapore, he has won with relative ease and with astounding speed.

The shake-ups in the United Nations' military cammands have been salutary. The American, British and Dutch commanders who have been given the vast job of repairing the mistakes made by their predecessors and building a military machine capable of attacking the enemy, are all of the daring type. They aren't bound by red tape and sterile traditions. Their heads haven't been turned by the gold braid of their uniforms. The recent naval engagements, in which tremendous damage has been inflicted on Japanese troops and naval vessels, are considered models of modern strategy—strategy which is based on offensive, not defensive action. The work of these men, and the magnificent soldiers and sailors under them, augurs well for the cause of the United Nations.

If you happen to come in contact with any military information of any kind, keep it to yourself. The government is now pushing a determined "serve in silence" drive and it it being given the full cooperation of industry.

Many a ship has been sunk because someone talked too much. Telling what you know about military matters amounts to giving "lip service" to the enemy with a vengeance. He has spies here aplenty—and you never know who they are.

NEWS FROM COUNTY AGENT

To correct a rather general misimpression among Indiana farmers in need of farm machinery, equipment, and repair parts, Priorities Division of the Office of Producton Management, Washington, D. C., says that "retail consumers cannot and must not be expected to produce reference rating certificates when placing normal orders for finished goods," it was explained today by Purdue agricultural specialists.

In the confusion incident to attacks upon the United States by Axis powers, says OPM, many distributors of consumers' goods have told their customers they cannot sell to them unless their orders are accompanied by preference rating certificates. This seems to have been most prevalent among dealers who handle metal products, particularly in the farm machinery and hand-tool fields.

In the case of important civilian items as for example, farm machinery and spare parts for privately owned automobiles and trucks, Priorities Division has given assistance to manufacturers so that they may continue their production. Goods manufactured as a result of this assistance are then made available thru the normal trade channels, and retail buyers in general do not need, and have not been issued, preference rating certificates.

FARM MACHINE MAKERS OFFER INSTRUCTIONS, PARTS BOOKS

Indiana farmers, now being urged to check their farm equipment for needed repairs, may discover they can not locate the "instructions and parts book" for various implements. If so, they may be interested to know that farm implement manufacturers have informed Purdue University agricultural engineers that such booklets are now being made available.

This offer by the manufacturers, say Purdue agricultural engineers, is an opportunity for farmers to compile a complete file of such necessary information as an aid in ordering proper parts in the future.

Farmers are being urged to order needed implement repairs immediately to permit manufacturers an opportunity to fill all orders before the cropping season arrives. Only by making known now the repairs needed will manufacturers be able to meet the demands, it is reported.

ELECTRIC PIG BROODERS MAY CUT EARLY SPRING PIG LOSS

Indiana farmers may reduce pig loss in early spring litters and increase rate of gain to weaning time by building a simple, electrically heated pig brooder in the corner of each farrowing pen, according to S. A. Anderson, Purdue University agricultural engineer.

Home-made electric brooders tested by Purdue University in co-operation with the U. S. Department of Agriculture proved highly effective as pig-savers. Of 299 pigs farrowed alive in pens equipped with electric brooders, 245 or 82 per cent were alive at weaning time. Only 70.6 per cent of 113 pigs farrowed alive in pens without brooders were still alive at weaning time. Electricity used during the test period averaged only 27 kilowatt hours per litter.

Easy to build, the brooder is made by nailing a few boards tightly together from guard-rail, about 10 inches above the floor, in the corner of the pen. A circular hole 14 inches in diameter is cut in the center of the boards, and a reflector with light socket is fitted over the hole. A 150 watt bulb supplies the heat.

Individual farrowing houses, such as "A-type" houses, may be fitted with electric brooders too. Some hog raisers set out A-type houses side by side, and wire the brooders from a single line with a contact switch at the entrance of each house.

Pig brooders not only protect pigs from cold, but lesson danger of their being crushed by the sow. Light and heat attract pigs, and keep them in the corner under shelter of the guard-rail extension except when they are feeding.

TAX VALUATION ON MANY ITEMS HIGHER

With the market value increased, the valuation of many items of personal property, including livestock and used automobiles, will be listed higher this year by the assessors, County Assessor Chas. E. Miser pointed out Tuesday. However, there will be fewer new cars to assess and mercantile stocks and industrial inventories will probably be found smaller, so that the total of all assessments may not be increased over a year ago.

When the assessors started their annual canvass Monday, they had instructions to follow these tentative maximum appraisements: Horses, $125; mules, $125; cows, $80; cattle, $60; sheep, $10; sows, $40; hogs, $20; poultry, $8 a dozen; potatoes, $1 a bushel; hay, $12 a ton; wheat, $1.22 a bushel; oats, 50 cents a bushel; corn, $1.20 cwt.; diamonds, $200 a carat, and foxes, $4 each.

A person who owns the same automobile as a year ago will probably have his car assessed about the same as at that time. The average increase in valuation of used cars will be about 8 per cent.

The state board of tax commissioners furnished each assessor a schedule for assessment of slot machines, metal, lever pull type, at a minimum of $100 and the wood cabinet type at $200. Pin ball machines range from $150 to $250. Cigarette vending machines are to be valued at $100 to $200, candy vending machines at $50 to $100, music boxes at $300 to $500, pop vending machines, with refrgeration, at $500 and pop coolers (ice) at $50.

Slot Machine Instructions

The assessors were instructed that slot machines, vending machines of all kinds and music boxes should be assessde against the person in whose possession they are found when the assessor makes his assessment, with the understanding that the assessment will be removed if the actual owners files a schedule for the property with the assessor. It was stated that the best procedure is to obtain a list of machines from the actual owner or agent, together with the location of each machine, and then make the assessment against the actual owner or agent.

The tax on dogs is payable to the assessor when he calls. The rate is $1 for male and unsexed dogs, $3 for females and $5 for each additional dog at the same location.

The law provides, Mr. Miser said that the assessors visit the homes of all householders to list the personal property. He sugegsted that married couples make a list of their property including the make and model of the automobile, in order to be prepared when the assessor calls.

The assessing season closes May 15, but the assessors will try to have their calls all made by May 1, so that the remainder of the period may be used to do the book work and check on the assessments listed.

In all the townships in DeKalb County excepting Union and Keyser the township trustees act as the twonship assessors. E. O. Likens is the Union Township assessor and his field deputies are Joe Miller and Chas. Kinsey. S. D. Johnston has as his field deputies in Keyser Township Floyd Jones, Wm. Bardsley, Edward Miller and B. J. Gorrell. Deputies in other townships follow: Wilmington, Ralph Lucy; Smithfield, Mrs. Lee Wise, wife of the trustee; Jackson, Jesse Wright, and Spencer, Vinton L. Miller.

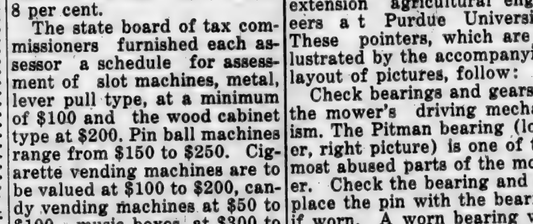
WELL COOKED FOOD BUILDS HEALTH—



MANY GARDEN SEEDS WILL BE AVAILABLE

The vegetable seed situation is much more favorable at the present time than a few months ago. There is likely to be a small shortage of some varieties of vegetables, but generally anyone wishing to plant beans, beets, carrots, spinach, and cauliflower and other vegetables is expected to find some seed or all varieties available. The more common varieties are in ample quantities. Thus reports W. B. Ward, Purdue extension gardener.

This does not mean that there will be seed to waste, warns the specialist, but with careful planning there will be an available supply for the late summer and fall gardens. It is thought wise to buy garden seed early and to select by variety, such as stringless green pod, rather than just bean seed.

"Do not expect your seed dealer to be a gardener and to be able to tell you what to plant, but go to him with a list of what you want," states Ward. It is also advisable to have in mind other varieties just in case the "sold out" sign is in evidence for any desired variety.

Some few varieties of vegetables may be hard to get from any dealer after the supply is once exhausted and each gardener is urged to order the entire season's supply at one time and early. This will not only make unnecessary another trip to the store, but will permit the general public to know that there will be some extra seed for planting if they wish it.

SUGGESTIONS MADE ON REPAIRING OF MOWER

Since the mower is one piece of farm machinery that must be ready to operate when the hay season arrives, County Agricultural Agent C. E. Baker today said that it behooves every farmer to make sure now that his mower is in harvest condition.

He called attention to some suggestions just received from extension agricultural engineers at Purdue University. These pointers, which are illustrated by the accompanying layout of pictures, follow:

Check bearings and gears in the mower's driving mechanism. The Pitman bearing (lower, right picture) is one of the most abused parts of the mower. Check the bearing and replace the pin with the bearing if worn. A worn bearing will cause heating even if plenty of good oil is used.

Wear at the knife head and worn plates on the cutter bar (upper, left picture) often cause breaks in the mower sickle. Replacement of the knife head and worn plates to remove this play will eliminate broken sickles and the loss of valuable harvest time.

Sharp ledger plates allow the cutter bar to cut grass without undue strain on the driving parts. Ledger plates can be replaced by driving out the rivet to remove the old plate. New plates can be riveted in place with a punch (lower, left picture.)

A sharp sickle enables the mower to operate easily. Replace all broken sections on the sickle (upper, right picture.)

"Check the mower now," urged Baker, "and then order the necessary parts at once before the supply is exhausted."

Now, More Than Ever, It's . . . . . GIVE AND TAKE

In these days of National Emergency, our country is asking every one to do his share and more for National defense. Farmers are asked to GIVE more farm produce, to raise more livestock. But for what you give, there are certain things you can be pretty sure you will TAKE in return.

For example, if you use electricity skillfully for production purposes it will lighten your labors, speed up farm tasks, put extra cash in your pocket book. That's what it's doing for thousands of other farmers in all sections of the country.

Here are a few of the ways that electricity can help you produce more with less labor — electric brooders for raising chicks; lights in the hen house and drinking water warmers for more eggs; motors for grinding feed and pumping water; milkers for cows; refrigeration for cooling milk; sterilizers for cleaning utensils.

These and many others will enable you to GIVE much needed produce and livestock to the supply of foods required to win the war and at the same time increase your TAKE and put your farm on a better paying basis.

VOL. LVII (57 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, MAR. 19, 1942 NUMBER 12

COMMUNITY VISITED BY STORM MONDAY

The wind blew, the lightning flashed, the hail and the rain fell, and darkness covered the earth for a time, Monday afternoon, and as a result the river and creek spread beyond their banks, windows were broken, roofs were torn loose, and many of the hail punctured them so that considerable damage was the result.

You can now understand what really took place in St. Joe Monday afternoon and everyone declares that they have never experienced such a storm in local history.

Hail measurng 4 and 5 inches in circumference and weighing four ounces were picked up, and in great quantities, in all shapes and some of them beautiful in design despite their destruction.

Damages reported thus far are all slight none of them being serious to any property.

BEGIN DISTRIBUTION OF '42 HIGHWAY MAPS

Distribution of 1942 state highway maps was begun today when the first copies were received from the printers, S. C. Hadden, chairman of the State Highway Commission, reported. The new map features a number of changes, designed to make it more useful to motorists traveling over Indiana's ten thousand miles of state highways.

The 1942 map has been dedicated by the Commission to Harry Bodine who had been in charge of the state highway map department for the past 23 years and whose death several weeks ago came at a time when major work on the new map had been completed. The map carries the following dedication, "This issue of the Indiana State Highway Map is respectfully and gratefully dedicated to the memory of, Harry Bodine, map engineer, who prepared all Indiana Highway maps from 1919 to 1942."

Copies may be obtained at News office.

TO WORK ON WACO AIRCRAFT AT TROY, OHIO

John Haverstock left Sunday morning for Troy, Ohio where he will take charge of the Purchasing Department for the Waco Aircraft Co. Company acceptance of his application came the day following his intervew with officials at the Troy plant.

The family will remain in St. Joe pending the locating of suitable living quarters. Mr. Haverstock has been employed with the Farnsworth Television Company, at Ft. Wayne, and this new opening came as the result of his experience and training for the aircraft industry.

We learned that John had been taking lessons in flying and is now eligible to make his solo flight.

The News is sorry to see the Haverstocks leave St. Joe, but we can only wish success upon the efforts of the head of the family.

CLASS PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Johnson entertained the Loyal Workers Class, of the Christian Bible School, of which they are members, in the basement of the church, Sunday after the close of church services. At one o'clock the class, numbering eighteen, together with a number of invited guests, were invited to the basement and seated at a lovely table, centered by a twin candle holder, containing lighted candles and vases of ferns and flowers at each end of the table were added decorations. But the good things to eat with which the table was loaded, looked more interesting to company than the decorations.

A two course dinner was served by the host and hostess, assisted by Mrs. Gertrude Borthwick and Mrs. Leona Mason. Following the dinner a short program was enjoyed by all. The well known Johnson brand of home made ice cream and angel food cake were then served, and did we enjoy it.

Those present, besides the host and hostess, were the class members, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Keesler, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Meade Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Mason, Mr. Marsh Andress, Mrs. Bessie Shroyer, Mrs. Harriett Sechler, Mrs. Clara McCann, Mrs. Alice Watson, Mrs. Matie Neiland, Mrs. Edna Jenkins and Mrs. Nan Lysher. Mrs. Anna Koch, Mrs. Ida Williams, and Mrs. Zimmerman were absent on account of sickness.

The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Erby Messimer and three boys, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Borthwick, Junior Murphy, and Bonnie Kees.

After a pleasant social hour and thanking Mr. and Mrs. Johnson for the dinner and pleasant afternoon, the folks departed for their homes.

APRIL 6 LAST DAY TO REGISTER AS VOTER

Important voters' registration regulations to which attention is called by the state board of election commissioners are as follows:

April 6 is the last day a voter may register or transfer before the primary election of May 5.

If a voter registered and voted in the primary or general election of 1940 and has not moved from his precinct since that time he will not need to re-register. If the voter has moved from the 1940 voting precinct it will be necessary for him to transfer to his new precinct.

If a voter failed to vote in both the 1940 primary and the general election and he did not return the card of suspension for not voting, mailed to him by the clerk in January, 1941, his registration has been cancelled and he will need to register.

All people moving into a new county and all people becoming 21 years of age, since the last election, will need to register. Registration officers will explain resident requirements.

The Acts of 1941 provide that a receipt be given to new registrants, as well as to those who are transferring.

Any person becoming 21 years of age by November 3, 1942, should register and can vote in the primary election on May 5, 1942.

TO WALK TO POLLING PLACES ON APRIL 12

Since announcement of Bond Sunday, a statewide movement has been suggested to urge thousands of Hoosiers who will go to the polls to pledge their savings to the war-financing effort, to carry on in their patriotism one step farther (or many steps, as the case may be) by walking instead of riding to their precinct polling place.

"The day would be even more significant if families would decide to save gasoline and tires for this one day of Defense Bond pledging," Eugene C. Pullman, Indiana Defense Savings Staff Chairman, agreed after the "walk to the polls" movement had been suggested by several newspaper editors who are ready to start campaigns for it in their own communities.

The movement, as is the actual going to the polls on Bond Sunday, April 12, would be entirely voluntary. For some families, it is admitted, walking to the polls will be impractical, but hundreds of gallons of gasoline and thousands of miles of automobile tire wear would be saved if only those who lived near enough would observe the suggestion.

It has also been suggested that if the weatherman, who is as mysterious as well as a flighty individual during these war days, turns on his usual rain or snow on Easter Sunday, Bond Sunday, which follows by a week, could be used as Indiana's official Spring apparel Promenade day. Walking to the polls would be a "must" in this event.

D. L. Haffner and Mrs. Dean Bechtol, both of Garrett, were named American Legion county chairman and Legion Auxiliary vice chairman to appoint and to be in charge of DeKalb County Legion workers in Indiana's Bond Sunday precinct poll-pledging.

I wish in this way to thank my friends and neighbors for the beautiful cards sent me while in the hospital. Also my Sunday School class and others for the flowers that awaited me on my return home.

"We are now shutting down. Goodbye until better times. Long live the queen!"

These courageous defiant words were the last spoken to the world by the official Dutch broadcasting station at Bandoeng, the city which was made headquarters for the Allied command in the Netherlands East Indies, after Batavia was lost. At the time they were spoken, the Japanese troops were in the suburbs, and it was clear that Java, one of the most important of Pacific positions, was now securely in the harsh hands of Hirohito's brown legions. Another all-important area had fallen to the enemy—an enemy which, in only three months of war, had made incredible progress. In those three months, the United Nations had taken major defeat after major defeat. All they had to comfort them was the knowledge that the enemy had paid a big price for his victories in men, ships and materials of war.

The story of the loss of Java is the old story—the story that is perfectly expressed in the phrase, too little and too late. The Dutch defenders fought extremely well. So did the handful of Americans and Britons who were with them. The United Nations naval and air units did all and more than could be expected. The odds were simply too great. The Imperial air supremacy possessed by the defenders at the beginning of the action, was soon lost—Japan is said to have thrown 4,000 planes, the larger part of her entire air force, into battle. The little Dutch fleet was almost entirely destroyed in brave and daring operations against a far larger, far more powerful Jap fleet. On the ground, invader troops outnumbered the defenders tremendously, and their equipment was far better. Japan landed seven to ten divisions, of about 15,000 men each, on the island. Most important of all, the defenders received only a little of the aid they expected from the United States.

Where will Japan strike next? The Australians expect they will be invaded, as well as subjected to air attack, and are preparing for a last ditch stand. There are rumors that Hitler is working to persuade the Japanese to aid him by attacking Russia through Manchuria. Many an authority is convinced that an attack on the West Coast of the United States is well up on the Jap military calendar—an attack that might even assume the scope of an attempted invasion. Whatever happens, it is clear that the United Nations will suffer more hard blows unless and until it is possible to send gigantic quantites of planes, weapons, supplies and men to the key points in the Pacific. The last few months have provided a terrible example of the futility and waste of fighting battles with only "token" forces.

Here in America, production is getting into high gear. But all the planes and tanks and guns in the world are useless unless they can be sent to the battlefronts. Thus, our war problem is largely a shipping problem. It is clear that ship output must be speeded up fast. It must do more than offset the toll taken by enemy submarines and surface raiders—it must far exceed it. Estimates say that ten tons of material of various kinds must be shipped for every soldier in an expeditionary force—and 40 tons must be shipped fos every soldier in a completely mechanized unit. That indicates the colossal ship-building job we have ahead.

In this connection, it is significant that the enemy is concentratng his naval attacks on tankers. It is said that troop ships have been deliberately passed by submarines on the search for the vessels which carry that basic sinew of war—oil. That is certainly logical. Exported air and naval strength must be accompanied by limitless quantities of fuel, if it is to be effective. Tanker losses so far have been dangerously high, and new production is not adequate.

The lesson is clear. We must have more efficiency and less politics. There must be harder, more productive work. No one need doubt the quality of United Nations' troops. They have demonstrated their valor time and again. They simply haven't been given the tools the job demands.

Best guess now is that the new Treasury-proposed tax bill, which would double income taxes in the middle income bracket, and impose a long list of increases in commodity and excise taxes, will not pass in its original form.

In the opinion of many, the bill does not go far enough into lower-income brackets. In addition, sentiment for a general sales tax, on everything except foods, is unquestionably growing. This tax, of course, would hit every worker, every income group.

It is probable that some system will be devised for collecting part of the individual income taxes on a weekly or monthly basis. This can be done through a payroll tax. Reason for it is obvious: many taxpayers simply don't have the money when annual tax bills fall due, and that presents the Treasury with a difficult and expensive collection problem.

Don't be surprised if some kind of forced savings system is also adopted in time. Under it, everyone would be required to put a definite percentage of their income in government bonds.

Your CONGRESS and YOU!

NEWS FROM THE OFFICE OF GEORGE W. GILLIE

Washington, D. C.—War is being brought home to the automobile owners of America. A nation on wheels is expected to become a nation afoot before the end of 1943. This is the sum and substance of testimony on the rubber situation given recently by Price Administrator Leon Henderson before a special Senate Committee.

Right now is the time for Americans accustomed to automobile travel to survey possibilities of other modes of transportaton, Mr. Henderson warns. Eventually, he hints, the Federal Government may be forced to requisition tires of some civilans for use by others with higher priorty ratings.

Because Japan has conquered this country's source of rubber supplies, civilians must prepare for a drastic reduction in rubber goods. They can't get new or recapped tires now and the prospects are that they will not be able to get rubber during the next three years.

Requisitioning depends upon how effectively present tires are kept in condition. Automobile company executives foresee 12,000,000 fewer cars on the road by the end of 1943, but Mr. Henderson is even more pessimistic. He sees little possibility of keeping more than 7,500,000 cars in operation thru 1944 and reports that 5,000,000 cars must be operated for minimum public services and defense work.

Thus America must undergo a revolutionary change in its transportation system, all because some battles were lost 7,000 miles away in the Southwest Pacific.

"Victory" Bonds Being Studied

The Treasury Department has under consideration a proposal by Congressman Gillie that the Government change the name of its Defense bonds and stamps to "Victory" bonds and stamps, to be offered for sale to the public without interest. Secretary Morgenthau has replied to this suggestion as follows:

"Reference is made to your letter of recent date, suggesting the Treasury consider a new series of Victory bonds and stamps to supplant the present Defense bonds and stamps, and reiterating a previous proposal that patriotic citizens be provided an opportunity to purchase non-interest-bearing securities.

"Your interest in the War finance and the trouble you have taken in writing, are appreciated. While the Treasury feels it should not at this time offer to accept loans without interest, your suggestion in such respect, and your suggestion for a change in name, will receive consideration."

No Cherry Blossom Festival

There will be no Cherry Blossom Festival in Washington this Spring. Decison to abandon the traditional ceremony for the duration of the war was made this week by the District Commissioners and the sponsoring organizatons. The reason: Washington's hotel and restaurant facilities already are crowded to overflow by the influx of war workers, could not possibly accommodate the thousands of Festival visitors. The blossoms will bloom as usual along the Tidal Basin in Potomac Park. But they will bloom quietly, without pageant or ceremony.

Dies Committee Does Not Die

Congress this week extended the life and activities of the Dies Commttee for another 12 months. Probably no committee in Congress has attracted as much attention, made as many ardent friends and active enemies as the Dies Committee. Its exposures of Communists, Bundists, Fascists have shocked, surprised, and sobered America. This time its continuance was approved by a roll call vote of 331 to 46, with Congressman Gillie again voting to support the committee as he has done each time previously.

A concerted and well-financed effort was made this year to kill the Dies Committee. Anti-Dies lobbyists barraged Congress by mail, telegram, and personal contact. There was much anti-Dies talk but few anti-Dies votes! Among the organizations listed as supporting the work of this Committee were the American Legion, the V. F. W., the D. A. R., Elks lodge, Knights of Columbus, Federated Womens' Clubs, American Federation of Labor, and the Catholic Churches of America.

Do you have a dog? This office has received copies of two Government booklets on dogs. One deals with the proper feeding, the other describes various breeds and is illustrated with pictures. Free copies will be sent to any who request them. Postcard or letter should be addressed to Congressman George W. Gillie, 1522 House Office Building, Washington, D. C.

What Should You Save To Help?

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The following table issued by the Treasury Department is intended as a savings yardstick for the average income-earner. It suggests how everyone of the 48,000,000 employed persons in the United States may participate in the war effort through the systematic purchase of Defense Savings Bonds.

"The job ahead of us is far bigger than most of us realize," Secretary Morgenthau declared in making the table public. "I know that the American people are ready to do their part to win the war. One of the ways we can do much more is by intensifying our effort in the purchase of Defense Bonds."

While persons without dependents may be able to set aside more than the suggested figures, persons with several dependents, or with other heavy family obligations, may be unable to save at the suggested rate, the Treasury Department pointed out.

If Weekly Earnings Are:	And One Saves Each Week:	In One Year He Will Save:	Number of Persons in Each Income Group:	Total Annual Savings:

MARCH

HOOSIER HOME FRONT

For Release Week of March 15 Bulletin No. 7

Nobody in Indiana, nor in America, is going to sit this war out.

Everyone is involved and the pinch has just started. Everyone is going to feel it more and more. Every single Hoosier has some role to play in this gigantic endeavor—a role that will be increasingly important.

The farm is affected by what goes on in the factory and the factory can continue to produce only because of the farm. The duty of the farm is to produce more foodstuffs and to save and to make sacrifices, and the duty of the factory is to turn out more and more weapons—and to save and make sacrifices.

You don't have to look into the war news to find ample illustrations of these basic facts. For instance, the Hoosier farmer soon will feel the demand for rubber on Hooiser tank assembly lines. (Where they are is a military secret but some of the largest are in Indiana.) By May 1, the production of rubber-tired farm tractors will be stopped entirely, because tank and other military machines need the rubber and because the Japs have cut off the supply of crude rubber.

Farm tractors will be steel-wheeled after that—not as convenient—but labor-saving, even so. One way or another, the great Hoosier combination of agriculture and industry will get the tanks out and the crops in.

It is cheering news that one of the largest Indianapolis industries is now in the process of converting to war production. It's hard on the workers, who are temporarily out of employment, but it is good to know that the immense factory space and manpower soon will be turning out ordnance so urgently needed for the war effort.

Even little things are involved in the war program. If you have a 1939, 1940 or 1941 model sound projector for showing 16 millometer motion picture films, you are asked by the War Production Board to sell them to the government. They are needed for the rapid teaching of the armed forces and defense workers.

Any individual or company owning such machines is urged to write the WPB, stating how many he is using for defense training, how many he is willing to sell, the year, model, and what price. Letters should be addressed to M. D. Moore, Electrical Appliances and Consumers' Durable Goods Branch, Washington, D. C.

Three of the most recent changes foreshadowed as fresh U. S. Industries are drafted for war involve the disapperance of the nylon stocking, the end, for the duration, of civilian radio and phonograph manufacture, the rationing of typewriters.

After April 1st, virtually all women's hosiery will be made of cotton or rayon, the armed forces need the nylon for parachute cloth and other uses. Radio and radio-phonograph production is to be halted April 22nd by WPB order, the industry is going all the way to war. And forthcomng rationing of typewriters was indicated by the War Production Board's "freezing" stocks of new and used typewriters.

And you may have heard that some 90 per cent of America's pork products, including ham and bacon—constituting more than half of the nation's meat supply—have been placed under 60-day temporary maximum wholesale price regulation by Price Administrator Leon Henderson.

The new price ceiling on dressed hogs and wholesale pork cuts applies to packers and their branch houses, car routes, brokers, jobbers, wholesalers, processors and slaughterers. It is expected to help importantly in holding down the cost of living. Last year the American public bill for pork and other hog products topped $2,000,000,000.

Temporary price maximum regulations became effective March 23, and are set as the highest prices that prevailed during the five day period, March 3 to 7, 1942.

Although neither farmers nor retail outlets are covered directly by the order, they both will be affected and if retail price margins rise beyond possibly a slight increase to reflect changes in replacement costs, then OPA will step into the retail picture immediately, Mr. Henderson has warned.

Indiana's a great corn-hog state and a lot of people are going to feel that!

"Hey, Joe! Wonder what we're worth on the hoof?"

Just in case Joe doesn't know, it cost his country $211 to equip him. Multiply that by an army, and you have a tidy sum of money.

We ought to know. Over 2,400,000 Joes could be completely outfitted with the $510,000,000 which America's electric power companies paid in taxes last year. That's much more than a million dollars a day!

We're glad our stake in Democracy is so large. The freedom America's fighting for is worth whatever it costs.

Even though our taxes have been going up, our rates have been going down.

Today, the average household electric user gets about twice as much electricity for his money as he did 15 years ago!

This record is directly due to the careful planning of the business men who manage the nation's electric companies. They were ready when the war emergency came. Ready to power shipyards, arsenals and plane plants.

And they'll stay right on the job of making America POWERFUL until a couple of million Joes go back to civilian clothes again!

L. L. C. MEETS WITH MRS. JOHN R. LEIGHTY

The Ladies Literary Club of St. Joe met at the home of Mrs. John R. Leighty on Wednesday evening, March 18.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Leslie Wilbern, and the Club Collect was read by Mrs. Fred Hart.

The lesson for the evening taken from Reader's Digest Books and entitled "North To The Orient" by Anne Morrow Lindbergh, was given by Mrs. William Staman. "North To the Orient" is the account of the Lindberghs' notable flight to the Far East. It is one of those rare books whose charm is so irresistible that each reader wants impulsively to share it with others. The Saturday Review of Literature says: "Mrs. Lindbergh has the seeing eye and the singing heart, and of whatever befalls she presents an account glowing with animation and emotion."

The special work entitled "Natural Features of DeKalb County" was given by Mr. J. R. Leighty. Mr. Leighty told how DeKalb County was carved out of Allen and LaGrange counties in 1836-37. Most of the settlers at that time were to be found along the rivers because of the dense woods and the rivers were their means of going from one place to another. The first grist mill was on Bear Creek just west of St. Joe and the first saw mill was at Spencerville. Cedar Creek in those times was navigable for supplies. Spencerville, Newville and Orangeville were the first towns to be settled. The county seat has always been at Auburn and parts of State Roads 27, 427 and 1 were the original road from Coldwater to Fort Wayne. The first church in the county was erected at Coburntown in 1838. The first store was at Orangeville and run by a man named Platter. He told of the effect of the glacier on the soil in the county and how St. Joe Valley produces fruits and vegetables of an outstandng quality and taste.

The critic's report for the evening was given by Mrs. Fred B. Leighty and the secretary's report by Mrs. Ralph Keeler was read and accepted. After all business was taken care of the meeting adjourned.

The hostess, assisted by her daughter in law, Mrs Virginia Leighty, served refreshments of mixed fruit, cake and coffee.

The next meeting will be April 1 at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Cole with Gentlemen Guests. Dinner at 7:00 CWT.

For the second successive year, teams and individuals from the Business Education classes of St. Joe High School scored enough points to win the annual commercial contest sponsored each year by schools in DeKalb and Steuben Counties. The contest was held this year at Salem Center High School.

Frances Reidenbach placed first as individual scorer in beginning typing while the team composed of Estella Hart, Frances Reidenbach, Patricia Maxwell, and Gladys Stewart placed second .94 of a point behind first.

The bookkeeping team, of which Dorothy Hook, Frank Drake and Franklyn Sechler were members won third place. Dorothy Hook also won third individual honors in this contest.

By winning the greatest number of total points, the teams won the large floating trophy awarded to the winner each year. Any team which wins this trophy for three successive years gains permanent possession of it.

Guest speaker at the noon luncheon was Mrs. Blanche Weans head of the Department of Business Education at Danville Normal. She spoke to the students from her experiences as National Chairman of School Papers; mentioning the benefits to the student who helps out the paper and suggesting some means of improving the paper.

Marilyn Zonker attended as alternate and the class was accompanied by Mrs. Wilbern and Mr Sharp.

Schools taking part in the contest were Spencerville, Waterloo, Pleasant Lake, Scott Center, Fremont, Hamilton, St. Joe and the host school Salem Center.

Students are now preparing for the contest sponsored by Danville Normal on Saturday, March 28. Besides the teams who took part in the previous competition, teams in advanced typing, advanced shorthand, and business adjustability will attend the Danville contest. These teams include Dorothy Maurer, Junior Freeburn, Mary Hanes, Cordelia Diederich, and Josephine McCann besides the eight mentioned above.

"The Fire-Bug"

Slinking shadows stealing through the night, burning down people's homes and torturing dumb animals without any apparent reason except to satisfy a sadistic sort of thrill! Such is the foundation on which one of the most exciting plays of the year has been laid, a play by the name of "THE FIRE-BUG," which has been chosen by the Senior Class for their senior three-act play this year. Many plays were read and considered, only to be promptly discarded when "The Fire-Bug" came along. It is that kind of a play. It grips you right from the beginning and keeps your interest at high fever point until the finish. There are thrills, comedy, romance and sustained suspense enough to satisfy anybody, but nothing really gruesome ever happens. Just when you're sure that you know the guilty man something happens to throw suspicion on someone else, and you are left in a quandary until the author decides to let you in on the secret. "THE FIRE-BUG" has the guarantee of The Northwestern Press behind it, from whom the play was purchased, and everybody is looking forward to seeing the performance, so why not you?

The Cast is:

Ursula Carter, her sister, Virginia Wells.

Jacob Carter, their cousin, James McBride.

Dark Cloud, an Indian youth, George Argerbright.

Irva Sawyer, a frightened neighbor, Cordelia Diederich.

Sheric Obadiah Duncan, Irva's admirer, Franklyn Sechler.

Charlene Dupree, a crystal gazer, Dorothy Maurer.

Donald Crow, a resorter, Maurice Hurni.

Peggy Caldwell, a newspaper reporter, Mary Hanes.

Stanley Powell, Pamela's fiance, Paul Kitchen.

Jim, one of the vigilantes, Russell Walter. 13t1.

Legion Heads Plan 'Bond Sunday' Campaign

LIONS CLUB ENJOY MANY VISITORS

The Monday evening session of the Lions Club showed an 80 per cent attendance, together with four guests namely, Lynn Fisher, of Spencerville, Maurice Kline, of St. Joe and John Huffman and Ralph Geyer, guests of Dale Wicoff.

Dale Whitehouse, district deputy governor, of Hamilton, and George Johnson, of Mishawaka, Governor of district 25-A, were present and made short talks.

Governor Johnson stated that the Lion membership had now reached 160,000 and that there were 4,000 clubs. Indiana has beed divided into three districts and 25-A to which St. Joe belongs has 50 live clubs and ranks sixth in number of clubs and members. The state convention was announced for July 7-8-9, and International convention, July 21-24.

The April meeting will be held at Spencerville school house, with a carry-in dinner prepared by the Lioness members.

Dr. Hitt Describes Indian In a Fascinating Manner

India—the land of 340,000,000 people, from tree-inhabiting aborigines who hunt with bow and arrow and eat raw meat to fabulously wealthy maharajahs whose wealth exceeds that of the Fords and Rockefellers. This Eastern country of contrast was discussed Monday night at a meeting of the St. Joe Lions Club by Dr. Claude Hitt, of Hicksville, O., who spent several years there as a dentist.

The poor of India live in incredible squalor. Their food is meagre and simple because of the scarcity of both food and fuel. They used dried cakes of cow dung instead of wood or charcoal.

Although much has been done to better sanitation conditions, much remains to be done. Even in the cities one still finds public wells, some several hundred feet square. These are open pools that fill up during the rainy periods. Here the natives keep their fish, get their drinking water, wash and bathe.

There are approximately 220 million adherents to the Hindu religion, 90 million Mohammedans and 15 million Christians in India. Riots between the Hindus and Mohammedans are not unusual. For example, during one holiday the Mohammedans sacrificed a cow too near a Hindu temple. As the cow is sacred to the latter, a riot ensued and 100 persons were killed. If one wants to start a fight all he has to do is toss a piece of bacon into a Mohammedan mosque. They will not touch pork or even a basket containing it.

India also is one of the hottest countries in the world. It reaches 135 degrees in the shade, and no shade. During May the heat is blinding white. All the British inhabitants wear pith helmets and thick spine pads for sun protection. The homes are built with ceilings 16 to 18 feet high and with very thick walls. Lizards crawling on the walls of the homes are common and the cockroaches get as long as three inches—and fly.

Dr. Hitt pointed out that only three-fifths of India actually is controled by the British. Individual rulers control the remainder of the country, altho they cannot declare war or deny common rights.

If one strays out of his own district he might as well be in another country, for in India there are 30 principal languages and more than 3,000 dialects.

It was the speaker's belief that the Japanese are primarily interested in India's potential laborers rather than her wealth. His explanation was that the Hindus are defeatists by nature, not believing in warfare, and could be made to do mass labor in the fields. He estimated that India could amass a well-trained army of eight to ten million men.

The southern portion of India is rich in coal and iron and vegetation is rank due to the rains coming from the west and east. Coal is sold at 60c to $1.00 per ton. Perhaps the largest steel mill in the world is located at the foot of the southern range, where 120,000 men are employed. Hydro-electric power is manufactured at low cost due to the fact that the water is used several times coming down the mountains.

In certain portions of India the railroads are equal to those in the United States and trains travel at 75 to 85 miles per hour.

At Rangoon many of the homes are made of marble, which is cheaper than wood, with the trimming in teak wood and inset with the most beautiful jewels. Here most of the churches are self-supporting because the people are educated and thrifty.

The Burma Road, the speaker said, within one mile distance has 26 hair pin curves, of course this was in a mountain section, and the curves are not protected with guide posts and cable as here, making it a most hazardous road to travel.

A map was used by the speaker to make his talk plain and he introduced witty stories throughout, which assisted in holding the interest. The men appreciated the appearance of Dr. Hitt on the program and they were not slow in letting him know it.

APPORTION DELEGATES TO STATE CONVENTION

The apportionments of delegates to the state convention have been filed in the office of County Clerk Murray Steele by Republican County Chairman H. C. Springer and Democratic County Chairman Earl D. Leas.

DeKalb Republicans are entitled to 17 votes in their state convention, while the Democrats will have 14, the figures being the same as in 1940. The apportionments are made on a basis of one delegate to every 400 votes cast for the candidates for secretary of state in the preceding election.

The Republican allotment by townships follows: Wilmington, 2; Wilmington and Franklin, 1; Troy and Franklin, 1; Spencer, Concord and Smithfield, 1 each; Grant, 2; Union, 5; Keyser, 3; Jackson and Butler, 1; Richland and Fairfield, 1.

Following is the Democratic apportionment: Keyser and Butler, 4; Union and Jackson, 4; Richland and Grant, 1; Concord, Spencer and Newville, 1; Fairfield, Smithfield and Wilmington, 1 each; and Franklin, Troy, and Stafford, 1.

Gen. Washington's Medal of Honor

"The road to glory in a patriot army and a free country is open to all", declared General Washington in his order of the day August 7, 1782, instituting the first American badge for military merit.

His act was in recognition of "bravery, fidelity and good conduct" among the non-commissioned officers and private soldiers in the Continental Army. Thus was established the Order of the Purple Heart.

Individual valor has always been a distinguishing trait of the American soldier. In the lapse of more than a century and a half between Bunker Hill, Valley Forge and Stony Point to Pearl Harbor, Batan and the Macassar Straits the roster of those men who have traveled the road to glory furnishes a brilliant record of patriotism and sacrifice.

In the first dark hours of the present war their heroic deeds have thrilled their countrymen and illumined the way to ultimate victory—inspiring hope of a triumph not only for the United Nations but for downtrodden peoples throughout the world.

No gold, silver or bronze blazoned from the breasts of the heroes Washington intended to honor. Read his general order:

"The General ever desirous to cherish virtuous ambition in his soldiers, as well as to foster and encourage every species of military merit, directs that when any singularly meritorious action is performed, the author of it shall be permitted to wear on his facings over the left breast the figure of a heart in purple cloth, or silk, edged with narrow lace or binding. Not only instances of unusual gallantry, but also of extraordinary fidelity and essential service in any way shall meet with due reward.... The road to glory in a patriot army and a free country shall be open to all."

Purple Heart Medal

Subsequent to the Revolution the Order of the Purple Heart seems to have fallen into disuse and no further awards were made. Its revival was suggested at the time of the observance of the 200th anniversary of Washington's birth, and its reinstitution was announced by the War Department February 22, 1932. Under changes in Army regulations the Purple Heart is authorized to persons who "while serving in the Army of the United States perform any singularly meritorious act of extraordinary fidelity or essential service." Wounds received in action are included in this category.

FOR VICTORY

It looks as though we will do so much wearing of the clothes we now own, that the future will be bleak for moths.

Sometimes we find that a supposedly smart man isn't any wiser than we are, and then we are disappointed.

We have come from hitching post to parking meter in two generations.

One thing that is happening to the average family today, is that they are growing more appreciative of the fact that there is no place like home.

It is usually the good about people that doesn't find its way into the newspapers.

Putting the car up might give some men a chance to make a few necessary repairs on themselves.

War goes on but when the notes of a cowbell, a churchbell and the song of birds returning northward strike the ear, it softens the blow.

Vegetables for Victory

With spring making its official debut on March 21, thousands of amateur gardeners are being encouraged to take an active part in their country's war effort. Victory gardens, inspired by the need to promote home vegetable growing, are the No. 1 war assignment for gardeners in all parts of the nation. The enthusiast pictured above is typical of the many youngsters who will do their bit to step up food production.

Although canning profits will be higher in 1942, due to the prospective high price of vegetables, smaller and more intensively cultivated gardens are recommended. Possible difficulties in securing containers for canning, shortage of farm labor and high prices of certain seeds are factors which will determine the size of garden plantings.

The Victory garden isn't a recent development. Pictured above is a War garden—1918 version. The first World war saw many inexperienced city dwellers attempt to work up vacant lots or back yards where there was little chance of success. The 1942 Victory garden drive is being directed largely toward farm families and suburban dwellers who have both land and experience available.

It might reach the place where even chewing tobacco will appear as a gross display of war-time wealth.

HOLY WEEK

Starting with Palm Sunday and through Easter Sunday, this world goes through the most solemn week of our Christian year. It is rightly called 'Holy Week' and men do well to take time to be holy and reverent in thought by pausing to remember the supreme sacrefice of all times, all nations and all peoples. We should prepare ourself through that Holy Week to accept the glory and redemption which Easter Sunday promises today just as it did 19 centuries ago. We are surely frustrated and fearful, and in such turmoil we could take this week to prepare to wipe from out hearts the unrest and dispair making it open and free of personal agitation to receive the Easter message. Here in St. Joe we should remind ourselves that the human race has not become extinct and lost, nor has it completely destroyed itself. Past Holy Weeks have proven that is purges itself and is redeemed again and again.

FOR BEAUTY'S SAKE

They have scotched the rumor that there might be a soap scarcity since they need the glycerine in the manufacture of gun powder. They say we will probably have more soap instead of less but it won't have as much lathering power yet enough to keep your ears clean. The beauticians tell our ladies not to worry about face creams and lotions, that the fundamental needs for beauty's sake will still be forthcoming since they mine talc in California instead of depending upon Italy for our supply, of rouges and lip sticks still there are to serve milady and perhaps enhance her in the sight of the men beside furthering her morale. There might have been some men who had hoped to see what women looked like without their makeup, wondering if beauty is only skin deep. Men have to give up cuffs and fullness of trousers and they don't think it unreasonable for a woman to give up her mascara.

MAPLE SUGAR

When the weather is freezing at night and the next morning there is a thaw and sunny days follow the frosty nights, then fires are started crackling under the big black pots which hang over the heat and send off clouds of steam that carries the familiar odor of maple sugar. The boiling down after the hard work of gathering the sap through the grove, the fun and cheer and neighborliness as they gather round the pot where the syrup slowly thickens and tested on the snow hardens to the right degree for candy patties or taffy, this is maple syrup time! From farms from Southern Canada, through New England, into Ohio and Pennsylvania and Michigan, New York and Wisconsin goes the cry of "sap's started." It is a real American custom acquired from the Indians and a herald of spring to our states. May the trees which supply us with this delicacy never reach the woodman's axe to be borne away for profit in lumber. May the sap long continue to keep sweet at least this part of the world!

NEWS FROM THE OFFICE OF GEORGE W. GILLIE

Wake Up, America, It's Late!

The nation needs to awaken to the full gravity of the peril that confronts it.

It needs to appreciate how badly we have been defeated in the three months of war.

It needs to understand that it is possible for the United Nations and the United States to lose this war and suffer the fate of France—and that this possibilty may become a probability if the present tide does not change.

It needs to realize that there is grave chance of the Japanese pushing through India and the Germans through the Near East, to join their armies and resources in an almost unbeatable combination.

It needs to get away, once and for all, from the comforting feeling that while we may lose at the start we are bound to win in the end.

Only when fully aware of existing perils will the United States do its utmost. Pray God that awareness will not come too late, as it did in France.

Nelson Appeals For Maximum Production

Production Director Donald Nelson appeals for vastly increased industrial output on a 24-hour, seven-day basis—168 hours a week. Maximum production, in short.

Can we get it?

Not until we quit thinking in terms of less work for more money.

Not while there is greater concern about overtime pay than overtme production

Not while politicians are more interested in higher prices than raising more essentials.

Not while government bureaus—created to meet a depression emergency that is ended—continue to grab for themselves money needed for armaments.

Not while an army of federal press agents clamors to promote and perpetuate activities that have no present need or value.

Not while WPA, despite a shortage of labor, seeks to carry on projects which it doesn't have the men to perform or the need for performing.

Not while CCC and NYA stretch greedy hands for funds to pamper young men who ought to be in the armed forces or the war plants.

Not while strikes hamper war production, despite a solemn promise that they would stop.

Not while the life and death need for uninterrupted production is used as a weapon to put over the closed shop.

Not while double time is demanded for Sunday work which is only part of a 40-hour week.

Not while a man can't be employed on an army project or in a war plant until he pays $20 to $50 or more to a labor racketeer.

Not while criminal gangs control employment and allocation of men to work on the Normandie and the other ships along New York's vast waterfront.

Not while fifth columnists are pampered and enemy aliens move freely in defense areas.

Not while the grim job of preparing our home communities against air raids and sabotage is gummed up with a lot of highfalutin, boondoggling, social service activity.

Not while pressure blocs clamor for higher benefits, bounties and pensions.

France Had the 'Gimmes' Too

We will not get maximum production, in short, unless, first, we fully realize our awful peril; and, second, get over the gimmes of recent years.

Gimme shorter hours, gimme higher wages, gimme bigger profits, gimme more overtime, gimme less work, gimme more pensions, gimme greater crop benefits, gimme more appropriations and patronage, gimme plants for my Congressional district, gimme fees and dues to work for Uncle Sam, gimme ham'n eggs, gimme share-the-wealth, gimme $30 every Thursday.

France had the gimmes, too had them till the Germans were close to Paris. Then everybody went frantically to work—too late.

France has no gimmes today—except gimme food for my baby, gimme a place to lay my head, gimme death.

Home owners are going to raise a few vegetables on their garden spots for their family's consumption and planting plans are to help national need to save pennies by growing enough to stock the storage shelves with canned goods for future needs. The children too are interested and they should be encouraged. The idea is not necessarily large scale farming for those who are inexperienced but of using available plots for small amounts of each vegetabe and replanting often is the way of realizing a nice amount of growth on a limited patch. You need tools to tend the garden properly and they should be kept in good condition for who knows about steel which goes into the spade, hoe, rake, and weeder? Those who have previously gardened know the need of applying a bedding mixture in some cases, using a proper fertilizer over the top of the ground and having to stake some of the vegetables like tomatoes and pole beans. The wise gardener keeps every bit of space at work and when a vine plant is done for here out it comes and something else takes its place. You will have radishes, beets, cabbage, carrots, squash, lettuce, peppers and maybe a spot for some sweet corn. It all means work but you will reap a worthy reward for your endeavor—you and the family.

THE GREATEST NUMBER

Talk in the public meeting, in St. Joe homes, from your press deals with the large number of Americans who inhabit that zone or classification of uneducated, undernourished, illy housed and clothed one-third of the country's population. But according to the people themselves, they figure that 88 per cent of our total population is considering itself in the middle class, six per cent in the upper class and the other six per cent in the lowest. So here we are making a big to-do about the large number of the nation's people not getting advantages of food, clothing and education whereas the greatest number is the middle class which forms the long backbone of our land. Certainly this group should come in for the greatest concern since they pay the most taxes, produce the most and consume the most. Build on them for they are your foundation.

HOOSIER HOME FRONT

INTERESTING HOM EFRONT NEWS IN INDIANA

Orders are out for our Spring offensive, our great war production drive. This, the only kind of offensive which in the long run can whip our enemies, is threatened by just one danger. That danger is disunity and mutual distrust —the sort of disunity and distrust which has won Axis victories before this.

Donald M. Nelson, WPB Chairman, warned last week that the Axis "Would use every argument to spread doubt and confusion, discontent and mistrust," added his conviction that Americans "Will pull together, not apart."

Mr. Nelson was speaking primarily to the men of management and the men of labor whose selfless teamwork is necessary if we are to get the tools, get the weapons with which to beat Hitler and Hirohito and Benito the Bungler. But what he said should be constantly in the minds of everyone on the home front in the days to come. In the words of the slogan, "We are fighting the Axis, not each other."

The process of converting our peacetime fat into energy for war moves forward rapidly as fields grow green again and days lengthen. Last week fore-shadowed many changes, among them an end to manufacture of that noisy fixture on the American scene, the juke box.

Juke boxes and vending machines, pinball games, and weighing machines — there'll be no more new ones made after April 30th. The larger juke boxes contained a surprising amount of metals important to the war effort, steel for five light machine guns, enough brass to make 750 .30 calibre cartridge cases. And two bits spent for defense stamps plays a pretty and patriotic tune.

And now it happens that there will be an investigation of the Hoosier clergy situation in relation to auto tires. The State Defense Council has noticed the surprising increase in the number of preachers without a corresponding increase in the number of churches. It is interested only because preachers are entitled to auto tires.

The scrap hunt on Indiana farms is really in motion now. An average of 500 pounds per farm is confidently expected. Since there are 200,000 farms, that would mean 100,000,000 pounds of scrap metal. That is the equivalent of 8,333 anti-aircraft guns. With Indiana's steel industries running short of their total capacity because of lack of steel and iron scrap, the farm scrap hunts are regarded as an important war contribution. Have a look around back of those sheds and see if there isn't some metal that you can't use but the fighting troops can.

For years the Hoosier farmer has vainly looked to the industrialization of farm products as the stabilizing market force. And for years major efforts to that end have been blocked.

The week's developments also emphasized that the home front is going to mean exactly that. Lots of us are going to spend a great deal more of our time at home, or close to it. The office of price administration ordered a one-fifth cut in gasoline deliveries in 17 eastern states and Washington and Oregon and the Office of Defense Transportation warned that travel "as usual" was going to become increasingly difficult as military freight traffic grows and troops' movements absorb passenger equipment.

Fighting to keep consumer costs stable in a price situation which an official characterized as "little short of explosive," OPA last week set a maximum price over finished cotton and rayon goods. Rhodium, a metal of the platinum group, may not be used any more to give tarnish-proof surfaces to compacts and cigarette cases—it's needed to coat anti-craft searchlight reflectors... WPB has told canners to set aside part of their 1942 pack of fruits and vegetables for the armed forces and lend-lease... WPB has approved the program to build 350,000 additional housing units for war industry workers.... OPA asked makers of rubber drug sundries, which include hospital and medical products, not to advance prices... They have been allotted a supply of crude rubber and latex... Eighty per cent of topgrade sole leather now is being saved for the armed forces... But there's still leather for civilian shoes and still—to Scotch a rumor—reclaimed rubber for rubber heels... In the three months since Pearl Harbor, we voted $72,603,000,000 for war as against only $64,329,000,000 during the previous 18 months of defense effort... Don't forget to save your anti-freeze when you drain the radiator.

DISEASE RESISTANT VEGETABLES ARE BEST

The best possible control of certain diseases of vegetables likely to occur in Indiana Victory gardens is through the use of disease resistant varieties, says Dr. C. T. Gregory, Purdue extension plant pathologist.

While there are no vegetable varieties that are resistant to all diseases, there are a number of varieties that are resistant to the more destructive diseases of any particular vegetable.

For example, cabbage growers should always demand the yellow resistant varieties for the mid-season or late cabbage. The earliest varieties, grown in cool soil, may escape the diseases, but after the soil warms up, expect to find the yellows disease. If there is hot weather in April, the non-resistant varieties are likely to die.

Demand one of these cabbage varieties: Maron Market, Jersey Queen, Wisconsin Pride, and Wisconsin All Head for the Early variety and Wisconsin Ball Head, Wisconsin Hollander, Wisconsin Globe, and Wisconsin All Season for the Late variety.

Not many gardens will be infected with the celery yellows disease, but a garden on muck soil may be infested. In such cases the Michigan Golden is recommended. Sweet corn, particularly the early varieties is very susceptible to the wilt diseases which causes the stunting and early death of the infected plant. Use Golden Cross Bantam Purgold to insure a crop free from this disease. Watermelon varieties resistant to wilt disease are Hawksbury, Klondike No. 7 and Kleckley's No. 6.

Tomato wilt sometimes causes serious losses, particularly in soils that have grown the crop for several successive years. The varieties Pritchard and Marglobe are recommended garden varietes that are resistant to the wilt disease.

Any gardener who has a strain of potatoes that has been producing good yields may well afford to use his own potatoes for seed. It is recommended that when new seed is to be used buy certified seed potatoes. This seed is relatively free from a number of diseases like mosaic and leaf roll and will probably be free from the new disease known as ring rot. If the seed is certified, the sack will bear the certification tag of the state in which the potatoes were grown.

SPINACH AND OTHER GREENS IN HOOSIER VICTORY GARDENS

Spinach like many of the other green, leafy vegetable crops, such as kale, endive, swiss chard, collard, lettuce, cabbage and mustard are somewhat sensitive to acid soils. Should these crops fail to grow well, providing climatic conditions are satisfactory, it indicates a lack of lime in the soil, says W. B. Ward, Purdue extension gardener.

To correct such conditions, it is advised that lime be applied at the rate indicated by the soil acidity test. The lack of soil acidity is not the only requirement for good growth and quality of "greens," but they should be planted at the right time and the proper varieties be used in each locality.

For spring seeding the time to plant in Indiana may vary from February to early April. The seed should be sown just as soon as the soil can be worked in the spring as these crops, with the exception of chard, do not stand hot weather. Green and leafy vegetables should make quite a growth in the spring for best results in both yield and quality.

The soil should be well supplied with plant food and especially with nitrates. Thirty loads of manure or 800 to 1200 pounds of commercial fertilizers per acre could be profitably supplied to the soil. The commercial fertilizer should be high in nitrogen and such an analysis as a 10-8-6 is a good formulae.

One ounce of spinach and swiss chard seed will plant 100 feet. Swiss chard will grow and produce from early summer to early winter. All these vegetables may be planted to mature in the late fall. Also, Swiss chard, New Zealand spinach, spinach, kale, collard, green lettuce, and green cabbage contain large amounts of vitamin A and lesser amounts of B, B1 and C.

GARDEN WEED PROBLEMS

If you plant your Hoosier Victory Garden in an old weed patch, the job of keeping out the weeds may be more than you can handle, says O. C. Lee, Purdue extension weed specialist.

Many people do not realize the number of seeds produced by weeds. A single plant of mullein, for instance, may produce 2,500,000 seeds. If weed seeds have been permitted to mature and then fall to the ground there may be millions of them waiting for ideal germination conditions.

Many weed seeds also have a hard seed coat, enabling them to lie in the soil for several years before germinating. Smart weed, mustard, chickweed, and similar seeds have been known to lie in the soil for 20 years before germinating. Selecting the garden spot away from weedy areas will also help greatly to reduce the problem of insect and plant disease control.

Following are a few suggestions that may help to solve the problem of weed control in the garden.

1. If a new area is to be selected for a garden spot avoid waste places where weeds have been permitted to go to seed for the past several years. It is far better to plant the garden on a piece of land that has been included in the farm rotation of one that has been under cultivation for several years.

2. Plow the garden as early as possible and disc or harrow it to induce the germination of weed seeds. Weed seedlings should be destroyed by a thorough discing or cultivation just prior to planting.

3. If power or horse drawn cultivators are to be used be sure to space the rows so as to permit the use of equipment available.

4. Keep in mind the principal object of cultivation after the seedbed has been prepared is to kill weeds. Use cutivators that are effective in destroying the weeds. Shallow cultivation with broad shovel cultivators is usually most satisfactory.

5. Destroy all weeds near the garden by cultivation, clipping, or burning.

Purdue Extension Bulletin 238 "Helps for the Home Garden" is a bulletin suggested by Mary Lenore Moore, DeKalb County Home Demonstration Agent to help you solve your garden problems. This may be secured at the office of your County Agent and Home Demonstration agent, in Auburn.

National and International Problems Inseperable From Local Welfare Problems.

In a recent issue, Life spoke of "America's chronic and catastrophic complacency." That memorable phrase accurately illustrates what has been wrong with this country. We were told that we could lick the Japanese in a matter of weeks, and we believed it. We were told that the potential enemy was short on raw materials and natural resources and so was incapable of an extended offensive, and we believed that too. We were told that the oceans were, in effect, fortifications which were certain to protect our shores in any extremity, and we also believed that. And so the inevitable happened. We and our government terribly underestimated the material strength and striking power of the foe. We thought in terms of "national defense" instead of terms of "war." We turned our faces away from the unpleasant facts, and dreamed happy dreams of victory. Only lately have the American people and their government come to realize how hard it will be to win this war—how much work we must do if we are to escape the fate of France and the other subjugated countries, which the conquerors are literally using as slave markets.

It does not serve the national interest to minimze the disasters which have fallen the United Nations. In less than 4 months, Japan has atttained mastery of the Pacific and is moving in Australia. She may turn at any time on India, which is populated with 29 per cent of the entire world's manpower; is rich in resources of many kinds, and is torn with internal dissension. Some authorities expect that Hitler may soon attempt to drive across the Middle East. If that drive were successful, he would make physical contact with Japan, and the Axis would be in a position to destroy vital United Nations' communication lines. It is clear that the Vichy government, possessor of a large fleet is coming closer and closer to all-out "collaboration" with the Nazis. There is a distinct possibility that the Axis may gain preponderance of the world's resources, human and material alike. In short, the whole picture of the world has changed fatefully since December 7.

There can be no question but what Japan and her partners counted heavily on that "catastrophic complacency" of which Life spoke. And so, the job of this country and the other United Nations is simply that of revolutionizing our outlook toward war—and of producing and shipping the instruments of war necessary to make such a revolution possible. Every military operation based on defensive strategy has failed—and failed with terrible losses of men and equipment and key positions. If we are to win, the war must be carried to the enemy, and carried to him at the earliest possible time.

We could attack Japan's concentrated industrial areas from Alaskan or Chinese bases —if we had enough planes of the right kind. We could crack her long-extended supply line —if we had sufficient equipment at the right place. These and similar "ifs" are today's great bottlenecks to the waging of successful war. They are not simply industrial problems. They are problems which were largely created by inefficiency in government and by work stoppage on the part of labor groups.

Production chief Donald Nelson has called for an immensely extended effort all along the producing line. If that effort is made, it means that there must be an end to bickering between rival unions, and an end to work-weeks which were fought for and achieved in an era whose end began when Hitler became Chancellor of the Reich. There must be an end to waste, delay and red tape in the government. We have no time or energy for reform for reform's sake. Those are the cold facts.

The American people clearly have a choice. They will work harder than they ever worked in their lives—or they will lose a war whose loss can have no other conclusion but the death of freedom everywhere. None of the nations which are united with us in this epic struggle have the production capacity to turn the scales. The tools of war will come from us, and in ever-increasing quantity—or they will not come at all. We must supply the bulk of the ships, the tanks, the planes, the guns, the shells and the bullets. And we must supply them now, not in years to come.

This war has produced three military leaders of the first rank — General MarArthur of the United States, Marshal Timoshenko of the Soviet Union, and Generalissimo Chiang Kai Chek of China. The last has a particular distinction, in that he is head of his government, as well as its active commander in military affairs.

It is significant that all of these commanders believe in the offensive, and pursue the offensive. Mr. MacArthur, of course, is carrying on what is essentially a defensive action —but he continually takes the battle to the enemy. Timoshenko has won immense victories, which have cost the Germans millions of men, by use of the most daring offensive tactics. And Chiang Kai Chek, for five years, has flung his superbly brave, ill-equipped armies against the Jap and kept him out of the heart of China.

It is for that reason that recent changes in the commands of the United States Army and Navy should encourage the country. Some "super conservatives" have been eased out. And younger, aggressive men are coming in to top positions.

Makes Ice FAST!

YOUR refrigerator is an important aid to economical living through proper storage of perishable foods and the preservation of health-building minerals and vitamins. To secure the greatest service from it without wasting electricity, observe these simple rules:

Defrost on a regular schedule, as a heavily frosted unit decreases efficiency . . .

Keep the temperature in the main food compartment at about 40°—ideal for preservation of perishables, yet assuring that it "makes ice fast" and supplies plenty of ice cubes.

BOND SUNDAY IN INDIANA

Plans have been announced for a state-wide observance of April 12 as "Bond Sunday." Hoosiers will be expected to go to their regular precinct polling places and register willingness to participate in the campaign to raise funds for the war activities of government. The hope is to get 100 per cent cooperation in the sale of Defense Bonds. Those who have already subscribed will be given window stickers showing they are doing their share and stickers also will be given to those who sign pledge forms.

Wars are not fought alone by those who are in the line of battle. The people back home have an important part in the success or failure of the struggle. The men in the tanks, airplanes, trenches, ships and submarines must be supplied with equipment. All that calls for an enormous outlay of money. The fighter has a right to expect the non-belligerents to respond promptly and to the extent of their ability in providing the funds needed for his support.

Nobody knows how much the war will cost this country, but we have gone far enough to realize that the burden will be a heavy one. It will call for all-out effort on the part of all. There is no chance of too much money being raised at this time. Nor is it likely that the present response by the public will be the last one that will be needed. All must be prepared to go the limit so long as the future of this nation and of civilization is in danger.

HARD TO TAKE!

Maybe you don't remember but your grandfather would how back in his day when any member of the family looked 'washed-out' or had a 'liver color' out of the small cardboard box came a pill called calomel—and so it felt—out came the bottom of your stomach. The older folks swore by it but the other members of the family failed to appreciate this slow poisoning. They felt the proper treatment was a pill an hour for the period of a day, if you lived. We managed to live through it to come to a day when science finds that grandma was wrong and that calomel is most effective in removing maggots from cabbages. That is what we figured a long time back. Think of all those poor calomel sufferers of yesteryears. In case there is an old-fashioned grandma in your house who still believes in calomel pass on the word so that during the sick months she won't be tempted to use this treatment for influenza, colds and pneumonia. There has been a far more effective way of preventing colds today and treatment to check the spread of influenza that has run rampant in past years. Through modern immunizing we have been able to make peace with disease, and without the use of calomel.

RALPH BEAMS REPORTED INJURED IN ACCIDENT

Word was received by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Beams last week that their son, Dr. Ralph Beams, a First Lieutenant in the Medical Corps, was seriously injured in an automobile accident.

He has been in the service since March, 1941, and has been on active duty in the hospitals at Camp Polk and Camp Beauegard, Louisiana.

He with other officials were commissioned to come to Fort Hays at Columbus, Ohio, by train to take back troops of the 82nd Division. On Saturday, March 21st, they were given transportation in an official army car to the Railroad Station some twenty miles away.

There seemed to be samething wrong with the steering of the car and they remarked about it, they were only driving 35 miles per hour and suddenly the car began swaying and skidding and whirled round several times and finally turned upside down in the ditch.

The occupants were taken to the Camp Hospital and it was first thought that Lt. Beams had a broken back but the X-Rays showed a fracture of the fourth lumbar vertebrae and he will be in bed there from four to six weeks.

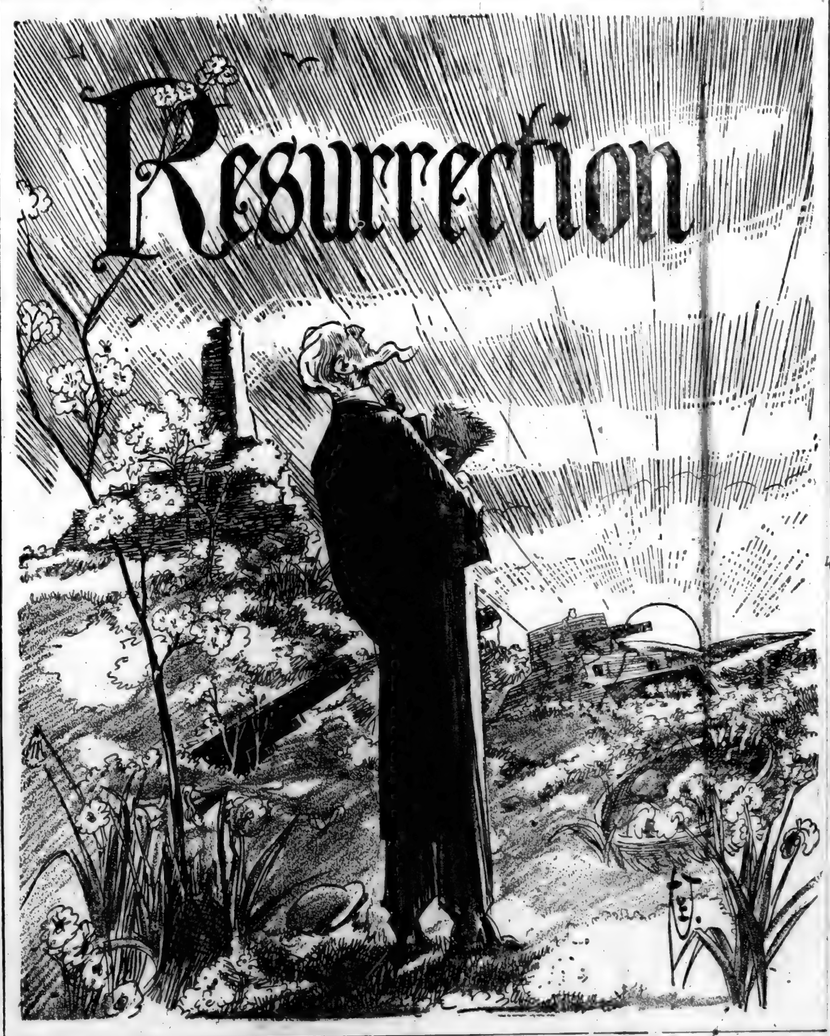
A cheerful letter was received from him Monday morning in which he said he was very thankful his injury wasn't any worse and he wonders how any of them ever escaped death as the wheels were all that was left of the car.

SCHOOL ACTIVITIES

The students from grades one to six very capably presented the operetta "The Magic Beanstalk" to an enthusiastic audience on Friday night of last week.

From comments heard it seems that this show was one of the best that was ever presented by the school. All parts were well learned so that the play ran smoothly from start to finish. Those in the choruses seemed so at ease and sang and danced as though they thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

Those who carried the leading parts are to be complimented on their work all the way through. The speaking could be heard distinctly at any place in the gym and the solos were quite well done.



The appearance of the cow, Donald Yeiser and Jack Bowser almost stole the show with their comic actions and dance. Another outstanding group was the Rhythm Band from Grades 1 and 2 in their red, white and blue uniforms. This is their first appearance and very commendable too.

It was a grand evening's entertainment and much praise should go to these students, Mrs. Voss, the director; and the sponsors of the classes, Mrs. Mary Calloway, Mrs. Harriett Oberlin and Mr. Roy Maxwell.

The Commercial students were again victorious and brot home some awards from the state contest at Central Normal College at Danville.

There were six events and St. Joe placed high in all as follows: In Beginning Typing, Frances Reidenbach placed fourth as individual winner while the team, composed of Frances, Pat Maxwell, and Gladys Stewart placed seventh.

In Advanced Typing our individual winners were Dorothy Maurer as tenth and Dorothy Hook as eleventh. The team composed of the two above and Josephine McCann placed sixth in the state.

In Bookkeeping our individual placement at eleventh was Frank Drake; while the team composed of Frank, Franklyn Sechler and Dorothy Hook placed fifth.

Teams in the other three events place eleventh in Advanced Shorthand, twelfth in Beginning Shorthand and thirteenth in Business Adjustability.

These teams were made up as follows: Advanced Shorthand; Cordelia Diederich, Dorothy Maurer, and Dorothy Hook; Beginning Shorthand; Frances Reidenbach, Gladys Stewart, and Mary Hanes; Business Adjustability; Franklyn Sechler, Dorothy Hook and Dorothy Maurer.

Accompanying these students were Miss Smith, Mr. Wicoff, Mr. Sharp and Mr. Wilbern. Thirteen students made the trip and it proved lucky this time. By placing so high in all events the school won the fifth place trophy. Since this was a state event; there were fifteen hundred entrants and one hundred fifteen schools represented, we feel this is quite an honor; and we're mighty proud of this group who brought us this honor.

Mr. Huffman and Mr. Gaier from Purdue University were with us from March 19 to March 27 getting training in actual teaching of classes in Agriculture and Science. They observed and taught classes under the direction of Mr. Wicoff. Since these practice teachers were only sent to the 20 best departments in the state, this speaks well for the work of Mr. Wicoff and his students and Saint Joe and Spencerville.

Don't forget the following events:

The Senior play "The Fire-Bug" on April 10 in the auditorium. It's a swell play and a capable cast.

The Baccalaureate Services at the Lutheran Church on Sunday evening, April 12.

The Commencement exercises at the auditorium on Wednesday, April 15. Reverend Claude Garrison, pastor of the Auburn Methodist Church will deliver the address.

DON'T TELL MAC ARTHUR

"So live that you can look Mac Arthur in the eye."

Leaders of the United Auto Workers have just won an arbitration decision in Detroit. It gives them double time in all General Motors plants when the men work on Sundays or holidays, even though this work is merely part of a 40-hour week.

Where would they look if they met Mac Arthur?

SCHOOL BUSSES NEEDED FOR NEXT SCHOOL TERM

In a survey of the school bus situation made by Gerhard Ahrens, director of the school relief division of the State Department of Eudcation, it was revealed that thirty-nine counties will not need any additional busses for the school year of 1942-1943. The survey was made by counties and townships.

A total of eighty-five new busses will be needed—twenty-two small, forty-nine medium, and fourteen large. Trustees also desire to buy a total of 208 used busses—127 small, sixty medium, and twenty-one large.

The need for tires shown by the same survey is for 6,055 new bus tires and 496 tires for private cars used to transport school children. Mr. Arhens points out that there are 7,003 school bus routes in operation over Indiana, so the number of tires required averages less than one tire per bus for next year. He says that most school busses have been running for three years or more, transporting 221,429 children for a total daily average of 163,254 miles or a grand total of 26,120,640 miles per year, traveled by school busses.

The total cost of this transportation for school children is $5,066,448.27 or approximately $22.88 per child, per year.

CLASS PARTY

Seventeen members and one guest were present at the March meeting of the Loyal Women's Class of the St. Peter's Lutheran Church at Spencerville, on Thursday evening, at the home of Miss Loretta Funk. Mrs. Edna Goldsmith and Miss Grace Houk were on the program committee for the meeting. Devotionals consisting of song, "Rock of Ages" and the class prayer and 23rd Psalm were recited in unison.

The class president, Mrs. Flossie Rhoads, presided over a short business session. The class voted to buy gold candle holders for the altar and to have them by Easter. The business session closed with the Lord's Prayer.

Questionnaires of a religious and patriotic nature were given and prizes in two contests were won by Mrs. Josie Baltz and Mrs. Zona Abel, followed by a pot luck supper. Expressions of appreciation for the fine time were extended to Miss Funk. Miss Sara Lou Shaffer was a guest.

Let's Solve the Pot and Pan Cleaning Problem

WINTERTIME kitchens are always in a continual buzz of cooking activity—we get up big company dinners; we fix delectable foods for parties; and, in general, we keep pace with the hale and hearty appetites of the family, too. Such activities as these naturally involve much cooking—much cleaning and polishing of pots and pans—and—many times this cleaning is a laborious, confining task. So, why not solve this pot and pan problem now; why not solve it the easy, safe, practical way? To do this, simply use the scratchless, quick-acting cleanser which is made with seismotite (the cleanser which polishes as it cleans) for cleaning and polishing all pots, pans, and cooking utensils. To apply, simply sprinkle this cleanser over the surface or on a damp cloth and rub; the stains will disappear and a bright polish will be imparted to these surfaces almost like magic. Finally, rinse and wipe dry.

They use duck and goose feathers for the army sleeping bags, and leave horse feathers for the rest of us.

CONTROL CANCER

April is designated, by annual proclamation, a s 'cancer control month' and brings to almost every one of our 48 states a campaign to over come this killer of men. Second only to heart trouble and the most greatly feared of all causes of death, cancer sweeps on its way. The war on the disease has been going on for years and although there has been numerous methods found to affect its cure there has been no positive one. The purpose of naming April as the month to educate us on the subject, is in the hopes that we will help to prevent the disease through acquainting ourselves with the treatment and symptoms and to realize the necessary diagnosis from our doctors, getting the situation in hand while it is still in its early stages. Have the cancer cured for it can definitely be cured if caught in its beginning. The trouble with many people is that they fail to co-operate with medical men by not having a physical examination once a year, not watching for symptoms and immediately havng the danger removed. Let us do our part in this war on cancer.

Welcome the Birds

Here the tourist trade in birds is heavier than it was a month ago. The winged creatures are beginnng to fly north and take up abodes in their old bird houses or brand new ones that have been made ready for their arrival. They are looking about for baths and food. Let us here in St. Joe see that we make their welcome a hearty one. Many of them have made long journeys. The purple martin started in February from Brazil and comes the 3,000 miles in easy stages with many rests to reach our world. From Texas and Mexico arrives the little wren and the catbird hails in from Cuba and Bermuda with the brown thrasher piping in from Florida. All together they perch on wires and branches to view the situation before making definite plans for settling down. Thev are an inspiration in their work, their care in raising their families, of providing our lives with song.

Cleaning Up Around Town

Maybe it is an untrue statement but as a rule it is indicative of conditions, that when you see an untidy, careless looking yard and house that family which lives within it are careless and untidy. We judge the dwellers by the appearance of their dwelling which is perhaps natural. We come into that season of the year in St. Joe when all will soon be trying to clean up and tidy up their town. It won't cost us much except in time and energy and the effect is well worth the effort involved. Gardens are being planted, flower beds prepared, fences made, bushes and trees trimmed and storage spots cleaned out and waste disposed of. Everyone who considers his house a home and loves it, wants to create an atmospher of cleanliness and attractiveness about. So does each street take on the beauty that goes with the joy of living in a small town in the springtime. Last week saw many of our citizens busying themselves at cleaning and burning trash until the rain and snow of Saturday stopped them.

TURN TO A FAITH

There is a heap of trouble around about us and through this whole world of ours, and since this is so we are many returning to our churches for comfort. As times of prosperity find us too busy enjoying our varied benefits, times of trouble catch us amiss and we find the inner self neglected because of pleasures that have taken up our time, business that has absorbed our interest. We have omitted to use a bit of our life for catching up with our better selves and our God. We have failed to keep our faith in religion intact. The need of sympathy for those in distress, of generosity when others are sorely pressed, of encouragement when the going is tough, is all covered by our particular belief in good and bad. It is nice to know that in this land of ours we can choose that church which we want to attend. There is always a period of quiet and meditation when life outside has become so involved and living is so full of difficulties that we need to retreat within ourselves. We might try going back to our father's faith. This getting back to religion is the idea of National Brotherhood Week, for in order to properly observe the occasion it would be necessary for man to be brother to man only through understanding, tolerance and respect. This is your foundation for all faith that God is love and without love we would be a sorrier world than we are today.

TRYING TO FOLLOW

Today it is a case of boundaries being here today and gone tomorrow as the countless school children pour over their geography and history books, wondering if what they learn today isn't just a fact stretched to probably flop back in place sometime next week. It is difficult enough to learn dates, names, battles, leaders, reasons, boundaries, racial characteristics, rules of might and right, and distances, without having to each day alter the facts. But always there are those things we learn in the process of our schooling that Napoleons and Hitlers don't change. There is the human equation, the things of ourselves and those like us who cover the globe, the element of adding and subtracting that figures in each life, that however we may try to do so two and two still make four and that a country is just as big as the people who inhabit it will allow it to be.

THE FUNNY SIDE

Just keeping the chin up isn't easy without outside help and one of the sources for chin lifting is our comic papers. The cartoons and comic strips during trying times are tonics that have a great deal to do with morale and the 'keep smiling' theme. The rest of the newspaper is kept busy supplying you with war news, knowing that it is required that they cover the headlines for your reading interest. But the comic strip artists can close their eyes to subs and blackouts and continue to serve their public with daring adventures, kidnappings, fantastic situations and laughable predicaments, causing chuckles from their old and young followers. These advocates might miss the comic strip, were it eliminated, more than the headline.

THE OLD 'HE, HAW'

This is a case of the mule giving the last laugh and it sounds like 'He, Haw.' The lowly beast is returning and playing an important role. He was thought to have been pushed into the picture of yesterday before the motor era burst into glory upon man, he was one of the school of 'has beens.' Back in 1917 he made a return engagement that was a success in the recording in the history books, and so he returns again today to play his part in another war, for in time of battle the mule is in demand.

You around St. Joe and Spencerville have been aware of the mule taking the place of mechanized equipment on farms since machinery manufacture has been halted or reduced to such an extent. And not only on the farm is the mule returning into his own but also on the battlefield. Wars are not found on hard surfaced highways for the convenience of the men, but in mud and bogs that tax and strain and stop the best of man-made tanks. Though we are fighting in the most keenly developed mechanized war that man has ever endured up to the present, even steel and rubber will fail where the mule strains through. He comes doggedly along in the pinches. So this is the reason that the mule is now bringing the average price of $185 a head is selling at the rate of 6,000 a month. Remember that he doesn't need tires or a retreading job.

BURYING THE AXE to beat the Axis, industries once competitive today cooperate in U. S. war effort. Latest example: Anaconda Copper needed more machinery to meet war demand for copper cable. Its peacetime arch-competitor, Aluminum Co. of America, found bulk of its own metal going into planes, turned over vast quantities of temporarily idle cabling machinery (such as pictured) to Anaconda at far below cost.

National and International Problems Inseperable From Local Welfare Problems.

The first step which must be taken in carrying the war to Japan is an obvious one—to disrupt and to break the long-extended Nipponese supply lines. Hundreds and in some cases thousands of miles of water lie between Japanese bases and areas she has conquered. Her life line consists of her merchant fleet and naval convoys. So long as she has enough protected tonnage to carry the immense quantities of supplies needed by her expeditionary forces, she will hold the upper hand. Once substantial inroads are made into her transport and fighting fleets, she will have to battle against steadily mounting odds. And the farther she goes across the wide Pacific, the more shipping she will require.

Therefore, there is encouragement in the casualties our military forces and those of other United Nations have been inflicting on Japanese shipping. Much of this news has never made the headlines which have been largely occupied by accounts of Japan's success in taking and mopping up Pacific positions. But it is the kind of news, that in the long run, will do much to determine the outcome of the war. As Paul Mallon puts it, "Day by day, in every way, our Navy and Army have been pecking away, mainly at the indispensable but unspectacular phase of the Jap attack—the transport, supply and tanker ships and their convoy protection."

The toll of Japanese losses is impressive. Up to March 19, the United Nations officially reported the sinking of 110 supply ships and damaging of 54, or a total of 164 put out of action. That, according to the most reliable estimates, is in excess of 20 per cent of all Japanese shipping which can be used for supply purposes.

The United Nations further reported the destruction of 17 Jap cruisers, along with 27 damaged, and the sinking of 22 destroyers plus 12 damaged. Two Jap battleships have been sent to the bottom. And so have three aircraft carriers.

The United Nations' ship losses have, of course, also been great. But the military importance of such losses can only be judged in the light of replacement capacity. According to Mr. Mallon, Japan's merchant shipbuilding capacity is 300,000 to 400,000 gross tons per year. We will build in the neighborhood of 6,000,000 gross tons this year and almost twice as much next year. In addition to that, our Allies will produce a considerable tonnage.

This does not mean we should run the danger of minimizing Japan's existing fighting fleet and merchant navy. Her main battle fleet has not yet been in evidence in this war, and is perhaps being held in reserve for a major engagement. It is likely that she has more fighting craft than used to be generally believed—there is certainly no reason for thinking that she carried out her part of the naval limitation agreements which she and all other naval powers signed back in the '20s. What this does mean is that, unless all authorities are wrong, Japan does not possess a ship replacement capacity in any way comparable to ours. Japan probably spent twenty years preparing for this war, and she had a big edge at the start. Our job is to overcome that edge.

The world-wide enthusiasm which followed the announcement of General MacArthur's dramatic transfer to Australia, and his assumption of supreme command of all United Nations' air, army and naval forces in the Pacific theatre, is easily understood. He is the war's number one hero. His achievement in the Philippines alone makes him one of the great commanders of history.

But we must not make the mistake of thinking that General MacArthur, brilliant and daring as he is, will immediately turn the scales. He cannot produce miracles. He made that very clear on his arrival in Melbourne, when he said: "Success in modern war requires something more than courage and willingness to die. It requires careful preparation. This means furnishing sufficient troops and sufficient materials to meet the known strength of the potential enemy. No general can make something from nothing. My success or failure will depend primarily upon the resources which our respective governments place at my disposal."

There is a challenge in that to every industry, every worker, every government official in this country. For the great bulk of the supplies of war must come from here. Autralia is a vast continent, but it has only 7,000,000 people and relatively little industry. We must become the "arsenal of democracy" in fact, not in theory.

The art of generalship is to do the most with what one has, to gain maximum result at minimum cost. General MacArthur has shown that he masters that art completely. But all his knowledge and competence will be useless if he lacks the tools.

In that connection, some of the best recent news is that telling of the production of big bombers on the assembly-line principle. The increase this has made possible in bomber output is a military secret, but it is said that it is great. Ford will shortly go into mass production of pursuit planes on an unprecedented scale. We must have unquestioned supremacy in the skies if our other fighting forces are to gain victories.

Seeks Re-Election

Congressman GEO. W. GILLIE Fort Wayne Republican, today announced that he will be a candidate for re-election from the Fourth District of Indiana.

GILLIE ENTERS RACE TO KEEP CONGRESS SEAT

Seeks Re-Election, Demanding Non-Defense Economy, Ban On Social Experiments

Pledging redoubled efforts to force drastic non-military economies and a war-time ban on Administration-sponsored social experiments, Congressman George W. Gillie, Fort Wayne Republican, today announced his candidacy for re-election from the Fourth Indiana District, subject to the May primaries.

The announcement was made as his formal declaration of candidacy was filed with the Secretary of State at Indianapolis. Accompanying his declaration were petitions of candidacy bearing the signatures of approximately 10,000 Republican voters of the Fourth District.

Congressman Gillie's district comprises the eight counties of Allen, Adams, DeKalb, LaGrange, Noble, Steuben, Wells and Whitley.

Because of his duties in Washington, Congressman Gillie said that it was unlikely that he would be able to return to Indiana for the coming campaign. He expressed appreciation for the pledges of loyalty and support he has received, adding that he saw in them "an indication that the people are determined to preserve the two-party system to insure efficient prosecution of the war.

Serving Second Term

Congressman Gillie was elected to Congress in 1938 by a majority of 20,000 votes, sweeping every county in the District. He was re-elected in 1940 by an even larger margin —22,000 votes. He led his ticket in both elections.

Through important committee assignments and diligent application to official responsibilities, Congressman Gillie has attained a place of leadership in the Republican party and in Congress. As the only Indiana member of the Committee on Agriculture, he has had an influential part in directing farm policies of the House majority.

A champion of all-out military preparedness, Congressman Gillie has voted for every dollar requested by the Administration for national defense purposes. A speech of his several months ago, urging an immediate speed-up in the defense program inspired Congressman Sabath, Illinois Democrat and Dean of the House, to declare:

"Mr. Speaker, I want to congratulate the gentleman from Indiana upon his patriotic and timely remarks, and I hope that each and every member here who has the interest of the country at heart will follow suit. We need more men like him, not only here but throughout the entire nation, to bring home the real need of co-operation and unity."

Urges Economy

A Scotchman by birth, Congressman Gillie has vigorously opposed the squandering of public funds for non-defense purposes, and has frequently advocated that some of the billions required for war come through drastic governmental economy.

"At a time when public officials are exhorting the people to buy bonds, to economize, to sacrifice and to work, the government should set the example," he asserted. "It should practice what it preaches. It should wield, without fear or favor, the ax of economy and efficiency—let the chips fall where they may.

The Government must clear its decks for action. It must put on the shelf all non-essential functions. It must lay aside, for the duration of the war, any further social or fiscal experimentation."

Congressman Gillie said that he could find no basis for the charge of complacency against the American people. "On the contrary," he declared, "they are eager for information and grim and determined to win this war as quickly as possible, with the least sacrifice of maimed and crippled boys."

Popular Public Official

Before entering Congress, Representative Gillie served four terms as Sheriff of Allen County, his last term ending in 1936. His popularity as a public official is attested by the fact that in the 1934 election he was the only Republican to win office in Allen County.

He obtained his education in the Fort Wayne public schools, International Business College, Purdue University and Ohio State University, where he was graduated in 1907 with a degree in veterinary medicine.

Congressman Gillie is a Reserve Captain in the Army Veterinary Corps, his last tour of duty having been served at Fort Bliss, Texas, in the Summer of 1941. He has two daughters, both of whom are married. A son-in-law, Lieut. Jack Strawbridge, is serving with the armed forces at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

MAKE EVERY PAY DAY BOND DAY

VOL. LVII (57 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, APRIL 9, 1942 NUMBER 15

PLANS TAKING FORM FOR MacARTHUR WEEK

Indiana today began mobilizing an army 50,000 strong "for the relief of Gen. Douglas MacArthur."

The army, made up of Civilian Defense Workers, American Legonnaires and Legion Auxiliary members, followers of both political parties and volunteers of all kinds, will not fire a shot but is determined that the report is makes after a brief campaign will be one that should be heard in Tokio and Berlin. This report will be on totals of Hoosier pledges for investment in United States Savings Bonds following MacArthur Week, the Monday thru Saturday house-to-house canvass scheduled to begin April 27. And much of that total will go for guns, tanks and planes for MacArthur's embattled armies.

Working under 118 Executive Committeemen of the Defense Savings Staff, scattered throughout the state, the Minute Men canvassers, many of them women, will begin their door-to-door drive early the morning of the 27th. At every home where the pledge is signed, a blue and white Patriot's Pledge window sticker will be left. Minute Men themselves will wear blue and white celluloid badges.

Organizations of the Minute Men into a canvassing army is expected to be completed within two weeks, when final meetings will be held in most communities before the beginning of the drive the following week.

Actually, the canvass will be broken down into precincts and then on a block-by-block basis.

Mechanics of the pledging will be simple. Everyone with an income will be expected to sign a pledge. The pledge forms are triplicate. The Minute Men will leave one copy of the pledge form with the signer. The other two filled-out forms will be placed in a government envelope. Later the original form will be mailed to Washington, and the duplicate to the Defense Savings Staff at Indianapolis for tabulation.

LIFE HISTORY OF FORMER ST. JOE LADY

The following is a reprint from the Ashley Times under date of April 3, and will be of special interest to many readers of The News:

It was in the year 1870 while living in Concord Township, DeKalb County, Indiana, that Vincent and Ann Dilley became the happy parents of a baby girl. They named her Cora May.

Her early education was received in the Saint Joe schools and in later years, nature and humanity were her teachers; from whom she learned many valuable lessons. The Bible was ever an important text book for her, from which she learned the lessons of faith in God and service to man. Her greatest joys came in being helpful to others.

In her young womanhood, she had a great desire to be a minister's wife. On August 4, 1897, she was united in marriage to George F. Osbun and one year later they moved to their first pastoral charge. For thirty-eight years she shared the work of the ministry with her husband. She counted nothing as a sacrifice but considered all things a joy and pleasure in the service of her Christ.

She was converted to Christ at an early age in the Lutheran Church in Saint Joe. She became a member of this church and remained a faithful member thereof until she and her husband took their first pastoral charge where he, as pastor of the church, received her by certificate into membership of the Methodist Church. She was a faithful member of the Methodist Church not only during the thirty-eight years of serving the church as a pastor's wife, but also during the six years she has lived in Ashley as the wife of a retired minister. She was very much interested in Missionary and Benevolent work and in the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. She was an active member of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist Church.

She suffered very much pain during the last months of her illness; but she bore this pain with very great patience.

Several times she talked of her illness and of the future. One day she said to her husband, "Do you suppose I will have to go away?"

He replied, "Well, Mam, if you do, it is all right, isn't it?"

"O yes," she said, "It is all right; but I would like to stay."

The scripture to be read by the minister was quoted by her as if she were talking to someone she knew. (Eccl. 12: 1-7 and Jn. 14: 1-21.)

She was the eldest of a family of six children, of whom two sisters and two brothers survive her death.

She leaves to follow her to that Better World the husband, one son, George, two daughters, Florence and Mary. Many other relatives and friends also are left behind.

These words of the Apostle Paul are both a very fitting tribute to Cora May Osbun and a very fitting testimony to the Christ:

"For whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord: whether we live therefore, or die, we are the Lord's. For to this end Christ both died, and rose, and revived, that he might be Lord both of the dead and living."

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at 2:30 P. M. at the Methodist Church. Rev. H. T. Shady officiating assisted by Rev. W. B. Fallis, of Orland, and Rev. A. E. Scotten, of Hudson.

EASTER AT HOPEWELL

Easter morning Hopewell Church had a sunrise service with Rev. Mitchell, from Grabill, as guest speaker, which was well attended. Following this the young folks were guests of Frank and Inez Dosch for breakfast. Later returning to the church for Sunday School at 10:00 o'clock. Sunday School attendance was 83, and offering, $7.18. The self-denial envelopes were brought in which amounted to over $16. This going for mission work.

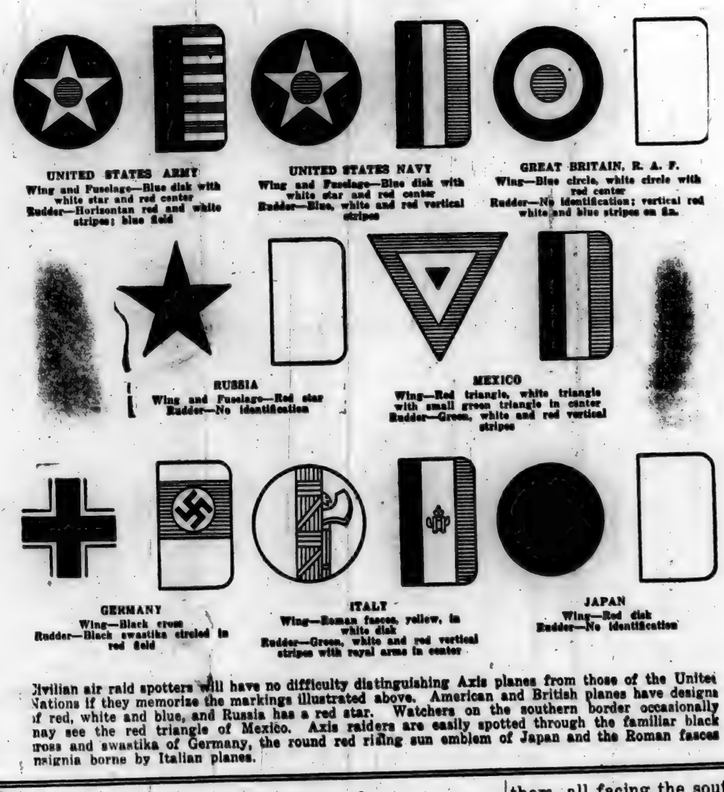
James McBride, Sr., of 8 and 1, is in Detroit, where he went Sunday to accept an appointment as captain in the air forces, and will locate there for 6 or eight weeks, taking special training. He has been employed at Bryan for the past year. His family will remain on the farm for the present.

How to Distinguish Nationality of Aircraft



Civilian air raid spotters will have no difficulty distinguishing Axis planes from those of the United Nations if they memorize the markings illustrated above. American and British planes have designs of red, white and blue, and Russia has a red star. Watchers on the southern border occasionally may see the red triangle of Mexico. Axis raiders are easily spotted through the familiar black cross and swastika of Germany, the round red rising sun emblem of Japan and the Roman fasces insignia borne by Italian planes.

Two Interesting Letters from Boys In the Armed Service

Camp Cooke, Calif.
3-22-'42

Dear Folks:

How are you getting along and how is everything on the farm? Did you get my card that we were going to California? They didn't tell us where we were going until we were lined up ready to march to the train. I wrote it on the go, so I couldn't say much.

We left Fort Benj. Harrison, Ind., at 8:15 Sunday Eve. Got to bed about 10:00 o'clock. I was in an upper berth, didn't know if it was safe to go to sleep or not, but I didn't fall out. We got up about 6:00 in the morning. The first place I knew where we were was Central Kentucky at 6:30. At 10:45 we stopped at Paducah, Ky. Kentucky is very hilly. At 3:15 P M we arrived at Memphis, Tenn., were there for two hours, when they switched us on to another railroal, but we couldn't get out. Memphis is a beautiful city and very large. We saw men working their ground, which is very rough and has a red sand.

As we left Memphis we crossed the Mississippi River, the bridge was about a quarter of a mile long, then we were in Arkansas. We didn't get to see much of this country for we crossed most of it at night, and what we did see was mostly under water, they had had a heavy rain. By times we would go for 3 or 4 miles and all we could see was waste timber and water. The people are mostly darkies and farm a little but not much. We saw a lot of wood cut and hauled out to the tracks ready to be shipped. They also cut a lot of railroad ties. They don't live in houses, they are only shacks, not fit to keep chickens in.

At 6:30 A M. Tuesday morning we were at Longview, Texas, passed through Terrell and at 9:45 were at Mesquite, Texas. This part of the country is very level and a black muck soil. The grass was green and lots of wild flowers out. They had a lot of their ground worked, we saw very few working for they also had a large rain. They raise a lot of corn, cotton and tobacco. At Dallas the ground is very rough and hilly and grazing is about all they do. We passed through Arlington and stopped for a while at Fort Worth, which is a very large and beautful city. Here they let us out for exercise for about ten minutes, first time since we left Indiana. After about an hour and a half we went on our journey.

From Brazo to Abelene is rough and hilly, most of the farms through this part of Texas are large and raise a lot of cattle mostly white face. I don't know what they raise, but it looks like cane. They cut it and shock or stack it. In their feed lot they have a large feed bin with a rough mill, whatever they raise they grind and feed in this self feeder. Some they combine but very little. They are just plowing their ground. They must raise some cotton near here for we see several cotton mills or baling places, but didn't see any cotton fields through this country.

Texas is all quite similar, farther on the ground seemed to be covered with some kind of small tree which resembled an apple tree yet the bark looks like our beech. Everything was leafed out except these trees. From El Paso, we went into the mountains, some winding around and then into the dessert in New Mexico. I was surprised at the dessert. I didn't think any thing grew there, but very little bare ground we saw. Mostly sage brush with a little wild grass. We saw a lot of cattle, and our cattle would find slim picking here. The homes are small and far apart.

On Thursday morning we arrived at Banning, Calif. I thot when we arrived here we would see only level and rich soil, but it is very rough. There are a lot of fruit orchards and truck gardens in California. And there are a lot of mountains. They graze a great deal. We saw several herds of good horses, they were large and mostly Belgians.

The cities in California are beautful, lots of palm trees. You take around and in thru the cities you see large dairys. It looks as if they dry feed the year around. They have bare lots of about one or one and a half acres in with about 25 milk cows. Feed bunks along one side with a drive between, large piles of baled hay in lots. Some of them have from 25 to 200 head. The barn is only large enough to hold about one lot at one time, I think they put them in for milking.

Their poultry is handled about the same way. They have from one to twelve or 15 coops one just back of the other, about 20 or 30 feet between them, all facing the south. All the lot they have is between the houses. Most of the truck farms and fruit orchards are irrigated, for they have a very small amount of rain during the summer.

Our camp is located along the ocean, we are about 2 miles back with mountains on the other three sides. The spot is mostly level and sand. This camp has only been started about three months. They have a lot of buildings to put up yet. I haven't been over the camp for we are under quarantine. Will be for 15 days, they take us out for drill but we can't go where other boys are at. This camp when complete will accommodate 14,500 soldiers, it seems like a large camp but they have some 5 or six times as large. This camp is the heavy artillery, made up of heavy tanks, trucks and large guns. I took a test Friday for driving an armored tank. Haven't heard from it. They are sure pushing the boys here. I am sure getting a nice red color, the sun shines hot during the day, but gets cool at night.

The nearest town around here is Lompoc, which is about ten miles away. We are about 165 miles north of Los Angeles and 175 miles south of San Francisco. We had another shot Friday and my arm is so sore I can hardly write. We have had three shots and only eight more to come. The train that we came in on had 24 cars and the only time they used two engines was coming over the mountains. They bring in several train or bus loads every day.

Well must close and write some other letters.

With love, Bob.

March 29, 1942

Dear Mother:

This is a typical Sunday morning, nothing to do, so I will try and get caught up on my wrting. I am a little behind and I can write only when I have time.

It is a little cool up here because we are right by the lake. We are located where all we have to do is to walk a short way and jump in the lake. It sure is beautiful scenery, except that men are constructing more and more barracks every day and it sure is muddy at times.

If you want to you can make up a nice bunch of fudge or cookies and send them up here. Some night when the girls are around they can make some if they want to. A lot of the boys are receiving candy and cookies from home and I would like to show them that people from Indiana can make candy and cookies, too. There are boys here from nearly every state in the Union. There is one here from Alabama and he sure is a corker. I have more fun with him than all of the other 130 in our Company. Bob Larkins is still with me and I hope we can stay together.

We are not supposed to play cards or drink or nothing until our three weeks of quarantine is up. We will probably get a 36 hour leave afterwards. We are supposed to move in eight weeks.

Well, it is getting around time for chow and I can't think of much more to say except that I want you to keep writing and tell some of the neighbors to write once in a while.

Goodbye for now, love, from your son, Burl, Jr.

My address is:

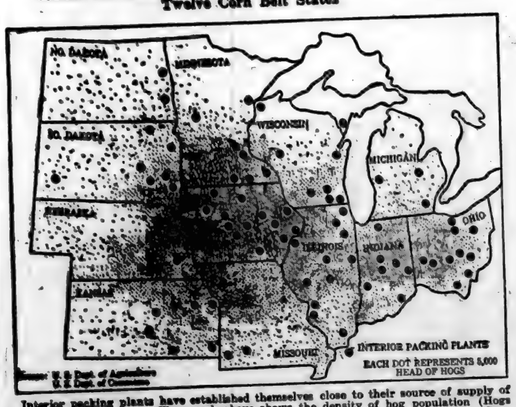
AN IMPORTANT HOME INDUSTRY

An important home industry in the form of interior packing plants and concentration point markets now absorbs a large volume of the Corn Belt hogs.

While packing plants have existed in the interior ever since the migration of corn and hogs into the Corn Belt states, their development into important meat packing centers did not begin until after the establishment of railroad transportation, refrigeration and the invention of the refrigerator car. These modern facilities for the first time made possible the slaughtering of livestock close to the point of production and the distribution of fresh and other perishable meats to distant consuming centers—in fact to all parts of the civilized world. This was a boon to the entire livestock industry as a whole, since live animals as well as meat are perishable.

HOGS ON FARMS AND INTERIOR PACKING PLANTS
Twelve Corn Belt States



Interior packing plants have established themselves close to their source of supply of raw material—livestock. The graph above shows the density of hog population (Hogs on Farms, Census, April 1, 1930) and the location of interior packing plants in the Corn Belt States. Concentration point markets that have followed packing plants into the interior are not shown, nor are the fifteen or more central markets located in this area at converging railroad lines in the larger cities. A host of markets, nearby or more distant, available by truck or rail transportation, now await the choice of the producer who has livestock to sell.

A second great impetus to this development of interior meat packing came during the last decade with the development of hard-surfaced roads and truck transportation of livestock. This new and additional form of transportation has made the interior packing plant and concentration point markets more readily available to a much larger number of producers than formerly, and, consequently, a larger volume of livestock has been sold in recent years to these nearby markets.

Under the present marketing set-up which these and other economic changes have brought about, the producer now has a wider choice of markets than ever before. Now he can sell and deliver less than a carload, or less than a truckload, or even just one animal to any one of several packing plants and concentration points available, or consign to a central market. More than ever before producers are now in a position to decide what method of selling livestock and what type of market they prefer.

Despite cynics around, there will always be people in every town like St. Joe who have enough faith in the cross to cling to it.

It is a compliment to our country when, not only father and mother practice economy, but the youngsters want to practice it as well.

A St. Joe woman thought she saw a robin with ear-muffs and figures that his song of love will have a cold note or two in it.

Heard a man say the other day that he thought we had reached the place in our American way of life where we have decided that common sense isn't too common to use.

If folks from Florida can pick up some sea shells and spring on their way north, maybe they might manage a rubber tire or two along with it.

Things won't ever get so bad around St. Joe that you won't find some men oiling up their fishing reel.

The way some fellows force those early morning smiles you would think they were trying to burlesque the sun.

We may be leaving the season of sauer kraut and spare ribs, but we are heading for watermelons and corn-on-the-cob.

"How long is an emergency" a friend asks, "for we have been going on for an awfully long time in an economic one."

They can't paint army life as too much of a hardship as long as they serve the men strawberry shortcake.

LAND OF COTTON

There was a deep groan not so long back from folks who held in family vaults the rights and titles to any number of acres of ground on which cotton was king, but a deposed monarch! The matter of help, price on the market, inability to sell women on the idea of cotton instead of silk, of disease to crops, all made the southern planter sigh and complain. But those who are the possessors of any mortgages or bonds of cotton grounds today are prizing them for their worth. Cotton is indeed king. The middle price for cotton recently was 19.32 and this quotation is the best since before the year of 1932 when cotton brought the grower five cents a pound. A decided increase and surely enough to encourage the fellow who owns his tract of cotton balls to hold for all he's worth.

TRESSES OF GOLD

The saying of gentlemen preferring blondes holds true in the manufacture of the precision instruments used in purposes of weather detection by the army. These instruments are carried into the clouds in small balloons, into the stratosphere to tell man of the weather conditions. They need blonde hair in the construction of the device. This hair must be 14 inches in length and brings $2.50 an ounce since it was another one of those items cut short by the war. When the news was heard, of the shortage, many a golden head was bowed for samples for the army's need. So many, in fact, that the supply on hand was more than adequate. It was another case of 'too many blondes.'

NEW GROSS INCOME TAX RATES OUTLINED BY TAX OFFICIALS

The new gross income tax rates applicable to returns due April 1 and delinquent after April 15 are: receipts from "selling at retail" by "retail merchants" (as defined in the Act,) ½ of 1%; laundering and dry-cleaning, ½ of 1%; industrial processing, enameling, plating, or servicing of tangible personal property for resale, ¼ of 1%, it was announced by Gilber K. Hewit, director of the state Gross Income Tax Division, who emphasized that no other changes in either rates or exemptions have been made.

The lower rates provided for in the 1941 Amended Gross Income Tax Act are applicable to income received on or after January 1, 1942, and so are effective now for the first time on the quarterly returns due April 1, which cover income received during the period January 1 to March 31.

Quarterly returns are required only from those whose tax exceeds $10 for the three months. The quarterly exemptions are $250 for each individual or business, with the exception of the qualified retail merchant, whose exemption is $750 per quarter.

As under the gross income tax law before amendment, receipts from wholesale sales as defined by regulation and receipts from display advertising are taxable at the rate of ¼ of 1%. All other gross income is taxable at the rate of 1%. (Sub-contractors formerly enjoyed the ¼ of 1% rate, but effective January 1, 1942 were declared taxable at the rate of 1% in accordance with an interpretation of the law by the state Attorney General.) New gross income tax regulations are now in the hands of the printer and will be available shortly, the division stated.

No taxpayer can report his receipts for taxation at the rate of ½ of 1% unless he is a retail merchant and unless such receipts are derived from selling at retail or unless he has receipts from laundering or dry cleaning, it was explained.

The term "retail merchant" is deemed by the legal section of the gross income tax division "to include only those persons who make retail sales of tangible personal property at a fixed and established place of business."

The attorneys for the gross income tax division have further ruled: "The fact that a store license is possessed will not in itself entitle any person to qualify" as a retail merchant. "No person will be considered as having a fixed and established place of business unless it is a place regularly operated as a store and is recognized as such. The mere fact that sales or delivery routes originate at a fixed place will not necessarily bring any person within these qualifications unless such routes are established sales routes to which the public has become accustomed. In no case will itinerant vendors, peddlers or solicitors be recognized by the Department as retail merchants ***.

"Selling at retail means and includes only a transaction by a retail merchant by which the ownership of tangible personal property is transferred, conditionally or otherwise, for a consideration, when such transfer is made in the ordinary course of the transferor's regularly conducted business and at a fixed and established place of business, and is required by the transferee for any other purposes " than the purpose of resale. "*'Tangible personal property' shall include only that which is held or handed as stock in trade for sale to customers in the ordinary course of the merchant's trade or business and shall not include tangible personal property which constitutes the merchant's capital assets even though such property is used in connection with his trade or business."

MOBILIZING FOR 4-H CLUB ACTIVITIES

4-H Mobilization Week will be held in DeKalb County April 5-7. All boys and girls interested in 4-H Home Economics projects will take part in 4-H Mobilization Week, announced Mary Lenore Moore, Home Demonstration Agent. This event replaces the National 4-H Club Camp held in past years at Washington, D. C. Youth in each county in the U. S. are thus given the opportunity to demonstrate again their loyalty and will to victory. National 4-H Club leaders and Club members feel it is more important this year to demonstrate the value of 4-H Clubs to the war effort than to reward a few of their members for outstanding effort. Mobilization is well under way announced Mary Lenore Moore, and already 26 organization meetings have been held in schools by the Home Demonstration Agent and the 4-H Adult Leaders and will continue throughout this week and next for girls in their respective counties. Thru these visits contacts are made to all who are eligible to participate in the county 4-H Home Economics projects.

DeKalb County is especially stressing the Canning Project and Food Preparation project as a definite part of the Victory program and especially encouraging enrollment in these two projects to preserve food supplies and help in planning for serving of better balanced meals for health.

Other 4-H Home Economic projects available are: Baking, Clothing and Room Improvement which also have their place in our national victory program. During mobilization week leaders will help to plan increased activities to assist the Victory effort. 4-H radio broadcasts will be on the air over local stations and national hook-ups. Look in your daily newspapers for the announcements of such programs during the week of April 5-11. Our goal for this week is "every 4-H eligible boy and girl in the county a club member."

4-H Leaders from this section of DeKalb County who have assisted Miss Moore in these organizations are: Miss Eva Mae Schwartz, Spencerville; Mrs. Lola Carper, Jackson Township; Mrs. Elsie Meek Newville Township, and Mrs. Doris Yeiser, Concord Township.

TO SPEED UP GERMINATION OF SEEDS

If you soak such vegetable seeds as beets, spinach and carrot in warm water all night and keep them in a warm room for a day afterwards the seeds will germinate more quickly.. ..You can speed up germination of seeds by nicking the hard coat with a sharp knife so as not to injure the interior of the seed. Flower seeds as sweet peas, lupins, morning glories and cannas may be treated this way....To insure thin sowing of seeds and reduce labor of thinning out excess plants, mix seeds with sand. Use light colored sand so that it shows against dark soil; you can see how far you have progressed in each row.

NEWS FROM COUNTY AGENT

POTATOES NEEDED

One to two servings of potatoes should be used daily for each person in the family in planning well balanced meals, says Mary Lenore Moore, DeKalb County, Home Demonstration Agent.

Mrs. W. B. Ward, Purdue extension gardener states, a real patch of potatoes on every Indiana farm would assure good food produced at an economical cost. The average annual consumption for Indiana is about three ond one-half bushels per person. This would mean that a family of five would require approximately 18 bushels of potatoes for the year's supply.

To grow this quality of potatoes from a sack of state certified seed, there are a few important essentials that would be well to follow. Potatoes should be planted on a well drained and fertile soil. The state certified seed should be cut in blocky pieces unless size two seed is used. The seed piece should be at least one and one-fourth up to two ounces in size.

If commercial fertilizer is placed in the row, the furrow should be at least six inches deep, the fertilizer placed in the bottom and then reforrowed. This mixes the fertilizer and the soil, as the seed piece should not come in direct contact with the fertilizer.

After the seed is planted, a shallow covering of about two inches should be put on and as the growth of the vine advances the furrow should be filled. This places the seed about four to five inches below the surface. The distance apart of the rows should be convenient for the type of cultivation. For hand cultivation, 26 to 28 inch rows and for power from 28 to 32 inches. The vine growth should cover the area between the rows to conserve the moisture and organic matter and aid in keeping down the weeds and cooling the soil.

The Irish Cobbler for early or late planting, or the Katahdin for medium or late are the most widely adapted varieties. The planting date in Indiana may vary from Aprl to June depending upon the location and the time of the year for maturity. Oftentimes, a few growers adhere to the moon phases or other planting signs regardless of the weather or the time of the year.

Potato seed may rot in the ground or the vines are killed by the late spring frosts when planted too early. The plant likes warm and moist conditions for growth and fairly moist conditions for tuber formation.

After the plants are six to eight inches in height, they should be thoroughly dusted or sprayed every seven to ten days to control the potato pests. The potato bug, the leaf hopper, and the flea beetle readily attack potato vines and unless controlled, will seriously damage the crop. It is not unusual to find growers harvesting as many as 20 to 25 bushels from a 100 pound sack of state certified seed when good potato philosophy has been followed.

PURDUE TESTS SHOW WHEAT GOOD HOG FEED

When properly fed, wheat is unsurpassed as a fattening feed for hogs, reports C. M. Vestal, in charge of Purdue swine feeding tests. For best results, the grain should be coarsely ground and supplemented with a protein-rich feed, such as tankage, soybean oil meal, mixed supplement, skim milk, or buttermilk. And, don't forget to provide wheat-fed hogs with a good mineral mixture.

Vestal points out that soaking whole wheat is a poor substitute for grinding and that finely ground wheat, when fed dry, forms a pasty mass in a pig's mouth, interferring with his appetite and digestion. Coarsely ground wheat and a dry protein supplement, available in separate compartments of a self-feeder, make a good fattening ration, requiring a minimum of labor.

A ration of 60 to 70 pounds of coarsely ground corn, 20 to 30 pounds of coarsely ground wheat, and 10 pounds of protein-rich supplement is splendid for sows and pigs during the nursing period or for weanling pigs, according to Vestal.

A free-choice of coarsely ground wheat, shelled corn, and tankage or other good protein supplement in a self-feeder is recommended for fattening hogs. Ear corn fed on the ground or feeding floor may replace shelled corn in this ration. If wheat is cheaper than corn, it may replace a part or all of the corn in either the two preceding rations, which may be fed with or without pasture, states Vestal.

When in doubt about feeding wheat, the best single rule to remember is that corn and coarsely ground wheat are interchangable in most hog rations, says Vestal. Digestive troubles due to feeding wheat are common in hogs.

Generally, when the price of a bushel of good quality ground wheat is not more than 10 per cent above the price of a bushel of No. 3 corn, the wheat is the cheaper feed for hogs.

Games and contests were a Barnyard Frolic, Fan Race, Group Stunts, Telephone, Careful Steppers, who were the Mesdames Messimer, Wineland and Carpenter. They very gallantly stepped on supposedly "eggs" while blindfolded which turned out to be stacks of crackers.

There were contests of Chinese Spelling won by Mrs. Waltz, Aunt Jemima won by Mrs. Chorpenning, Food contest won by Mrs. Wade. An Easter Egg hunt was won by Mrs. Zuber and Mrs. Hamilton who received a bag of candy for finding the least eggs deserving this by not being greedy.

LIONS CLUB LADIES' NIGHT

Monday night, April 6, was Ladies' Night for the St. Joe Lions Club and was attended by 50 Lions and guests.

The meeting was held in the Home Economics Room of the Spencerville High School and was begun with a carry-in supper at 6:30 after which the program was given.

At the opening of the program Patriotic and Lions songs were sung by the group. After this singing there followed a talk given by Ubaldo Cordova, a student from Puerto Rico, who is attending Tri State College. This speaker traced Puerto Rico's history over a period of years, told of their desire first to be free from Spanish rule and to be governed by the United States and now their hope for their political freedom. The crops, customs, education, geography and population were then discussed in order.

The next portion of the program was given over to music. These musical numbers were given by Miss Eleanor Chaney and James Weikert, of Harlan. These young people did a fine job of entertaining.

The concluding number on the program was a talk on the political and economical alignment of the countries of Central and South America. This speaker was Nicholas Escarrega, a Mexican, who is also a student at Tri State College.

In his talk this speaker in very plain English told why certain of these countries were dependent on European trade, why they were reluctant to break off relations with the European nations, also why others were devotedly loyal to the United States and why eventually there would be complete hemispherical solidarity in the New World. A lack of education among the masses as well as a poor financial background seem to be two of their greatest hindrances.

CHANEY

Phillip Calvin Chaney, the youngest son of George and Ruth Chaney, was born August 11, 1865, and died March 17, 1942, at the age of 76 years, 7 months and 6 days,—all his days having been lived on the family homestead.

On October 25, 1887, he was united in marriage to Clara Hauk who preceded him in death by three years. To this union was born one son, Roy, who together with his family alone remains at his father's passing.

As a father he was a constant source of wise counsel; as a grandfather he linked the past to the present; as a neighbor he was always ready and able; and to all who knew him, he was a friend.

SEE THE "FIRE-BUG"

Would you spend 30 cents for one of the best mystery novels of the year? Of course you would. But wouldn't you rather spend the same amount and SEE it acted out? You bet you would. Well, that's all you will have to pay for a ticket to see "The Fire-Bug," which is the intriguing title of the three-act mystery play to be presented by the Senior class on Friday night this week in the Auditorium.

To tell the plot would only be to spoil the play for those who attend. Sufficient to say that you will be sitting on the edge of your seat with breathless interest throughout the entire play, and we'll wager that during intermissions, you'll be on the point of biting your fingernails with anticipation.

Don't forget the time (8:00 CWT) the price (20 - 30c tax included) the date (April 10) or the place (Auditorium.) You'll never regret seeing The Fire-bug. 15t1.

Walkie-Talkie

Far in advance of the main body of troops, or off on a coast to the flank, is the observer and his "walkie-talkie" operator. Although separated by distance, he is in constant communication with his commander, reporting activities from his vantage point. Separated battalions and companies are coordinated by the same means. Although the field artilleryman's guns may be thousands of yards to the rear, the forward observer with the walkie-talkie radio can climb a tree near the front and direct fire accurately on the enemy. Better than the sniper is the radio operator who can hide in a hollow tree and bring a barrage of high-explosive shells to pay target he can see.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Emrich, of Lafontaine, Ind., and Earl Sharp, of North Manchester, were here for Easter, guests of their parents, Rev. and Mrs. L. B. Sharp.

Word has been received from Dr. Ralph Beams, who was injured in an automobile accident, that he is slowly improving. He will be taken to Atlanta, Georgia, this week.

Mrs. Edith Akey spent several days last week at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Klopfenstein and family in Ft. Wayne. Mrs. Klopfenstein has been quite ill, but is much improved.

Pastor Frank Stevenson and family will be in Springfield, Ohio, Thursday and Friday of this week attending the "Institute on Preaching" at Hamma Divinity School, Wittenberg College.

Mr. and Mrs. Rolla Genth and Mr. and Mrs. Lime Cooly and children and Mrs. Schrumn of Fort Wayne, were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rhoads. Afternoon callers were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jones, of Battle Creek, Mich.

The Young Ladies Social Club was pleasantly entertained Friday night at the home of Mrs. Pauline Baumgartner. Those lucky for the evening were Mrs. Alien Neher, Mrs. Ruby Krafft, Mrs. Kathryn Dean, Mrs. Cleo Reed and Mrs. Zelpha Steward.

CARS COLLIDE AT LYSHERS CORNERS ON 101

On Friday evening of last week, two cars, one driven by Donald Cook of near Hicksville, and the other by Roscoe Sechler, of Edgerton, collided at the crossing of State Road No. 101 and the Newville Road near the Edgar Lysher home.

Mr. Cook was driving north on the hard surfaced highway, and so had the right of way, and supposed the other car would stop. Mr. Sechler was driving west, and although he made the effort, did not get his car stopped, and hit the Cook car broadside, turning it around, then it toppled over on its side. Fortunately no one was seriously hurt. Mrs. Cook escaped wtih a sprained wrist and her husband and Mrs. Sechler received a few scratches. The Cook car was damaged beyond repair, and the Sechler car had broken head lights and windshield. Edgar Lysher was standing in his yard and saw the crash. He said neither car was going fast which probably accounts for the occupants lucky escape from serious injury.

After Sheriff and State Police had looked over the situation and departed and part of the crowd had left, those that remained witnessed another smash-up when Byron Widney, a man of eighty years, and living on Road 1, north of Ralph Sechler's corners, drove his car into a milk truck parked at the scene of the first accident. Mr. Widney missed turning at the corner at Ralph Sechler's, so drove on east. He said he didn't see the truck until it was right before him and he couldn't stop. A tire blew out and the windshield was shattered in his car. The men who helped him out of the car, said the particles of glass were thrown all over Mr. Widney, and it was a miracle that he wasn't badly cut with the broken glass. The boys changed his tire and he drove his own car home.

LADIES LITERARY CLUB ENTERTAIN HUSBANDS

The Ladies Literary Club, of St. Joe, entertained their husbands at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Cole on Wednesday evening, April 1st.

The dining table was centered with a beautiful bouquet of jonquils. Each place was marked with a favor, as were the small tables in the living room. Partners for dinner were found by—who is holding the other end of the string. After all were seated the committee served the first course of the dinner which consisted of hot rolls and butter, mashed potatoes and gravy, escalloped chicken, harvard beets, vegetable salad, deviled eggs pickles and coffee. Between courses each gentleman was given a strip of crepe-paper and pins with which he made an Easter hat for his partner. The next course was angel food cake topped with crushed pineapple and whipped cream.

Mrs. Cole then presented a Quiz Program and after this told the guests there would be a peanut hunt which was an April Fool joke. NO peanuts hidden! Mrs. Fred Hart read a poem which she had written in honor of the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. William Staman. She then presented them with a gift which was an April Fool joke, of an old sun bonnett, old purse, pair of oxfords and a worn out pair of silk hose, all wrapped in pink crepe-paper. The poem is as follows:

ROMANCE OF 1917

'Tis said, that Bill and Avis
On a foolish April Day
Decided to get married,
In a foolish sort of way.

Now April first on Sunday came,
So they to church did go.
As they listened to the sermon
Bill kept saying: "I love you so."

Let's go down to the parsonage
And begin the game of life.
And when the words were finally said
They came home "Man and Wife."

They tried to keep it secret,
But "murder will out" they say,
And when the neighbors found it out,
Poor Bill, he had to pay.

But that was not as bad a joke
As getting the license to wed.
Poor Bill! He drove a firey horse
Which ran away, 'tis said.

So Billy lost the license
And had to go for another.
But when the clerk refused him one,
He said: "I'll tell my Mother."

Then finally searching through his coat,
He found it. His temper cooled
And he married Avis on April first.
Now didn't they get fooled?

But oh! How time has sped along,
'Tis twenty-five years today,
Since they were fooled, that April first,
Let's wish them joy alway.

Mrs. Vernie Monroe placed four doughnuts on a plate and chose Mrs. Allen Haller, Mrs. Charles O. Krise, Frank Curie, and Leslie Wilbern to see who could eat ther doughnut first. The attempts to consume the doughnuts proved futile to Mrs. Krise, Mr. Curie and Mr. Wilbern as theirs were rubber.

The guests were then divided into four groups according to their birthdays. First group those that came in January, February and March; second group, April, May and June; third group, July, August and September; and fourth group, October, November and December. Each group recited a poem, sang a song and put on a stunt.

The guests lead by Harvey Hull sang "Happy Birthday" to Edith Cole, Mary Wilbern, Elizabeth Smith and Carl Carpenter, as their birthdays were this week.

After saying "thankyou" and "good night" to the hostess and committee, the guests departed for their homes feeling they had spent a very enjoyable evening together.

The following were present: Mr. and Mrs. Carl Carpenter, Mrs. Inez Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Curie, Mr. Stanley Garman and son, Mrs. Inez Hadsell, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Haller, Mr. Fred Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hull, Mr. Ralph Keeler, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. O. Krise, Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Leighty, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Leighty, Mr. Vernie Monroe, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Perkins, Miss Elizabeth Smith, Mr. and Mrs. William Staman, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Storer, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Wilbern, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Woodcox, Mr. Byron Widney, Mrs. Guy E. Walker, of South Bend, the host and hostess and the committee which consisted of Mrs. Claude Husted, Mrs. Vernie Monroe, Mrs. Stanley Garman, Mrs. Ralph Keeler, Mrs. Fred Hart and Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser.

The club will meet next with Mrs. C. C. Woodcox, on Wednesday evening, April 22 at 7:30 CWT.

Class Prophecy

by Frances Reidenbach, Patricia Maxwell, Roger Hadley

What have we here in uniform,
A baseball pitcher, sur's you're born.
It's FRANKLIN WIERS, watch him throw
That ball across the plate just so.

Next I see a charming miss,
ROSE AYERS, sweet actress.
To her grace and acting part,
Many a man will lose his heart.

A missionary quite sincere
Is DELORIS KEENER, have no fear.
In distant lands she will abide
And win the heathen to her side.

A voice upon the air, how sweet!
In singing, JO McCANN is hard to beat.
You'll hear her every night, I know,
If you turn on your radio.

A hostess in a large hotel
Is MARJORIE MILLER, she serves folks well.
Her winning ways and sweetest smile
Will hold the patrons there awhile.

A tennis star is DICK REED
At the top he'll take his stand.
A second Don Budge is he
The greatest tennis star to be.

A surgeon who has prolonged life
For many with his skillful knife.
HAROLD YEISER'S name is sung with praise
His work's well done in every phase.

And now in all political fights,
Defender of her woman's rights,
We find DOROTHY MAURER'S name
She saith that politics is her game.

RUSSELL WALTER now a big strong man
Is doing well in his hot dog stand.
In fact, his business is so good
He's hired DOROTHY HOOK to serve the food.

MAURICE HURNI will in time
Reach the top in his own line.
He's an elevator boy
His ups and downs do not annoy.

Before a microscope we find
The great biologist of all time.
No flower or bug can come his way,
But that FRANKLYN SECHLER will have his say.

True to his early high school dreams,
His plans have all come true it seems.
A stern and solemn parson now
The Reverend ARGERBRIGHT make his bow.

CORKY, happy, carefree girl,
With flashing eye and hair acurl,
A nurse, I'm sure we'll all get sick,
And ask for CORKY as our pick.

MARY HANES next on the list,
Has become a great ventriloquist.
She owns a Punch and Judy show,
Her tongue is always on the go.

An orator "Let's right the wrongs."
PAUL KITCHEN shouts to the throngs.
He waves his arms, his eyes flash fire,
"To save the world is my desire."

Now no one class could be complete
Without an artist hard to beat,
VIOLET COOK wins the coveted fame,
In "Who's Who" will find her name.

Here we find a nice old maid.
So dignified, precise, and staid.
Poor BONNIE PLATTER couldn't find
The man she thought was just her kind.

I see bright lights and gayety
Fair maids all decked in finery,
The band comes out all set to go,
JO FREEBURN is the gigolo.

Now here's a future all would like,
A happy, carefree, easy life.
To VIRGINIA WELLS came great wealth.
She married a man with failing health.

An explorer into distant lands,
JIM McBRIDE takes his bands
Of natives, who so willing came
To capture all the wildest game.

There's one more fortune in this pot;
The best and longest of the lot.
I wonder whose this one can be?
Let's open it and we shall see.
Ah! This is one for ST. JOE HIGH,
What do the oracles prophesy?
Its first and foremost aims shall be
To seek the truth as endlesly
As education in the past
Has used this goal and hung on fast
To those true aims which make men free
And strengthen our democracy.
To give to each and every child
Who through its spacious portals filed
That equal chance to happiness
Which comes from putting to the test
The talents with which he's endowed;
No other aims will be allowed.
Its courses, then, will give free minds
To win the struggle of our times,
To tell the wrong from what is right
And give to all a nobler life.
A better school in years to come
When all proclaim, "Your work's well done."
When boys and girls can later say:
"I helped to make our school that way."

SENIOR PLAY

A large appreciative audience spent an enjoyable evening last Friday endeavoring to solve the mystery of "Who dunnit?" as members of the Senior class presented their play, "The Fire-Bug." It would be difficult to select an individual star of the play since each member of the cast so well portrayed the character he was to represent.

The plot resolves itself into a search for the maniac who has terrorized the villagers of the summer resort by robbing and then burning a number of homes.

Pamela, a responsible elder sister, who ultimately solves the mystery by discovering the guilt of Stanley Powell, her fiance (Paul Kitchen,) was ably played by Dorthy Hook. Stanley Powell keeps up the pretense of being a fairly well-to-do, desirable local boy until the very last scene. Virginia Wells, as Ursula, Pamela's sister, was called upon to do a fine bit of acting in the dramatic scenes which finally led to her murder. As the play progressed, suspicion fell on Dark Cloud (George Argerbright,) an Indian who had been befriended by the girls; Jacob Carter (James McBride) a cousin, who practically incriminated himself; and Donald Crow (Maurice Hurni,) a "resorter" whom the natives naturally viewed with suspicion. These characters gave most convincing evidences of guilt.

The plot was further complicated by false clews of Peggy Caldwell (Mary Hanes) a sophisticated reporter from the city, and Charlene Depree (Dorothy Maurer) whose ability (?) as a crystal gazer only added to the confusion. Jim, one of the vigilantes, played by Ruessell Walter, and Sheriff Obadiah Duncan played by Franklyn Sechler played the part of "the law," whose efforts came to naught.

Comedy relief was furnished by Cordelia Diederich, who very cleverly played the part of Irva Sawyer, a very nervous old maid neighbor, who was nearly hysterical worrying over the fires. The act in which the sheriff, her long time admirer, makes love to her proves to be the high comedy spot of the play.

Much credit for the splendid lighting and sound effects goes to Harold Yeiser.

The prelude and chaser were furnished by the Concordiers who, for a specialty, gave an original arrangement of Deep in the Heart of Texas.

The Girls Chorus sang between acts. Their numbers were: Out of the Dusk to You and Old Fashioned Garden.

Junior-Senior Banquet

Commencement week activities began Saturday when the Junior Class honored the Seniors at a banquet and theater party. The banquet was held at Auburn Hotel after which the guests enjoyed Katherine Hepburn and Spencer Tracy in Woman of the Year at the Emboyd Theater in Ft. Wayne.

Dinner appointments were carried out in Senior class colors, blue and white. Bowls of red roses, the class flower, formed center pieces for the tables and candles of blue and white were used. Nut cups were worked out using the three colors and the patriotic theme was further worked out in the blue program booklets with the Victory V used on the front cover.

Eugene Baker, acting as Master of Ceremonies, introduced Harold Keller of the Junior Class who gave the address of welcome. Paul Kitchen responded for the Seniors. The class prophecy was read by Frances Reidenbach and the class will by James McBride. Rose Ayers and Mary Hanes sang Moonlight Cocktail. The program was concluded by all singing The Star Spangled Banner with Mrs. Voss leading and Mrs. Wilbern at the piano.

In addition to the members of the two classes, guests included Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Wilbern, Mrs. Florence Husted, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Garman, Miss Elizabeth Smith, Mr. Charles Sharp, Mr. and Mrs. F. V. Hampel, Mr. Dale Wicoff, Mrs. Marcella Voss, Mr. Sam Mumaw and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Stallman.

PROWLERS ENTER THE LEIGHTY HOME

The Leighty brick residence has been entered a number of times lately by boys, as indications point. Mr. Leighty reported to The News Monday that stamps had been removed from a collection of old letters in the home, and some parents might trace the offenders in this way. Entrance has been gained by going through the basement, and another by upstairs window. Mr. Leighty stated that he did not wish any boy to be injured, but that traps were set to catch them, and it may not be difficult to tell where some of the prowlers have been in the future, should they attempt entering this old home again. Parents ought to warn their youngsters likewise.

NEWS HEARS FROM FORT KNOX BOY

Wayne Bowser, of St. Joe, a recent enrolle in the service, writes The News as follows:

"I thought I'd drop you a line or two. I'm going to Radio Operators School now. I started last Thursday, and I seem to like it very much. This class lasts until July 10 and after that I don't know where I'll go. If I do good in this I'd like to go on and be a radio electrician. Army life isn't as bad as I heard it was. I've had good eats and swell officers everywhere I went."

Sincerely yours,

Address: Wayne W. Bowser, 14th Co., A. F. S.-D., Ft. Knox, Ky.

APPRECIATION

We wish to thank all who were so kind and thoughtful during our great sorrow, the loss of our Mother.—Mr. and Mrs. Francis Sible, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Sechler and son, Mr. and Mrs. Ferm Bloom and daughter.

RAY LITTLEFIELD WRITES FROM CALIFORNIA

Camp Roberts, Calif.
April 6, 1942.

Mrs. Fred Draggoo:

I received your Easter card and package the other day when I returned from the hospital and was very glad to hear from you.

I was in the hospital two weeks but I feel fine now and hope that I can keep on feeling good as I don't like to lay around very well now, as I have work to do and can't very well do it in bed.

We have been having pretty wet weather out here for the last five days but it looks like it will clear up in a day or so, and I sure hope that it does, as I am tired of wading in mud.

Well think I had better close as I have to go back to the garage to work on a truck, so goodbye for now.

Yours truly,

Pvt. Ray Littlefield, Btry. E. 191, FA Regt., East Garrison, Camp Roberts. Calif.

NEWVILLE CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION SUNDAY

The Newville U. B. Church will celebrate its Centennial year on next Sunday, April 19. The church was organized by Bishop Henry Kumler, Jr. in 1842. He also dedicated the first building in 1855. Rev. Jonathan Thomas was the first pastor. The present building was dedicated by Bishop H. H. Fout on April 19, 1914.

Services will be held both in the forenoon and afternoon, with a basket dinner at the noon hour. Dr. B. H. Cain, D. D., Conference Superintendent, will speak in the morning on the subject "The Challenge of a Century." Rev. O. P. Givens, of Piereeton, Ind., a former pastor, will bring the message in the afternoon.

A feature of the afternoon will be the presentation of a scene no other church in DeKalb County can duplicate, and perhaps very few churches in the state.

The public is invited to attend these services and join in the basket dinner.

GEORGE CAMPBELL DIES OF CANCER

George Campbell, 68, well known over DeKalb County as an Auburn garage man died Friday night at the Lutheran Hospital. Twelve weeks ago he underwent a gall bladder operation but failed to recover. An autopsy revealed cancer of the liver. Being born on September 5, 1873 in Auburn, he spent his entire life there. He was engaged in the buggy and wagon business with his father years ago. Later George Campbell saw that the automobile was to replace the horse, so he began to convert his business to a garage and auto sales agency. He sold out in 1920 to Artus Coyle, intending to retire. However, two years later he repurchased he business, and his son, Wilbert, went into partnership with him. He retired permanently in 1924.

Burial was made in Woodlawn Cemetery Monday afternoon.

One of the most useless things we can think of is for a man to yell "quiet" at a base ball game on opening day.

The way some hens around St. Joe are producing, it is a good thing they aren't working on union hours and wage scales.

A strange thing, how easy it is for us to look on the bright side if it is the other fellow's trouble.

Before we are through we may find it better to have a horse and buggy in every workman's garage than a chicken in the pot.

The fellow who was poor in mathematics in school, grows up to recognize a half-wit as soon as he contacts one.

The government is so busy organizing troops that the crowd has a hard time keeping its bowling team intact.

They can spend their time on predicting when the war will be over but many folks are too busy wondering if they are going to get enough spring onions this year.

That man is a hero who takes unto himself the task of explaining to any modern youth, the 'facts of life.'

At any minute we expect to read another article where Hitler states he doesn't want war.

It is just a matter of the age in which we live the difference between chivalry and chiselry.

Wonder if it might help the situation if we all got together on an international laugh?

It may reach the place where we won't mind being called a heel as long as they mean a rubber one.

Would you rather have others see us as we see ourselves, or let well enough alone?

WOMEN TALKING

No doubt you St. Joe men have often wondered what women talk about when they are together and probably privately felt it could all be covered by using the word 'gossip.' Maybe you flattered yourself that they talked mostly about men, hoping it was all for the best. But it seems that women spend three times as much talk on clothes as on men. There are places where women gather that they exchange words on books, but more places where they exchange talk on parties. In your beauty shops, clothing shops, washrooms and so on, women converse fluently in this line-up. Thirty per cent talk about clothes, twelve per cent choose men, eight per cent like church, club and school activities, six per cent discuss beauty aids, five per cent take pleasure in their operations and travels. We always figured the latter would rate higher, but you never can tell until a survey comes along. The remaining eighteen per cent cover the field from philosophy to bow-legs, so you must admit a woman's conversation is variable and surely all-enveloping.

BAD TEMPERS

They are always trying things out in laboratories and finding out cures and causes. We read recently where some scientists have measured bad temper by testing twenty small boys, with a difficult sort of game they awarded them poker chips for correct guesses. Ten chips gave them a reward of their favorite bar of candy. Then, after calling a line of "wrong guesses" against them, the boys became up-set and angry and consequently reacted to the test by tensed muscles and perspiration. This then gave the scientists an opportunity to study each case of bad temper. They found that where the temper is shown the 'getting over it' is accomplished more easily than when the child is outwardly calm and inwardly seething. Whatever difference this makes in our daily lives we don't know, in fact, it is a situation that most of us have already discovered for ourselves, but if they can test these small boys and then turn around and work on bad temper in grown up men, we think the world in general would be a safer place in which to live and love.

AFTER—WHAT?

No doubt there is a heartening note in the plans of government already studying problems which will arise AFTER war is over. Are we going to be able to face what seems to be ahead of us, to be capable of planning ways and means of meeting economic pressure which is bound to arise what with the vast increases in production machinery necessary in building up our defense. There is a National Resources Planning Board which is devoting its time to studying this question and they have already given out some information regarding what we might expect in case the war was to end in 1944. To demobolize an army, to take away workers in war industry and add the total of workers in non-war industries, there will be around the neighborhood of 28,000,000 persons without work. Try and turn this number into peacetime production, from making arms and munitions to ordinary goods for our every day needs, would be a strain on our national economy. There is another note which is more hopeful struck by a national economist who feels that there will be such rehabilitation necessary in the Old World, that America will lead in the repair work for the globe and can thus keep its iron and steel mills going, its factories and mines working full tilt, shipping pushed, a world passing credit and goods from nation to nation, a cooperation between peoples that has never been before. He feels that necessary commodities will be in demand from long needed wants and the consumer will want to be supplied at a busy pace. Can we take it?

BASEBALL WARM UP

It won't be long before the impact of ball against the bat which has been heard in southern ball parks during the season of training, will be sounded in the north and again the line will file through the park turn-stiles to be on hand to join in the resounding cry of 'play ball.' There has been a bit of talk of the shortage of players and the consequent falling off of patronage due to war pressure and lack of interest in the loss of big names and individuals. But there is something that exists between men and baseball that war won't stop and the fact that there have been prominent players inducted into the army doesn't mean that there won't be some mighty good baseball played this summer. And even if your favorite outfielder of the big leagues won't be there you will still go out to the small home town games and yell just as lustily as before, in fact you may be yelling louder to let off pent up steam due to the nervous reaction brought on by war. We realize there is the topic of health involved in the striding forth of America's spiked feet, that morale enters into the picture, so shadows of war won't keep the bleachers from being populated, the annual parade to the flagpole from being undertaken. Let the statesmen hurl the first ball, the pennant go to the best, have the games on time, the women still having their day, the children crowding into the grand stand, come on out uniforms and let's get started. Big teams have drawn thousands, little teams that fight just as hard before a handful of loyal fans, let the crowd charge the air with favor and boos it all goes with this sport of the American people, men fighting in the name of clean, wholesome sport. One, two, three strikes and still America isn't out as long as she keeps her eye focused on the ball!

MEN 45 TO 65 TO REGISTER APRIL 27

That local boards in Indiana are being instructed concerning the forthcoming registration on April 27 of all men who attained their forty-fifth birthday on or before February 16, 1942, and have not attained their sixty-fifth birthday on April 27, 1942, was announced today by Colonel Hitchcock, state selective service director. It is estimated that approximately 339,000 Hoosiers in this age group will register.

Hours of registration will be between 7:00 A. M. and 9:00 P. M. on April 27, but local boards will be permitted to register physically or mentally incapacitated persons and inmates of institutions a day or two prior to April 27, if the local board desires.

Although the men to be registered on April 27 are not liable for military service under the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940, as amended, they will be registered in much the same manner as men who enrolled in previous registrations, Colonel Hitchcock said.

Local boards, aided by volunteer registrars will conduct the registration and will record the same information on registration cards as was recorded for men of the first three registrations.

Registration cards will be buff in color and there will be no substantial change in form.

As the men of the fourth registration are not liable for military service, there will be no National Lottery for them and no order numbers issued although serial numbers will be placed on registration cards by local boards, it was stated.

"As in previous registrations, it is estimated that only a few minutes will be required to register each man but registrars are expected to use the utmost caution so as to insure listing of correct answers to the questions on the registration card," Col. Hitchcock informed local boards.

The questions pertain to the registrant's name, place of residence, mailing address (if other than place of residence) telephone, age in years and date of birth, place of birth, name and address of a person who will always know the registrant's whereabouts, his employer's address, and the place of his employment or business.

HOOSIER HOME FRONT

INTERESTING HOM EFRONT NEWS IN INDIANA

This week the war came to the Hoosier farmer in a brand new way. Already he has had to show good cause before he could either electrify his farm or extend electrical facilities.

Now he must get a priority rating if he wants to build a residence or put more than $500 repairs on one. And he must get a priority rating if he wishes to construct any project on his farm which will cost $1000 or more.

The order, issued by the War Production Board is equally binding on property owners, builders and suppliers, and in most categories prohibits not only the start of construction, but the withdrawal from inventories, and the sale, purchase or delivery of any material for use in such a project unless expressly authorized by the WPB.

It hits the city dweller as well as the farmer. Ant it further prohibits the construction of any project of $5000 or more, including commercial, industrial, recreational, institutional, highway, roadway, sub-surface, and utilities construction, whether publicly or privately financed, without permission.

Moreover, the WPB this week ordered immediate and drastic curtailment in the output of track-laying tractors used principally in agricultural operations.

No priority rating is necessary however, to buy standard replacement parts, except tires. See your tire rationing board about them.

To win this war we must give it everything we have—and that's just what we're going to do. By the end of three months practically all production of civilian goods and gadgets, the goods and gadgets we can get along without, will have come to a full stop. And the men and the plants and the machines will be at work on military contracts.

The War Production Board has long been slicing away at civilian manufacture, and now two far-reaching orders complete the process, funnel vast quantities of metal and materials away from the channels of peacetime consumption and into the stream—the growing stream—of ships and guns and planes and tanks.

We have just one project now and that project is to produce, to bury our enemies beneath the weight of the metals and materials we have transformed into weapons.

We are getting along with that project, too. Last month we spent more than three billion dollars on our war effort, more than two and a half billion of it on munitions and war construction.

That means we're now producing weapons for our troops and sailors and those of our friends and aliens at the rate of about 30 billion dollars worth a year. It's not enough, of course—we must do better and we are going to do better—but it's three times as much as we were doing last year and let Hitler and Hirohito and Mussolini think that over, for a while.

Incidentally, it's infinitely more than we did on the home front in the last war. In the last war we didn't get around to restricting the output of automobiles until August of 1918 and even then we permitted manufacture to go on during the rest of that year at a rate of one-quarter of normal. But then, never in the last war was our situation as serious as it is today, never did much depend upon the sacrifices of the home front. Today we must sacrifice for our allies as well as for ourselves, and today we must save as we did not save in 1917-18 because we are cut off from sources of materials which were open to us in the last war.

OPA warns that you had better buy your coal for next winter now or soon...We may not be able to spare transportation space next autumn to get it from the mines...The supply of adult bicycles has been "frozen," and bicycles will be made available to war workers first and to other civilians afterward....The Red Cross will collect those cuffs cut from trousers and will realize a profit on their sale to wool processers...OPA permits retailers of gasoline in the 17 states affected to charge three cents a gallon...The war production drive proceeds apace with more than 300 major companies now fully participating and several steel makers reporting alltime records broken...Several firms have been penalized for violating alumnium priorities....Atfer June 30 tin may be used to can only a limited variety of condensed soups...OPA has ruled that mud and snow tires can't be replaced by new summer tires but must stay on the rims until worn out...Such tires have heavy rubber lugs and treads...WPB has taken over control of the entire supply of loofa sponges...A loofa Sponge, in case you don't know, is a sponge made from fibers of a plant called the luffa or loofa plant grown extensively in Japan...It looks like a squash and its fibers absord oil readily, hence it has military uses for oil filters...Don't throw away stove pipe this spring, there'll be very little new pipe...And take care of your vacuum cleaner.

HANDLE WITH CARE TOMATO PLANTS

There is a disease of tomatoes known as mosaic, which does not ordinarily kill the plant but it does stunt the growth and reduce the yields. This disease may be recognized by the mottled color and peculiar distortion of the leaves, particularly of the new growth.

Mosaic is spread by handling the plant, explains the Purdue botany department. A few diseased transplants when handled in setting them out in the garden may spread the disease to several other plants. Cutting the suckers from diseased plants and then doing the same thing on healthy plants will spread the disease, it is said.

Here are a few precautions that may save tomato plants from becoming infected, according to the Purdue plant patheologists:

1. When you buy your tomato plants look them over carefully and discard every plant that has mottled or distorted leaves. Pick these plants out separately and do not handle the healthy plants until after you have washed your hands with soap and water.

2. Grow your own plants because there is practically no danger of starting the disease from the seed. However, if you do grow your own plants do not handle tobacco while working with the plants.

3. If a diseased plant appears in the garden, pull it out and destroy it, or at least do not work on this plant and then handle healthy plants.

4. This mosaic disease is caused by an infectious substance known as a virus. It is in the sap of the diseased plant and can be easily spread from plant to plant by handling or by certain suckling insects line the plant lice.

The tobacco plant may be infected with the same virus, and handling wet tobacco while working with tomato plants is an excellent means of spreading the disease. Horse nettle and ground cherry are both susceptible to this virus and, being perrenial weeds, they become centers of infection if permitted to grow in the tomato patch or around the hotbed where the young plants are being grown.

PLANT PLENTY OF BEANS

Every gardener should find a place in the year's garden plan for beans, which is one of the most popular vegetables and perhaps next to tomatoes the most widely used, states W. B. Ward, Purdue extension gardener.

When used in the green or snap stage, the bean compares favorably with other green or yellow vegetables in vitamin content as well as in fuel or calorie content is much greater and other values are increased that do not show when used green.

Bean plants are of the bush or pole types. They are also grouped as green, yellow, shell beans, dry beans, (Navy,) and Lima beans. Most seedsmen list from 25 to perhaps 100 different varieties some of which are more adaptable to local conditions than others.

The bean will mature from 45 to 75 days, depending upon the variety and the time of planting. Although the bean plant is readily attacked and often seriously damaged by the Mexican bean beetle, this pest may be controlled by timely and thorough applications of insecticides. Non-poisonous material as Derris (Rotenone) or Pyrethrum extracts are recommended for control especially after the bean pods are formed.

Of recent years edible soybeans have found a place in some gardens and they too should be watched for any possible bean beetle damage.

Stringless Green Pod and Tendergreen (round type) and Streamliner (flat pod) are good varieties of bush bean. The Baby Potato, and Fordhook are bosh type limas. The Decatur and Kentucky Wonder, green pole beans, and the King of the Garden or Leviahook are bush type limas. The Pod, Black Wax, and Round Pod Kidney Wax are the better strain of the yellow bean.

Bansei and Hokkaido are two good varieties of edible soybeans that have found great favor with Hoosier gardeners. The edible soys are considerably higher in proteins and fats than the Navy bean and may have a definite place in the family diet. The Great Northern and the Improved Navy are both good field beans. The Great Northern is the larger bean.

TAX COLLECTOR WANTS LESS MONEY

On the news principle of man-bites-dog, events today in the State Gross Income Tax Division qualified for headlines, with the cashier's section of the tax office busily operating in reverse and returning money to taxpayers.

A sampling of batched returns showed that nearly one-third of the retailers filing in the present taxpaying period of April 1 to April 15 have paid double the amount of tax they owe, on account of computing their tax at the former rate of 1% instead of using the new lower retail rate of ½ of 1% effectve on income from retail sales after January 1, 1942. These returns with overpayments are being returned as rapidly as possble to the taxpayers with instructions for filing amended returns, Gilbert K. Hewit, director of the tax division, stated.

The new gross income tax rates applicable to returns now due are: receipts from "selling at retail" by "retail merchants" (as defined in the law) ½ of 1%; laundering and drycleaning, ½ of 1%; industrial processing, enameling, plating, or servicing of tangible personal property for resale, ¼ of 1%. It was emphasized by the tax division that the 1941 Amended Gross Income Tax Act establishing these new rates made no other changes in either rates or exemptions.

Air-Borne Infantry

Far cry from the "doughboy" who marched for days to capture his objective, are the troops whose mission it is to fly where their support is most needed, step from their transport plane and taking their place in the line, fully equipped, surprise and overpower the enemy. Accompanying them to the ground and ready for instant use are machine guns, the automatic rifles which they carry themselves, and even motorcycles and the multi-useful "jeep." Airborne industry also is equipped to disrupt communications and destroy command posts far behind the lines of battle.

MARRIED WOMEN AGAIN

Not so long ago it was considered wrong for married women to work unless absolutely necessary. Unpleasant remarks were made about those teachers who married and continued to teach. If a man was hiring an office worker he might choose a single woman and let the married ones stay at home and keep house. That was the normal course of life. The laws of nature demanded that the place for a married woman was in the role of house-wife and mother, the laws of labor called for married women to give the single ones a chance to fill the vacancies. Of course there were arguments on both sides.

Today the picture has changed. Those schoolboards that made rulings against employing married teachers have started to disregard the laws and see what might be done to fill vacancies for next year, since there will be many unmarried women formerly wanting teaching jobs working in other fields at higher wages. This situation holds good in other labor. There was hue and cry over a 40 hour week in order to keep more men employed and spread the work around. Today with the shortage in labor, in increased defense production, there is a moving away from the 40-hour week and altering of that rule. So circumstances alter the course and what was wise yesterday may be out of reason today. Keep your mind open and ready for new suggestions and changes.

Here's A New "Wrinkle" About Electric Irons

IT was a thoughtful Santa who selected this Christmas gift because he not only chose a practical, beautiful electric iron, but he also included the directions for caring for it right in the gift package. And the directions go something like this: "Should this iron become coated with starch, or should it become soiled in any way, clean it with the scratchless, polishing cleanser made with seismotite. Just sprinkle a small quantity of this cleanser over a damp cloth and rub it gently over the surface. Then wipe with a damp cloth, and dry." Wasn't Santa wise to solve the upkeep problem, too? As a result of this care, this lovely electric iron will always be kept in smooth ironing order; its beautiful, polished lustre will always be maintained.

THE RED, WHITE AND BLUE

Of all the flags I love the best,
'Tis the red, white, and blue.
It's got the colors that beats the rest,
'Tis the flag for me and you.

'Tis the red, white and blue
This is so grand,
This flag for me and you,
Will always stand.

We love this flag so fair and true,
The flag we call our own.
The one great flag for me and you
The flag we've always known.

'Tis the red, white and blue we all love so well
The flag for me and you we never can tell,
All we can do is hope and pray
The sight we love will always stay.

PICTURE SHOWS TO START MAY 2ND.

St. Joe Merchants are now fully organized for the Free Talking Picture Shows to be shown in St. Joe this Summer, the first showing to be on Saturday night, May 2.

Better shows are planned by the committee and with ample seating capacity, make it a point to be in St. Joe every Saturday night and enjoy this evening of free entertainment, and bring the entire family.

Local merchants will welcome you at their stores, and if you appreciate the pictures, just tell the merchants when doing your trading.

Albert Wade will have charge of the operating of the machine, and it is the wish of all connected with the shows to please you. A variety of pictures will be necessary in order to give all something they like, but at the same time we wish to eliminate as much of the objectionable scenes as possible, and give an entertainment fit for all to see and enjoy.

The showing of the advertising slides has been limited to once a month, and this will eliminate a break in the showing of the program.

Peck's Bad Boy may be the opening picture, and this features Jackie Cooper, the famous star. This is described as a vital human picture for every man and woman, and tells a story of heartbreak and triumph in an American small town.

MRS. FRANK WARSTLER STRUCK BY AUTO

Mrs. Frank Warstler, of Concord Township residing on the old Joseph Koch farm, one mile west of Saylor's school house, was injured, not believed seriously, at 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon when she was struck by a car while walking across the Cedar and Seventh street intersection in Auburn. Injuries were to the back of her head and left leg.

Mrs. Warstler was walking north on Cedar Street and was halfway across Seventh Street when the accident occurred. Witnesses said she stepped into the path of a westbound car driven by Joseph H. Burdett, age 76, of Sherwood, O. The left front fender and headlight struck the woman, knocking her to the street.

Gerig's ambulance took the injured woman to the Dr. Bonnell Souder Hospital, where her injuries were described as minor. However, she remained in the hospital for a day or two for observation.

Mr. Burdett told Auburn police he was not traveling more than 10 miles an hour when the accident occurred. He said he was going to visit his niece, Mrs. Mac Leighty, who lives north-west of the city.

Mrs. Warstler was dismissed Monday afternoon, from the hospital and returned to her home.

STEVENSON—FOREST

Reverend Frank Stevenson officiated Saturday evening at the marriage of his brother, Henry Lewis Stevenson to Miss Lois Margaret Forest, using the single ring ceremony.

The wedding took place at the Bethel Methodist Church east of Antwerp which was beautifully decorated with many white tapers, ferns, and gladioli.

The bride wore a train-style white brocaded satin gown with a finger length veil in princess style.

Her attendants were Miss Jean Forest as maid of honor, Miss Ruth Young as brides maid, little Janice Forest as flower girl; and the groom was attended by his brother, Walter Stevenson Jr., as best man.

Following the ceremony a reception carried out in the color scheme of pink and blue was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs Clair Forest.

After a short honey-moon the newly weds will reside in their newly built country home near Antwerp.

This Sergeant Acts Dual Role With Carrier Pigeons and Bayonets

A worker of miracles is Master Sergeant Max Bronkhorst. At Fort Sam Houston, Texas, he is engaged in the dual capacity of training homing pigeons for the Signal Corps and in teaching New York clerks, Pennsylvania steel workers and young farmers from half a dozen states in the dexterous use of the bayonet.

He has been breeding carrier pigeons since his boyhood in Rotterdam, Holland, nearly half a century ago. He brought a basketful of his Dutch birds to America long before the first World War and with him they entered the United States Army. Both made good. Nearly everybody knows how pigeons are used in modern warfare for auxiliary communications and for pilots of airplanes whose radios go wrong. Parachute troops and military intelligence agents also need the courageous feathered messengers.

Very few are downed by gunfire, the sergeant says, but a good many are killed by hawks and cats. He declares that with the best of food and care a pigeon will serve the Army and the nation for as long as 10 years.

Bronkhorst is equally enthusiastic in his work as an instructor in bayonet practice. He acquired his skill with the steel weapon while serving in the Dutch army and majored in its use in the A. E. F. He is especially proud of his bayoneteers in the squads at Fort Sam Houston.

Sergt. Max Bronkhorst

I have never seen anything like them, he says. These men are just superior, and that's all there is to it. I've seen bayonet fighters of all races but none will be able to stand up against these American boys.

Soldiers from the farms, adept in handling the pitchfork, are handy with the bayonet but he singles out the Pennsylvanians for the highest praise.

"Especially those Polish boys from the steel mills," the sergeant grins. "The Poles have a perpetual resentment of the wrongs suffered by their native land. They can come to grips."

PLANS COMPLETE TO REGISTER MEN FROM 45 TO 65 YEARS OLD

Arrangements are practically complete for the fourth registration of DeKalb County men under the selective service laws, to be held Monday, April 27th.

Those who will sign up at that time will be men who were 45 years of age or over on last Feb. 16 and those who will not reach their sixty-fifth birthday on or before April 27. It is estimated that the number affected in this county will be 2,000. These registrants will not be subject to military service, but will be subject to call for other war work.

The county draft board announces that the American Legion will again be in charge of registration, with the same staff as in the Feb. 16 registration.

The locations of the registration places and the township in each instance follow:

Auburn — American Legion Home on East Ninth St.; Union and Jackson Townships; Karl Knapp chief registrar.

Waterloo — American Legion Post in charge for Grant and Smithfield Townships at the Waterloo library and the Ashley town hall, with Lynn A. Imhoff as chief registrar.

St. Joe—Town hall; Concord, Roscoe George chief registrar.

The registration places will be open from 7 A. M. to 9 P. M.

The registrars will have the responsibility of going to private homes, hospitals or other institutions to register men physically unable to visit the registration places. Most of this work will probably be done on Saturday and Sunday, April 25 and 26. Men who desire such accommodation are requested to notify the local registrars.

The new registrants will be given serial numbers by the local draft board, but no national lottery will be held.

Picture Story of U. S. Flag

THE FIRST STARS AND STRIPES

This is the first Stars and Stripes. The Continental Congress on June 14, 1777, resolved: "That the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, red and white; that the Union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." According to legend the five-pointed stars were designed by Mrs. Betsy Ross.

FIFTEEN STARS AND STRIPES

With the admission of Vermont and Kentucky to the Union two stars and two stripes were added to the flag following an Act of Congress in 1794. It was a flag of 15 stars and 15 stripes over Ft. McHenry that inspired Francis Scott Key to write "The Star-Spangled Banner." Congress in 1818 restored the original number of stripes.

IN THE ROUGH

There might be some moaning by the male gentry because of the war production boarn's order to cut the sale of razor blades to about the rate of one blade per man a week. Here in St. Joe there are perhaps a few males who won't think so badly of this loss, as they then can have a legitimate excuse for going around with a heavy growth of whiskers. The wives who, poor souls, argues about the carelessness of the husband who would even think of showing his face in public so rough shod, will now have to use her husband's rationing as an alibi and hope other husbands won't look any better. A subscriber suggests there is a note of unfairness in this leveling off of razor blades. He knows of fellows who need sand paper to get off their beards and others who can almost take a towel and wipe them off! Certainly we might name a few local men who, if they would go unshaven for three days, would be unrecognizable and completely disguised under the brush. Give an extra blade to these fellows and their wives a break.

FAR TOO MUCH AND LOUD

We go along for a certain length of time without speaking about it and then after an especially obnoxious bit of radio announcing, we sit down and scribble a few lines on the oft-mentioned subject. The old peeve, the radio salesman who clamors and states and reiterates and insists about the superior qualities of his sponsor's product, is a bane in the life of many a radio listener. We are appreciative of the fact that it is radio advertising that gives the public most of the splendid programs which it receives. We also are aware that often the announcer must sell his product in exactly the words written for him, but surely no product is gaining anything by having a broadcaster bawl out insistently and nercely and too freely, its merits. There is certainly a polite, quiet, orderly and brief way of pushing a sale which would gain customers for the sponsor who pays for the program, because the majority of listeners are more easily sold through courtesy.

EARLY TO RISE

Seems about all of us are active, a-humming with business, and even the sun is entering into the spirit of things. We have often threatened to get up earlier in the morning to see how the sun really does get started on his day. Early to rise to see the sun come up might be a healthy note in many of our lives. The chap who has to get up at dawn each day doesn't realize probably that he is getting something extra special in the way of pleasure which a late sleeper misses. There are the early birds up at this hour, calling and loudly chirping in fellowship. There is the freshness of morning's dew on the grass and the sun shining shyly on the dew to make it glisten and the new day's morning breeze refreshed by night's rest that ripples the water, if you are near to water. The small animals that scamper about in the open spaces if you are out in the open spaces. I guess we miss a heap of living, don't we?

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

The last week of April has been named as Boys and Girls Week, and we today write of our national youth, a youth being raised midst the damages wrought by war. War is hard on all ages, on the national economic systems, homes fighting equipment in metal and men, in morals. So far our own children have not been touched as deeply by war as those of England and perhaps we should look at the English child's reaction when it comes to the standpoint of judging what happens to children living in the direct shadow of war. We learn that there is an increase of 50 per cent in childhood crime in England since the beginning of war. The reasons given are many, the crowding of juvenile courts and reform schools come from many sources. The blame is placed upon the fact that families have been broken up and children living among strange surroundings, living in a broken-up family with parents absorbed in war work, of bomb raid shelters being the substitutes for homes, of the partial destruction and abandonment of building plus the covering up of blackouts conducive to making crimes more easy to perform, of the police being kept busy with war duties, of children being paid higher wages and associated with older people who might be of questionable character, of prewar clubs and recreation centers and wholesome school life disrupted because of the war, all being reasons given for the havoc played. We might learn a lesson of what we lose in war when we lose the innocence and simplicity of our boys and girls. They are the ones to lead a nation on, the ones to lead it up. May England's youth problems not reach our shore during this crisis, and let us not neglect to further the moral welfare of our young.

A subscriber passes this on in case you don't know how to make clothes that have been washed frequently, have a new glossy appearance as when they were first new. She suggests that when you are ironing tie a piece of bees wax in a clean cloth and as you iron now and then rub the hot iron over the wax. This used to be done in the old days and will work just as well today, not harming the clothes.

HOOSIER HOME FRONT

INTERESTING HOM EFRONT NEWS IN INDIANA

The government moved in on the Hoosier home front last week to serve warning that attempts to establish "black markets" in consumer goods and products vital to the war effort will be ferreted out and prosecuted.

Two Boonville, Indiana men pleaded guilty to violating the tire rationing laws and were sentenced in Federal Court. At the same time, officals of the Office of Price Administration announced that many other such cases are in preparation here and in other states and will be prosecuted. For this and other work on APA branch office, staffed with lawyers and investigators, is being established at Indianapolis.

The government has repeatedly told the law-abiding home fronter that this war will be no picnic for him. By this action, it further assures him that no one will be allowed through special privilege and conniving to escape the sacrifices that are being acepted cheerfully by the vast majority of Hoosiers.

Another and more direct contribution to the home front war effort was made this week by Indiana. It was an apparently effective stab at solving the problem of transporting the war worker.

From an Indiana factory into Washington rambled a huge bus for inspection by War Production Board officials. It will hold 141 passengers, is three times as large as the average city bus and twice the size of the largest street car.

And it is epsecially attractive because, except for its frame, there's scarcely a n ounce of military material in it —just plywood and masonite.

Maybe you noticed that from now on, by WPB order, we'll have only 30 per cent as many new phonograph records as formerly. And maybe you wondered why.

Well, it's because of the shellac that goes into their manufacture. The order really limited the amount of shellac that could be so used. If the record manufacturers can find a substitute for that, then they may manufacture as many as they choose, presumably.

But why limit shellac?

Because every time an officer fires a signal flare from his Verey pistol he is using up shellac.

Because our big shells, nested against the day when they will whistle into the lines of our enemies, are covered with a protective coating of shellac.

Because shellac binds the abrasives used on the grinding wheels of our war industry, shellac goes into the making of our military explosives and pyrotechnics, shellac coats the wooden patterns for the metal castings which become weapons, shellac—because of growing shortages in other raw materials—may be needed to preserve the hulls of dauntless torpedo craft and other war vessels.

And because the Japanese advance toward India, the Japanese position athwart Indian sea lanes, makes it unlikely that we shall be able to import shellac as in the days of peace.

We used to get practically all our shellac from India, and the phonograph record industry used up about one-third of our annual imports.

It's only a little while since the Office of Price Administration issued its warning that you'd better buy your coal this spring because maybe by next autumn we couldn't spare cars and engines to haul it to you from the mines. And now WPB is urging everybody along the Eastern seaboard or in the Pacific Northwest who can do so to convert his oil furnace or heater to coal.

This request, too, stems from the growing burden on American transportation. It's complicated so far as oil is concerned by the fact that many of our tankers are in war service and others have been sunk by Axis submarines.

But it emphasizes once more the growing seriousness of the problem,—what with America's railroads faced with a shortage of manpower and materials and America's motor transport lines and American war workers riding on thinner and thinner tires.

Here again we must count upon our collective readiness to sacrifice for victory and upon our native ingenuity to see us through.

The Indiana scrap front: The Works Progress Administration has been called into about 30 Indiana counties to haul scrap gathered on farms to the market. When this job, to be done by WPA trucks, is completed, the farm scrap harvest will have been completed.

Meanwhile, more than a score of the larger cities are conducting scrap cleanup campaigns. Most of them will be completed this month but some of them will run into May.

The harvest is good. And steel men say the scrap is needed badly. No item is too small. No ounce should be overlooked.

Mr. Ginnivan announces that there are several new players with the company this year and the plays according to tradition, are the best obtanable. They will be showing this year at St. Joe during the week of July 27.

Attorney General George N. Beamer ruled that under the 1941 tax law there is no provision for competitive bidding at delinquent tax sales and that in case of simultaneous bids the county treasurer must decide which bidder gets the tax certificate. Hollar expressed belief that county treasurers would adopt a policy of giving the tax certificate to the bidder who had the most interest in the property in cases where it was impossible to determine which person bid first.

NEWS FROM COUNTY AGENT

URGE SUDAN GRASS FOR DAIRY CATTLE

DeKalb County Dairymen are faced with a serious shortage of hay and pasture this year reports County Agent C. E. Baker. Much of the seeding made in the spring of 1941 has failed to come thru the winter and will be plowed up for corn and soybeans. The hay shortage can be met by cutting the soybeans for hay and the pasture shortage can be largely met by planting sudan grass.

No other pasture crop seeded this spring will do as much as Sudan grass in helping Indiana dairymen to maintain a high level of milk production during the hot summer months of July and August for the Food for Freedom program, say dairymen and agronomy specialists of Purdue University. Sudan grass for pasture is also classed as a soil conserving crop in the A. A. A. program.

Hundreds of Indiana farmers who have pastured dairy cattle on Sudan grass are unanimous in saying that it is high yielding, heat and drouth resistant as well as palatable and nutritious. Most dairymen say that Sudan grass will produce more milk per acre in summer than any other pasture.

Sudan grass is easy to grow and the cost of seed this year is quite reasonable. Prepare the land as for corn and drill two and one-half to three and one-half pecks (25 to 30 pounds) of seed per acre with the wheat drill, from May 20 to June 1. It should be ready to graze in about five weeks from seeding or when it is a foot high. More rapid growth and greater carrying capacity may be obtained from O-14-6 or 2-12-6 fertilizer applied at the rate of 150 to 250 pounds per acre at the time of seeding than when no applications are made.

An acre of good land may be expected to carry the equivalent of one cow per acre, but the carrying capacity can be increased if it is grazed alternately with other pasture, or of the Sudan pasture is divided for alternate grazing.

Sudan grass may become poisonous after frosted and therefore should not be pastured after frost, but it can be used safely for hay.

You can see and smile at Billy's nickel double-decker. But there's another double-decker you can't see—though you enjoy it every month.

You may not realize it, because you use more electricity. While the rates were going down, you were adding useful new electric appliances.

Right now, for a nickel a day, about ⅓ of all American families light their homes, play their radios, run their vacuum cleaners.

For two nickels a day, about ¾ of all American families operate lights, radio, cleaner, toaster, percolator, clocks and washer.

That makes the electric nickel just about the biggest double-decker in the world!

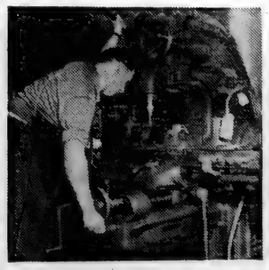
May Day
May 1, 1942

Labor parades of former May days now are little more than memories. The 1942 May day parade is in the direction of the factory and the field, where working men are foregoing their usual holiday to help their country win the battle of production.



It's business as usual for this skilled machine operator who is working on a torpedo part in a navy torpedo station.

Protected by a nose guard and face shield, this workman is grinding an aircraft engine crankshaft. He is representative of the huge army of skilled craftsmen in wartime industry.

May day, 1942, and the country's workers are at their jobs—so that the men who work with the tools of war will be the best equipped soldiers in the world.

PERSONAL HAPPENINGS !

CLUB CLOSES YEAR

The Ladies Literary Club closed their meetings for the summer months on last Wednesday evening at the spacious rural home of Mrs. C. C. Woodcox.

The meeting was called to order and Collect read in unison. Mrs. Frank Curie led the lesson, "An American Doctor's Odyssey," a condensation from the book by Victor Heiser, M. D. The story is enlivened with humorous anecdotes, involving prominent figures of our time, and replete with illuminating tales of tact in handling recalcitrant people and problems, Dr. Heiser's book is primarily the story of a great international campaign to wipe out the earth's most malignant diseases.

Special work on poetry was given by Mrs. John R. Leighty in a very interesting manner. Lines from poems were read accentuating the garden motive in a symposium: "My Garden," Mrs. F. B. Leighty; "Maud," Mrs. Allen Haller; "Love and Age," Mrs. Glen Cole; "April, April," Mrs. Fred Hart; "A Red, Red Rose," Mrs. Carl Perkins; "The Nymph's Song to Hylas" and "A Garden Song," Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser; "Spring and Winter" and "The Bridal Song," Mrs. Leslie Wilbern; "The Daffodils," Mrs. F. B. Leighty. Mrs. Leighty closed her paper by reading "The Recessional" by Rudyard Kipling.

The yearly reports were read and accepted at this time and the club decided to remain in the Federation for another year by a unanimous vote, also decided to assist the Auxiliary of American Legion Post in filling kits for soldier boys.

Mrs. Inez Hadsell, Mrs. O. K. Shull and Mrs. Harvey Hull were appointed on committee for the mid-summer meeting, at which time programs will be read and accepted.

Following the lunch, which consisted of fruit salad, cookies and coffee, the ladies enjoyed looking over the lovely home of the hostess.

Two emeritus members, Mrs. Delora Curie and Mrs. Loretta Hull, also Mrs. Virginia Leighty and Shirley Jean Perkins were guests.

RHOADES

With the passing of Mrs. Aroline Rhoades last Saturday, Spencer Township gives up her last Civil War widow, and she was the last of the Harpster Burley family of five children, a pioneer family of Concord Township.

Mrs. Rhoades was born January 13, 1850 and died April 25, 1942 at the age of 92 years, 3 months and 12 days, after being confined to her bed about a week, death being due to complications resulting from old age. Most of her married life was spent at her County Line home. After the death of her husband, Charles A. Rhoades on June 17, 1923, she resided in Spencerville, and for the last six years she again lived at her old home and was lovingly cared for by her daughter, Mrs. Metta Furnish.

She was the mother of three children, B. A. Rhoades, of Ft. Wayne, Metta, in whose home she died, and Laura, who preceded her in death, some years ago. Other surviving relatives are seven grandchildren, four great grandchildren and one step son, Frank, of Akron, Ohio, besides a host of friends.

She was a member of the Methodist Church at Spencerville. The funeral services were conducted from the residence Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock with Rev. L. B. Sharp officiating and being assisted by Rev. Frank Stevenson, pastor of the Spencerville Lutheran Church, with burial in White City Cemetery.

"HE WHO LAUGHS LAST"

They smiled as they sat at our council,
Suppressing their hate with a yawn—
While their Japanese sons
Were spiking their guns
To go over Pearl Harbor at dawn.
They laughed as they flew to Pearl Harbor,
As they thought their surprise so complete,
They laughed as they flew
Like a bolt from the blue,
And loosened their bombs on our fleet.

They laughed as they flew to Pearl Harbor,
Oh, they thought a "sneak-punch" was a jest—
But there'll soon come a day
When they'll hear us "Yanks" say,
"The one who laughs last, laughs the best."
They laughed as they said we were "softies,"
A nation whose spirit was gone,
It's true we love peace
But that all had to cease,
Since they flew to Pearl Harbor at dawn.

You laughed as you flew to Pearl Harbor,
As death and destruction you hurled,
Some day you'll atone
For that laugh, with a moan,
That laugh that was heard 'round the world.
'Tho the "Sons of Heaven" you may be,
If you get a load of our brawn,
There won't be a Jap
On the face of the map,
To remember Pearl Harbor at dawn.

And so, while we're sorry to say this,
By the hard way you're going to learn,
That the best laugh is last
Your laughing is past,
And you'll find that you laughed out of turn.
You'll find, Mr. Jap, that this nation
Is peaceful and sweet as a child,
But your Pearl Harbor "joke"
Was your fighting stroke,
For Boy! How we fight when we're riled.

OUR FIRST FREE MOVIE "PECK'S BAD BOY"

Described as a vital human picture for every man and woman, PECK'S BAD BOY tells a story of heartbreak and triumph in an American small town.

Bill Peck (Jackie Cooper) is the son of a well-to-do business man. A firm attachment exists between the two. The father has been left a widower and his only feminine aid in raising the boy is Martha, the faithful negro cook.

This is the situation when Dorothy Peterson as the sister of Mr. Peck's dead wife, arrives to stay with them, accompanied by her badly spoiled son, Horace (Jackie Searl.)

In her attempt to impress the father with her own virtues and with those of her mean-spirited son the aunt nearly crowds Jackie Cooper out of the man's affections. At first delighted with her assumption of all household cares, Peck in his complacency fails to sense the changes taking place in his relationship with his boy. Unluckily both the aunt and her unpleasant son know that Jackie is a foundling adopted in his infancy. The lad himself has no suspicion of this fact.

But, hoping to replace Jackie with her own Horace in the man's affections, she conspires to place the boy always in the worst light. Jackie loses ground in his father's regard. He is miserable but has neither the wisdom nor the experience to cope with the woman's shrewd malice. At a climax in the conflict between Jackie and his cousin the latter flings in his face the fact that he is "only an orphan" and doesn't deserve first place in the household. At the same time the boy first experiences injustice from his dad. His heart is broken. He runs away from home and seeks shelter in the shack of an old vagabond philosopher and town handy-man. The old man succeeds in persuading him to return and face his troubles—at least for long enough to settle accounts with Horace. The boy does so and cleans up on Horace neatly.

Just as the aged vagabond has sagely surmised, this situation precipitates explanations. Peck realizes at last how unscrupulous has been the conspiracy against his boy and he is overwhelmed by regrets. He manages to make the boy see that he is as deovted to him as he would be to a son of his own flesh and blood. Comforted, Jackie feels that he has found his place in the sun again. The picture closes as the delighted old handy-man conducts the aunt and the discomforted Horace to the village station and forever out of the lives of his alleged "bad boy."

SUGAR RATIONING INFORMATION

Preparations are well under way in DeKalb County for the registration for sugar rationing books to be held on May 4, 5, 6 and 7, at your school building. Every one is urged to study the registration blank and be prepared to answer the questions promptly and accurately.

If you follow instructions and have accurate information required by the registrars, OPA estimates it will take you only four minutes to fill out the form. One and a quarter million school teachers will serve as registrars.

A separate application must be made for every person for whom a ration book is issued, but only one member of each family unit is to appear at the nearest elementary school building to apply for all members of the family.

1. Applicants should come prepared with a list of the members of their families, giving the exact name of each.

2. An exact description of each member of the family unit, giving the height, weight, color of eyes, color of hair, age and sex of each one.

3. The person who registers for the family unit must state his or her exact relationship to each member of it.

4. It is necessary to know to the pound just how much sugar is in the possession of the household. The amount of sugar will be divided by the number of people in the family unit and stamps will be torn out by the registrar for all sugar in excess of two pounds per person. If more than four stamps have to be removed, issuance of the book will be withheld until later.

One—and only one—member of each family unit is to go to the elementary school nearest to the person's residence to register and to apply for ration books for the whole family, OPA emphasizes. Single people not members of a family unit, even if they board with a family must apply for themselves.

A family unit has been defined by the Office of Price Adminstration as a "group of two or more individuals consisting of all persons who are living together in the same household who are related by blood or marriage."

The public is urged to have every person register whether they expect to get a "Sugar Card" or not as this Registration record is to be used in all future Rationing orders for sugar or any other Commodity that may be rationed.

PUTS OUT YEAR BOOK FOR SCHOOL

The Spencerville high school published a beautiful and complete Year Book as a special achievement for the '42 school year.

The book was sponsored by the '42 Seniors, who were assisted financially by Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Walter in memory of their son, the late Marion Walter, a '41 graduate. All customary advertising space was filled with various group pictures and snap shots of the personnel of the entire school, and other facts of interest to the pupils and patrons.

The book is good evidence of the ability of all those on the staff, especially since this project was the first of its kind in many years.

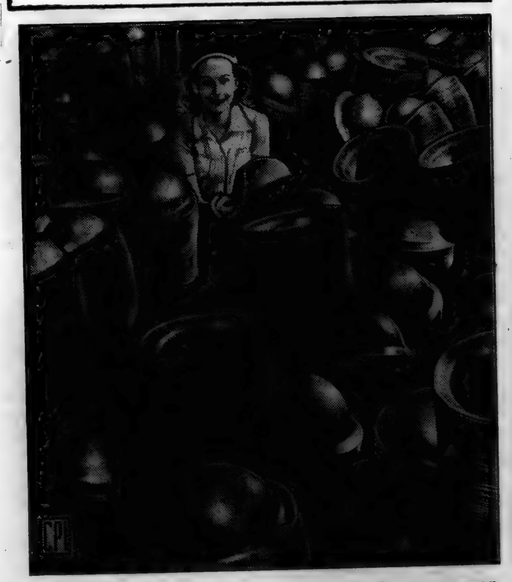
NO TIN IN TIN HELMETS



THE name "tin hat" is just a pet army name, carried on from the last war, for the steel helmet which the army wears in battle. There is no tin in a tin hat. It is made from a very special type of armored steel which is capable of withstanding a steel-jacketed revolver bullet fired at a distance of only 30 inches. Another feature about these steel helmets is that they are non-magnetic. This prevents them from interfering with some of the delicate instruments which are used in range finding, etc. The picture shows a small portion of a day's output of steel helmets in a Canadian factory. As well as equipping her own troops, Canada is making these helmets for the forces of the United Nations all over the world.

WILD RUMORS

A subscriber repeats a rumor which she overheard and which takes on the appearance of being in the 'tall story' class. It was an alleged breach in the way the Red Cross had performed a duty, of unworthy practice it appeared to be. Now there have always been rumors against organizations and the more important the organization the more varied the rumors. The reports are spread by the 'antis' and usually embroidered as they pass from mouth to mouth. Worthy church groups in every town of every size have suffered just the same and most stories are as foolish and as unwarranted. Perhaps someone remarks of the enormous salaries that officials in the organization receive, of ware-houses where sweaters are rotting away, of goods being sold to the enemy or to our own soldiers—some bringing $3 apiece. It appears that such stories are more widespread during a roll call when the organization is trying to raise money to carry on its work. Mark this down—the Red Cross sells nothing and if you grab hold of a fair sized rumor that takes on the proportions of organized propaganda, put out by our country's enemies perhaps, report the matter to Washington and the FBI will investigate and successfully place such slanderous reports.

WHO PAYS THE BILL?

An incident took place in a small Western town recently, that contains food for thought.

A farmer went into the local pool hall and found a number of shipyard workers playing pool on a week-day holiday. The question arose as to why they were not working, and they told him it was because they could not get double-time pay. The farmer "blew up" and told them what he thought of such demands in this emergency.

They seemed surprised, and said: "What do you care? It doesn't cost you anything. The government pays the bill."

This brings up the question of who pays the factories and workers producing wartime equipment. No one but the hard-pressed taxpayers, including men and women in every walk of life—even the shipyard workers themselves.

Government has no money to pay anybody anything until it first collects it from the people. Government is merely an agent of the people. Every bit of waste by goveriment, industry or labor, comes out of the pockets of the people.

It is a pity that any person thinks government pays for waste or exhorbitant charges of any kind—the peoeple pay through the nose in higher and higher taxes.

LOOKING AHEAD

We think primarily of oil as something which lubricates machinery and fuels engines. We think primarily of coal as a source of energy for industry and as a heating agent.

But these two natural resources are capable of other jobs as well—jobs which are mightily important to this nation in wartime and peacetime alike.

The oil industry will supply the basic ingredient for the manufacture of artificial rubber. Now that we have lost our supply of natural rubber, the synthetic product must be developed with maximum speed. The oil industry, therefore, is going to have a great deal to do with keeping our military machine running—and, in time, in supplying rubber for civilian use. The oil industry likewise is the producer of toluene, which is the basis of TNT. So the bombs which blast our enemies have their start in the oil industry's wells and refining plants and laboratories.

From coal, we obtain one of the miracles of this age—plastics. There are plastics which are stronger than metal. There are plastics which are flexible and easily handled. There are plastics which are suitable for airplanes, motor cars, and a thousand and one other things. And plastics are essential to the war effort.

Oil and coal represent the development of American natural resources at their best. These industries are always looking ahead, in search of new processes, new worlds to conquer. They will play a major part in the winning of this war. And they will play a leading part in the peacetime world of the future.

OBSERVANCE OF CHRISTIAN FAMILY WEEK

Beginning with the first Sunday in May and closing with the Festival of the Christian Home (or Mother's Day) on the second Sunday.

Christian Family Week is one of the newer observances of the Church suggested to Christian families and Churches by the Federal Council of Churches, the United Council of Church Women and the International Council of Religious Education co-operating in the United Christian Education Advance.

Family Life Is Endangered

Sinister economic and social conditions have long been impairing family stability. These conditions are aggravated by a war economy so that the threat to family life both from outward and inward perils is one of the gravest aspects of the present emergency. Furthermore young people are confronted with baffling problems effecting the homes that are to be.

Child Health day—May 1, 1942—brings into sharp relief the importance of a strong, healthy nation. The children's bureau of the U. S. department of labor, recognizing the need for a forceful child health program, has formed a statement of national policy. This statement declares that it is basic to the rights of children that school work and home duties be regarded as the full-time job of every child under 14. Schools have been asked to make every effort to develop programs that will dovetail school activities with agricultural work and will result in no curtailment of school terms.

Mr. Hemple also tendered his resignation as town clerk to the board of trustees. Ralph Stuller will be appointed to fill his unexpired term. Mrs. Hemple was a teacher in St. Joe schools this year.

The registering of the men from 45 to 65 went off in fine shape Monday, and the Tri-Townships had a registration of 238 which was considered excellent. The men were enthusiastic in their willingness to do whatever they were called upon to do, and the oldest man to volunteer was George B. Wilson, he felt as though there was some place for him to serve in the defense of his country, and he was assured by the board that should the war continue that he might be called to serve.

Riverside Cemetery is undergoing a general spring clean-up, and a number of men are working there with Ed Leighty in charge. Roy Wade reports considerable extra expense this spring in shaping the lawns due to automobiles driving on the grass when wet, and badly cutting it up. Mr. Wade thinks that everyone ought to be proud of this cemetery and refrain from any means of destruction, but it does seem where more care is taken, more destruction is wrought by unthinking individuals perhaps.

Hoosier farmers will be required to pay a $25 fee for tractors used on state roads under a new ruling by Attorney General George Beamer at Indianapolis. A 1941 truck weight tax law providing a $3 license was held unconstitutional by the state supreme court. Therefore, Beamer ruled, farm tractors will be licensed under the 1937 motor vehicle law which provided a $25 fee. Sale of the $3 tags has been withheld in anticipation of the attorney-general's ruling, officials said, but the $25 tags now will be placed on sale.

A line from Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Skilling, who spent the winter at Miami Beach, Florida, states that they are leaving today (Thursday) for their home at Baltimore. The letter said: "Have had a wonderful winter, never below 40 degrees on the Beach."

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sellers sold their 88-acre farm west of St. Joe to Dr. G. E. Driver, of Fort Wayne. He has a renter that will move in when the Sellers family moves to St. Joe, in a few weeks, where they have purchased the Mrs. Mayola Kinsey-Zuber property.

The War Production Board's recent order drastically curtailing the manufacture of fishing tackle effects one of Garrett's oldest industries, the Creek Chub Bait Co. Officials of the company state that as far as they know production in their plant will cease, by government order, on May 31, despite having stock sufficient to continue running for six months. Seventy-five people will be affected by the closing of this Garrett industry as well as the post office receipts being reduced materially as most of the shipments are made by parcel post.

There was at least one truck on the highway Friday night that observed all the traffic rules to the letter—it was loaded with 11,000 pounds of bombs. One of the drivers stopped in the Auburn Printing Co. office Saturday morning, enroute from Chicago to Fort Wayne. He said it took the truck all night to make the trip from Chicago to Auburn, as instructions were that five miles an hour was top speed for railroad crossings and bumps. Each bomb weighed 216 pounds and was separately boxed, sealed, and packed carefully in sawdust.—Star.

VICTORY GARDENS

One of the first insects that Hoosier victory gardeners will combat this spring is the cutworm, says G. E. Lehker, Purdue University extension entomologist. Every gardener is familiar with these destructive creatures which lie hidden in the soil during the day time and come out at night to cut off tomato, cabbage and other garden plants.

A simple way to prevent damage to transplanted crops. such as tomatoes and cabbage, is to place stiff paper collars around the stems when the plants are set in the soil. These protective collars are quite effective, says Lehker. He recommends they extend one inch above and below the soil.

For larger gardens the best way to destroy cutworms is by the use of poisoned bran bait, which can be prepared at home by mixing a teaspoonful of Paris green with two quarts of bran and then moistened with three cupfuls of water to which a half teacupful of molasses had been added. This formula is sufficient to treat a garden of average size. It is suggested the bait be scattered by hand just before dark.

Keeping down weeds about the Victory Garden will help also to prevent cutworms and other insects, according to Lehker.

KEEP FUSES ON HAND

IN A COUNTRY at war, the desire to maintain our high standard of service remains, but the means have been eliminated by uncontrollable circumstances. Use of automotive equipment has been curtailed by rationing. You can help by eliminating unnecessary service calls and by replacing fuses yourself. We suggest:

1. Have a supply of fuses on hand so that you can replace blown fuses.
2. Most failures are due to defective cords or switches on lamps or appliances and if the fuse blows when you switch on an appliance, disconnect that appliance before replacing the fuse.
3. You may determine a blown fuse by the discoloration of the transparent top.
4. Have your neighborhood electrician repair frayed cords and defective appliances.

Auto Accident Proves Fatal to Frank Drake, Age 16

A heavy cloud filled with sorrow spread rapidly over this community Saturday night and Sunday, when the news of the accidental death of Frank Drake, 16, was announced as having taken place late Saturday night. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Drake of 2½ miles north-east of St. Joe.

The accident took place on State Road 1 three quarters of a mile south of St. Joe near the Stanley Hollabaugh home, when cars driven by the youth and Ed Leighty, 73, of St. Joe, sideswipped. Paul Kitchen, 17, living a mile and a half east of St. Joe, was also in the machine and he had his head hurt and his arm and knee bruised. He was rendered unconscious when his arm was pinned under the car. Drake, thrown clear of the automobile, had his neck and back broken and a lung punctured. His shoes were jerked from his feet and the tires were torn from three wheels of the automobile. The car was badly damaged.

The Leighty car was not damaged much. Ed was driving south and the Drake car was going north and both cars landed on the east side of the road after the collision.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Lutz, of Fort Wayne, had been to St. Joe, and appeared on the scene shortly after the accident. Seeing what had happened, Mr. Lutz hurriedly drove back to St. Joe and called Dr. DeMuth and Kinsey ambulance.

The body was removed to the Kinsey Funeral Home and Dr. R. A. Nason, of Garrett, county coroner, held an inquest. Also investigating the accident were Sheriff Artus Coyle and State Policemen Hunter and Huffman.

Hollis Dilley accompanied Mr. Drake to the Sanders Hospital on Sunday morning to visit the mother, who had been there for the past month, and tell her of their family tragedy. After a while Mrs. Drake composed herself and made arrangements for the funeral services, and the doctor consented to her returning to her home on Monday for a few days.

The funeral was held from the home on Tuesday afternoon, conducted by his pastor, Rev. Frank Stevenson, with burial in Riverside Cemetery.

Frank Junior Drake, son of Hugh and Geneva Drake, was born September 12, 1925, and departed this life May 2, 1942, at the age of 16 years, 7 months, and 20 days.

On January 24, 1937, he was baptized into the Christian faith in the Methodist Church, Waterloo, Indiana. This fact gives the family great comfort in this hour.

In October, 1939, he moved to the present home with his parents and sisters from Waterloo, and has since that time attended the public school, and the Lutheran Sunday School and church in S. Joe.

As a member of the Junior class this past year he helped bring honors to his school both in athletic and scholastic competition.

He had many friends among his class mates and others his own age. He was always a diligent worker wherever employed. Within the home he delighted to do little tasks to relieve his mother, especially when his sisters were away. He held a special place in the heart of his father because he was the last in line to perpetuate the family name.

Besides his parents, he leaves three sisters, Betty and Berniece, who are employed at the Auburn Rubber Co., and Leona Mae, at home, and his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Lochner, of Churubusco, Indiana, and other relatives and friends.

The pall bearers were chosen from his Sunday School class friends, Franklyn Sechler, Jud Keeler, and Frank Curie, and his school chums, Harry Strong, Rodger Hadley and Roscoe Moore.

Dear Mom:

Everybody in camp has been busy writing letters to reach home in time for Mother's Day. There's a wee one, and we've got a gift to do, but we're all thinking of you mother, nevertheless.

Truth is, we're thinking about you and home more than ever these days. Because it gives us a clear vision of what we're fighting for. We're all fighting for our country—and to us that means everything. It means the United States—it means our town, and, most of all, it means home. It means our folks—like you and dad.

We're all working hard at our jobs, too, because winning a war isn't the simplest thing in the world. But we want to get it over with as soon as we can, and get back home to greet you in person, on a future sunshiny spring morning with a

MOTHER LOVE

This nation is piled with debts from generations back and the outlook for the future to be almost an insurmountable barrier. There is another debt which can never be discharged however long our flag may wave over free men, however long a Divine Providence steers the destiny of mankind, a debt that should be acknowledged by every family of this land. We speak of our debt to motherhood. Men around the earth pay tribute to mothers, they speak of her unselfish love—and go out to kill. They mention her denials in order to nourish them—and go to starve. They delight in honor of her strength in adversity—and go out to destroy. Man's battle may be to preserve the qualities and attributes of the universal mother, but through the hating and the hurting the reward may be no great prize. Mother's Day, a day of remembrance, to send flowers or a card of greeting, a visit or letter of reminiscence, but always a day steeped in appreciation for understanding, loyalty, devotion. No holiday carries more sentiment than this one. There is no thought of military glory, no parades of marching men, flags unfurled in the breeze. This is a day of victory but a peaceful victory it is, the victory of a mother-love which passeth all man's understanding. Her patience and self-sacrifice are the symbols of virtue and the foundation for a world. She would sustain and strengthen and comfort this sorry old globe if she but might.

Your gift of gratitude is all you can give her in return for her life of labor and love. She asks for nothing. There is a very old story that comes from where we do not know but a mythical bit that serves our purpose. Back in days when such stories find their best background, a very young lad fell in love with a very wicked woman, a woman born with the soul of a devil. When the love-sick youth asked that she wed him thewoman replied, "Yea, if you will but bear to me the heart of your mother on a platter." So mad was this youth that he cut out his mother's heart for the love of the wicked woman. While on his way to her home he stumbled and fell while the mother's heart rolled to the roadside. As the youth sat rubbing his shins and weeping the mother's heart speeaks, "Did you hurt yourself, my son?" Mother's Day, mother's love, our sacred heritage—may we preserve it.

BUILDING UP BODIES

There are colleges attempting to correct the physical unfitness found in many of the young men who have been examined by physicians in draft boards and recruiting stations. The idea is to make a certain amount of physical training compulsory during each week, to deal more with physical training than in recreational activities, whic his conditioning men for something that might be expected of them before long, in a place of combat. We are informed that the American army is in the best physical condition of any fighting force and this does not only cover today's warriors but includes the forces in all of the history of the world. They also tell us that just because we have rejected many of our youths due to physical defects doesn't mean that almost any other nation would accept them. This does not include cases which are broken in general health, however.

The rejections are larger than during the First World War but statistics show that in the men of service age the average weight is about 150 pounds. It was 142 pounds for drafted men during the First World War and during the Civil War the weight was 136 pounds. The average height being the same in all three instances. There is a suggestion that since our present draft has included men between 31 and 36 years of age, who were not forced to register during the First World War and since a man over 30 puts on weight rapidly, that may account for the increase. But whatever your statistics, whatever your data for cause and effect, whatever menus and vitamin builders the army can offer, still universities will do their part in building up physical condition in case the students are needed. And if they aren't needed it won't hurt them to have this training for men of endurance and ability to hold their own are going to be sorely needed in the post-war world.

SO MUCH TALKING

There is a lot of confusion about the rationing of gasoline. It comes from the government, from the press, from the radio, from mouths all about us. It has been brought up and discussed and discarded for months on end. There are those who say it is a scare. Others that it is entirely uneccessary since there are ways to supply gas to the effected states. Others say they do without willingly as long as it can be proven that such is essential to the present war problem. Then there is the fellow who doesn't question but who feels that as long as it is demanded there must be something back of it and he makes his plans accordingly. If we are to be affected by such a reduction we will have to take it and act according to the schedule laid out for us. We can fuss and fume and get our blood pressure up because we might not like the way the plans are made. Let's sit still here in St. Joe and don't start rocking the boat until we are at least sure we are being inconvenienced unnecessarily. And then let us be sure that we aren't putting our inconvenience before the rest of the nation and the world.

SAVE THE FAT

In the old days when life was less simple and scented soap a luxury that was appreciated by housewives, much of the soap for household use was made at home from surplus fats and greases from cooking. We are asked to return to the old custom of preserving our cooking fats and greases and informed that our government will collect the drippings and pay the housewife perhaps around 5 cents a pound for it. Meat dealers will turn in the cooked and uncooked fat trimmings, and rendering plants will convert it into glycerine and fatty acids which go into the making of soap. With the increased production of soap, there will be an increased production of its by-product glycerine, and here is where the government is interested since glycerine is important for war purposes.

There was another suggestion made by the committee which met to iron out the subject of collecting these surplus fats and greases. This was to educate the people to use, for commercial needs, the boneless meat developed by the Army Quartermaster Corps to feed the troops during manoeuvers. The method they used was to remove all the bones and fat from the meat in the packing house, ship it to the consumers in large slabs in cartons, then for cooking or serving you slice the meat from the slab instead of from the carcass as now in the markets. This needs much educational campaigning. If this war teaches us nothing else it teaches us the value of thrift.

TRYING TO NAME IT

They ask for names for this present war and as a unit we all remark that Sherman had the right name for every war. Maybe we are sort of limited in ideas when we speak of them as the First and Second World Wars. Perhaps there might be a concise word to suit the case. We figure the Second World War is being fought with greater pressure and force and entails more in importance to us than did the First World War and therefore we don't like it to have second rating. The important consequences of this war are more wide spread since they involve the entire earth. The name suitable to suggest the difference between the two should be rather a pretentious one as this war seems to be for the mastery of the whole world. But if we don't find a name for it, at its close history will record it with a name and generations to come will read about it in history classes and to them it will be just another World War, perhaps. History and later generations are like that.

• MAYBE you don't care about two movies for the price of one. But there's another kind of double feature that every one enjoys.

This bargain bill is continuous too — right around the clock and the calendar — the fact that the average American household gets about TWICE as much electricity for its money as it did fifteen years ago.

You probably don't realize that household electricity costs you only half as much as it used to, because you've added so many useful new appliances over the years — more and better lamps—radios, refrigerator, clocks—vacuum cleaner and washer, perhaps — all serving you well and saving you work.

The same careful business management that made this possible has also helped provide the power for today's tremendous production of tanks, planes and ships from Democracy's Arsenal. Electric power is military power too!

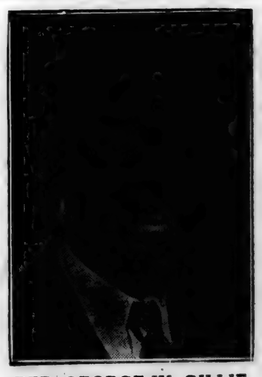
Republican Nominee



REP. GEORGE W. GILLIE

Renominated without opposition in Tuesday's Primary, Rep. George W. Gillie will be the Republican candidate for re-election to Congress from the Fourth District in the November election.

Representative Gillie was first elected to Congress in 1938 by a majority of 20,000 votes, sweeping every county in the District. He was re-elected in 1940 by an even larger majority, carrying DeKalb County by a vote of 7,952 to 5,460.

As the only Indiana member of the House Committee on Agriculture, Representative Gillie has been a leader of the Republican farm bloc in Congress. During his two terms in Washington he has been a vigorous advocate of full military preparedness and of strict economy in the expenditure of Government funds for non-war purposes.

Representative Gillie has indicated that he will stand for reelection on a program calling for the forceful prosecution of the war on all fronts. In order to bring about victory in the shortest possible time, he has asserted that the Government must:

(1) Clear its decks for action and eliminate at once all non-essential functions and expenditures.

(2) Translate every available dollar into munitions as quickly as possible, without waste of either time or money.

(3) Lay aside for the duration of the war any further social or fiscal experiments.

(4) Abandon emphasis on "defense" and put all emphasis on "offense" in our victory drive.

(5) Put an end to all profiteering whether by individuals or corporations.

(6) Make it a criminal offense for any person or group to retard or hinder the war production drive.

WIFE GETS CUSTODY OF THE CHILDREN

Georgena Martin, of Auburn, was awarded custody of her three little children in the DeKalb Circuit Court Monday, but she may have trouble getting one of them away from their father, Gerald Martin.

Prosecuting her suit for a divorce, Mrs. Martin stated that she and the defendant were married Sept. 7, 1935, and separated May 12, 1941. The children are Eugene Gerald, who is nearly 6, Nancy Lee, who will be 4 next month, and Gerald Atlee Jr., aged 2 years. The plaintiff testified that the defendant failed to furnish a home for his famly and did not provide other necessities. There was a week, she said, in which he furnished only 45 cents for his family's care. He made a practice of going out nights and remaining all night, she declared, refusing to tell her his whereabouts. He was away from home for three months in 1937.

Mrs. Martin testified that the defendant is now living at North Manchester. She resides with her parents, Samuel B. Geisinger and wife. She said that her husband came to her parents' home last December and said he wanted to take the little girl to his parents' home at St. Joe for Christmas. He took the child, but never brot her back and Mrs. Martin said she hasn't seen the girl since. She understands that Martin has the girl at North Manchester. He came back last month and told his wife she would never see the child again.

Husselman & Husselman are attorneys for Mrs. Martin. The defendant did not appear and the state was represented by Prosecuting Attorney Geo. E. Mountz. The plaintiff asked that she be given the custody of all three children and such an order was entered, together with a requirement for the defendant to pay her $5 a week for the children's support. He also was directed to pay his wife's counsel fee of $50. What action will be taken by Mrs. Martin to get the custody of the little girl remains to be seen.

A decree of divorce was entered.

LARRY BRANDON SPEAKS

The Tri-Township Farm Bureau met May 5th at 8 P. M. for their regular monthly meeting. Brooks Trenary, chairman, called the meeting to order. Two songs were sung being "My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean," and "Long, Long Ago," this was followed with prayer by Larry Brandon.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Mr. Trenary appointed a committee of three to decide where the outdoor meeting in July would be held. The committee being Chas. Cook, Howard Shilling and Ira Hook.

Larry Brandon, speaker for the evening, then gave a very interesting talk on "Farmers, the main wheel today." Also gave a biblical reference for farmers today to show how important a farmer and farm land is. Scripture referred to was Genesis 2: 15; 1: 28.

Mrs. Howard Shilling then read a Mother's Day poem entitled "The Red Carnation." The dividend checks were then presented by Ford Walters and this was followed with motion pictures conducted by Fred Hart. A fine lunch of fruit salad and sandwiches brought the meeting to a close to meet again in June.

First Mother's Day Observance Traced To Ancient Romans

'Mothering Sunday' Still Celebrated in Sections Of England.

THE setting aside of a specific day on which to honor motherhood is not a recent development.

Mother's day probably had its inception in the day of the ancient Romans, when they celebrated, on the Ides of March, a festival in honor of the mother of the gods, the people bringing offerings which became the property of the priests.

From this practice arose the custom of attending the mother church on mid-Lent Sunday with presents for the church. Mid-Lent or mothering Sunday still is celebrated in the midland counties of England by apprentices and servants visiting their parents on that day.

A special "Mother's day" in Sunday schools and churches is attributed to Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia, who conceived the idea in 1908 when she was asked by the superintendent of the Sunday school in the Virginia town in which her mother had long been the moving spirit, to arrange a memorial service.

This observance led to similar ones in other cities and attracted the attention of congress, which on May 10, 1913, passed a resolution commending national observance of the day. In 1914 congress authorized the President to designate, by annual proclamation, the second Sunday in May as Mother's day, and to request the display of the American flag on government buildings and private homes.

The origin of the celebration as a public occasion proclaimed by the President has, however, been attributed also to a former president of the Fraternal Order of Eagles. He is said to have made the suggestion May 10, 1904, in a speech at English's opera house in Indianapolis. A bronze tablet commemorating the event was unveiled in the theater May 10, 1931.

A MESSAGE FROM THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY

THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY
WASHINGTON

May 1, 1942

TO THE PEOPLE OF INDIANA:

This week a new campaign for the sale of War Bonds and Savings Stamps is under way throughout the Nation. It is the War Bond Quota Campaign.

It is urgently necessary that you double the rate at which you are now buying War Bonds and Stamps. This will mean the sale direct to individual Americans of War Bonds and Stamps to the amount of not less than one billion dollars every month.

One billion dollars a month is the National quota. It is equal to one-tenth the combined incomes of all Americans.

This money is needed to buy the tools of war for your fighting forces. It will not pay for all of them. Our war expenditures now are at the rate of about FOUR BILLIONS a month, and they are growing daily. But a billion dollars a month direct from the people will make all-out production possible. Without it we cannot do our best; without it we cannot put forth our full effort.

It is desperately needed for another reason. We can't fight a war and at the same time live and spend as usual. There are not enough goods to go around — the things we buy with money. If we go on spending at the 1941 scale, we'll be robbing the fighting man to add to our own comfort or pleasure. We'll be driving up the cost of living for all of us. We'll be imposing dire hardships on our neighbors.

What is asked of you is ten per cent of your earnings — a tithe for Liberty. It is not a tax; it is not even a contribution; it is a loan at interest, for your use and protection later.

Your Government asks you to cut down your expenditures, TO SAVE — your boys on the firing line and in the training camps, through your Government, ask you to save so that they may have what they need to win YOUR WAR for you — America asks you to save; to SAVE TO WIN THE WAR; to buy War Bonds and Stamps up to not less than ten per cent of your income.

Is Liberty worth it? Is Democracy worth it? Is America worth it? I think I know your answer.

Sincerely,

H. Morgenthau Jr.

The above letter was sent to this newspaper by Secretary Morgenthau in Washington. We publish it in the interest of the War Bond Quota Campaign and earnestly recommend that all our readers do their share in the tremendous job ahead of financing the War effort.

SAMUEL CLELAND WINS RACE FOR CONGRESS NOMINATION

A top-heavy majority in Tuesday's primary elections gave Samuel C. Cleland, Fort Wayne attorney, the democratic nomination for congressman from the fourth district. His opponent, Thomas P. Riddle of Clear Lake, a former Auburn resident, failed to create any serious threat. Cleland's unofficial total for the district was 10,036, and for Riddle 5,306.

Cleland's opponent in the fall election will be Dr. George W. Gillie, incumbent, who was unopposed in the primary on the republican ticket. Representative Gillie was first elected to congress in 1938 and was re-elected in 1940 by a big majority. He is the only Indiana member of the house committee on agriculture and has been a leader of the republican farm bloc in congress.

Representative Gillie has indicated that he will stand for re-election on a six-point program calling for "forceful prosecution of the war on all fronts," with emphasis on "offense" in the victory drive.

A free tuberculosis clinic will be held May 13 from 10 to 12 noon and 1:30 to 4 P. M., on the second floor of the Auburn city hall. Dr. O. T. Kidder, of the Irene Byron Sanatorium will be in charge. This clinic, conducted by the DeKalb County Tuberculosis Association, is free to the public.

The Federal Bureau of Industrial Conservation reports that a plan has been worked out by the Tin Salvage Institute and collapsible tube manufacturer, whereby the corner drug store will give all the old tooth paste tubes to the drug wholesaler, who in turn will ship them in lots of five pounds or more, Express Collect, directly to the Tin Salvage Institute at Hillsdale, N. J. The Institute is writing to druggists giving them this information, and the Federal Salvage Agency is asking local Salvage Chairmen to see that local druggists are correctly informed.

CERTIFICATES TO BE ISSUED FOR CANNING

DeKalb County Board, However, has Received No Instructions as Yet—Nearly 2,000 have Registered in Auburn

Housewives—there probably will be special certificates issued to allow additional purchases of sugar for canning purposes—but there is no use asking for them at this time.

That, in substance, is the statement made Wednesday by John Zimmerman, chairman of the DeKalb county rationing board. The advice followed a number of requests for permits to get canning sugar.

"There will be a special permit issued at some time," Mr. Zimmerman explained, "but their is no use asking for one at this time. The rationing board requests that persons desiring such permits wait until further information is received by the board. When they are available an announcement will be made."

Tuesday, the second day of the sugar registration, showed 1,787 registrations in Auburn, with 1,674 ration books being issued. That gives Auburn a total of 2,961 registrations and 2,740 books issued for the first two days. DeSoto school had 423 registrations and issued 403 books; Riley, 405 registrations and 364 books, and Harrison, 959 registrations and 907 books.

Registrations at Butler Tuesday numbered 518, with 499 books issued; Waterloo, 565 registrations and 539 books, and Garrett, 1,315 registrations and 1,241 books. The last report on the district schools was 1,282 registrations and 1,213 books issued. These figures do not include Tuesday.

A long line of applicants appeared at Riley school Tuesday evening and it was necessary to turn a number of persons away. Clerks report that they now and then receive "advice" as to how to properly conduct their work, and a few complaints, but that is to be expected. Mr. Zimmerman pointed out that the various registration offices in the county are handling about 100 individual cases each hour and could hardly be expected to do better.

The registration will continue through Thursday from 4 to 6 p. m. and 7 to 9 p. m.

AUBURN GROUP ATTENDS A RALLY AT NEWVILLE CHURCH

A Lake James Christian Service camp rally was held at the Newville Church of Christ Tuesday evening, with the ladies of the church serving dinner to about 60 young people of DeKalb county.

Following dinner there was group singing led by Dorothy Sherwood of Cedar Lake, with her sister, Beverly, at the piano. Other parts of the program included vocal and instrumental numbers, a brief talk by Mrs. W. D. Nice of Butler, and moving pictures of campers in recent years shown by Camp Director Rev. Russell F. Handy of Angola.

Attending the rally from the Auburn Church of Christ were Ed and Helen Jo Grimm, Norman and Louann Gearhart, Beverly and Margaret Sellers, Dana and Richard Eynon, Marjorie Johnson, Nola Ruth Wilson, Jack Morgan, Homer Abel, G'Neil Seely, Mrs. Forrest Sellers, Mrs. Howard Dirrim and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Eynon.

Another rally will be held May 12 at the South Milford Church of Christ.

DeKALB COUNTY MERCHANTS TO MEET AT KENDALLVILLE

A joint meeting of all merchants from Noble and DeKalb counties has been scheduled by the Office of Price Administration to be held at the high school auditorium in Kendallville the evening of Thursday, May 14, to explain the plan and objectives of the new over-all price ceiling.

Notice of the scheduled meeting was received in a telegram by Mayor U. C. Brouse of Kendallville from James A. Davis, Office of Price Administration, Cleveland, O. In the message Mayor Brouse was asked to preside at the meeting and make all preliminary arrangements for the important session. It was stated that the major address of the evening would be made by an official of the Office of Price Administration.

Definite arrangements for the meeting will be made at once, Mayor Brouse said. In the message, Mayor Brouse was requested to seek the cooperation of mayors of other cities and all civic organizations in the two counties in an effort to attain, as near as possible, a 100 percent attendance of the merchants of the two counties. The Office of Price Administration estimated that the attendance should be at least 600.

TOMBOW HEADS DEMOCRATIC ORGANIZATION

Leighton F. Tombow, Butler florist, was elected chairman of the democratic county central committee for the ensuing two years at a meeting held in the Auburn city hall Saturday afternoon.

The new vice chairman is Mrs. Cleo O'Neal, of Waterloo. The secretary and treasurer will be appointed by the new chairman.

Mr. Tombow succeeds Earl D. Leas, of Waterloo, who declined re-election. The new chairman is a native of Butler and a graduate of the high school in that city. He has been in the floral business many years and is a veteran of the World War. He served as president of town board and was a member of the county council some years ago. He is now a member of the water works board of Butler and is a member of the Rotary Club. He is also a former commander of the Legion Post of Butler and is a member of the county American Legion band.

Mrs. O'Neal is the wife of Floyd O'Neal, a New York Central employe, and they lived in Butler until recently. She has been active in local democratic politics. As vice chairman she takes the place of Mrs. Beatrice Teeters, of Garrett.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. Leas, who expressed his appreciation for the co-operation given him by the precinct committeemen. He presented Judge Dan M. Link, of Auburn, as temporary chairman of the meeting and W. W. Ketcham, of Auburn, acted as secretary. The election of chairman and vice chairman followed, both being by acclamation.

EXPECT FEW DETOURS ON STATE HIGHWAYS

With normal construction and improvement work on the state highway system "frozen" by the War Production Board order of a month ago, there will be comparatively few detours affecting motoroists this year.

In past years there were frequently as many as 65 to 70 detours in operation on the state highway system during the peak of the construction season and the period when road oiling, surface treatment and similar activities were in progress.

Such construction work as is now in progress includes only projects on which work had been started prior to April 9 when the order restricting construction to projects of military importance was issued. The only highway construction started since that time has been certified by military or naval authorities as of necessity in the war program.

WAR WORKER GIRLS IN UNIFORM—Eight young women employees of the Philadelphia Ordnance District Headquarters are shown in their new tan uniforms which they designed and purchased with their own funds. Wearing of the uniform is optional, but many girls prefer it because it is practical and military in appearance. Adoption of similar uniforms is considered by the thousands of women and girls in War Department Offices in Washington and elsewhere in the country. Overseas caps are Army type and the jackets are single breasted, have four buttons, epaulets and slit in back, similar to Army officers' blouses. Buttons are Army type. The skirts are flared, have deep single "kick pleat" in front and back, with zippered side fastener and a belt overlapping. Shoes are Army officer style with strap and buckle over instep and with spectator heels. Shoe color is "turf."

THOMAS KRISE RECEIVED COMMISSION IN U. S. ARMY

Thomas H. Krise, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Krise, of 4 miles north-west of St. Joe, who received a degree from Indiana University this year was commissioned an officer in the United States Army at the 113th annual commencement exercises Sunday evening.

The DeKalb County student is among the group of 109 I. U. 1942 graduates who received commissions in the Army. Fifty-three were commissioned second lieutenants and fifty-six first lieutenants in the medical corps of the United States Army. Those in the medical corps were graduated from the school of medicine with the doctor of medicine degree.

Of those commissioned second lieutenants, 34 will be with the infantry, 7 the quartermaster corps, three the chemical warfare service and six with the air corps (non rated.) These students have had four years of R. O. T. C. training at the university, two of which have been advanced work, and have attended a summer R. O. T. C. camp. Mr. Krise was commissioned second lieutenant, infantry.

Colonel R. L. Shoemaker, head of the University's Military department, delivered the oath to those receiving commissions.

BARN FALLS ON CHAS. BUTLER SATURDAY

Charles Butler, of Spencerville, about 40, was injured, late Saturday afternoon when a barn he was helping to lower fell on him. He was taken to the Sanders Hospital in Auburn. The attending physician said there were no fractures.

Mr. Butler and some other workmen were tearing out the lower story of a barn on the Lutheran parsonage premises in Spencerville. The side that had been cut out fell on him, pinning Mr. Butler to the ground. He lay 15 to 20 minutes with the edge of the top story across his chest before the structure could be jacked up to free him, fellow workmen said.

On Sunday afternoon he was released from the hospital and has been in bed since his removal home, and it is thought he will fully recover within a short time.

CONCRETE WATER TANK MEET SET

Farmers To Watch New Method of Construction Monday at Ginther Farm

Farmers of the St. Joe and Spencerville areas are invited to attend an important demonstration in which a concrete watering tank, to be constructed without the use of steel, will be built at the St. Joe Valley Hampshire farm of O. E. Ginther, Spencerville, next Monday afternoon, May 18.

The tank will be built in a pasture lot on Indiana Route 1, half way between St. Joe and Spencerville. As a result of wartime restrictions on steel, experts have developed a highly successful method of building the concrete watering tanks, and other farm improvements as well, without steel for reinforcing.

This method will be followed during the demonstration which will start shortly after noon, with Homer B. Neisz, of Lafayette, farm products representative of the Portland Cement Association, in charge.

PASTOR SHARP TALKS AT LIONS CLUB

Rev. L. B. Sharp made a short talk at the Lions Club dinner Monday evening, that the boys appreciated fully. His subject was "Things that can't be shaken." He used Hebrews 12: 27, "and this word, Yet once more, signifieth the removing of those things that are shaken, as of things that are made, that those things which cannot be shaken may remain."

The speaker said: "If we become the property of the state as in some of the waring nations, the purposes of God cannot survive, but we as a nation love home life, and as long as this bulwark stands we will survive. The spirit of brotherhood must be made to encircle the globe. We do not hate, we love peace, freedom and equality, and express good will to all, but we will fight against those who seek to destroy. Faith will stand and love will abide in a people constituted as we are. Our ego may be crushed to the ground at times, but we will stage a comeback sooner or later."

The club voted to furnish the tooth brushes for the Auxiliary kits, and in this way do something for the boys that are in the armed service.

TOTAL OF 24,275 IN SUGAR REGISTRATION

A report was made by John Zimmerman of Auburn, county sugar administrator, to the state office Tuesday that 24,275 registrations were filed in DeKalb County last week by individual sugar consumers.

This was not far from the perliminary estimate, which was 25,939. Of the total filed, 5,814 were in Auburn, 1,897 in Butler, 3,968 in Garrett, 1,808 in Waterloo and 10,788 in the county districts. The number who registered but for whom ration books were not issued because of sugar on hand was 1,784.

Mr. Zimmerman wrote to the state rationing office with reference to several questions. In reply he was advised that consumers failing to register during the period of May 4 to 7 will be required to wait two weeks before they may register with the county rationing board. The local board is authorized to issue duplicate of rationing book No. 1 if it is lost, but only after two months' time from the date of loss, and then only after the board has removed from the book all stamps which have expired to date.

The state office advised Mr. Zimmerman that he was correct in his interpretation of the regulations to the effect that people with excess sugar must not use it faster than the ration of one half pound per person per week and that when the time comes to consider their needs the record of the excess reported on their registration cards will be examined and the allowance figured accordingly.

Appreciation was expressed by the state office for the whole-hearted co-operation given by the school organizations and also congratulations on "an excellent job well done."

Increase Sugar Beet Crop

Contrary to rumors to the effect that the acreage of sugar beets was being restricted this year despite a sugar shortage, County Agent C. E. Baker reports that the acreage in DeKalb county has been increased 50% over last year and the increase throughout the nation is 24%.

The expected crop from 300 acres planted in this county is 2,400 tons. The processing produces 18 per cent sugar. By-products are pulp, used as feed for dairy cows, and molasses, used chiefly for livestock feed. The tops of the beets are valuable as livestock feed, especially for dairy cows.

Kenneth Ridgway is now in Alaskan waters. Word was received last week of his arrival at Prince Rupert.

SPRINGER CHOSEN CHAIRMAN FOR 9th TERM

The entire Republican central committee in DeKalb County was re-elected unanimously Saturday afternoon when precinct committeemen and vice committeemen met at the court house in Auburn. Capt. H. C. Springer, of Butler, will continue as chairman, his ninth consecutive election to that office; Mrs. Mabel Lyons, of Auburn, as vice chairman, her second consecutive election; E. E. Turner, of Grant Township, as secretary, his fourth consecutive election, and Philip Carper, of Jackson Township, as treasurer. Mr. Carper has served as treasurer of the central committee for the last 28 years. Thirty-seven voters were present, and there were 23 proxies.

Captain Springer made a strong plea for an intensive campaign leading up to the elections next fall.

"We have seen the trend of our national government during the last several years and the disapproval expressed in DeKalb County and the state in 1940," he asserted. "We wonder if we're not moving surely into a totalitarian government—wondering if that trend is going to be checked.

"I have always been an isolationist—I didn't want our natoin to get into this war. But now that we are in it, we must get in and win."

Captan Springer pointed out that the campaign this year will necessarily be changed because of financial and transportation changes brought about by the war. The future will tell he said, whether there will have to be smaller individual township gatherings or just one or two larger county meetings. He warned that this is an "off year" and a difficult one in which to get votes out. In an off year, he said, the vote in DeKalb County usually shrinks 1,500 to 2,000.

Various candidates nominated in last Tuesday's primary were introduced.

Remarkable Martin Dies

For a number of years the country has been hearing all sorts of criticism of the Dies Committee. Martin Dies is a Congressman from Texas, six-foot tall, belligerent and persistant. He is chairman of the Dies Committee, and he has unearthed hundreds of traitors, spies and tricksters. A year or two ago the President and Mrs. Roosevelt joined in the attack against the Dies Committee.

The House of Representatives has again, by a vote of 290 to 60, approved another $110,000 to continue the exploration of subversive activities by the Committee. Under all the circumstances this endorsement of the lower House must be accepted as overwhelming approval of the Committee.

BELOVED BELLS

Carry the tones of bells upon the air to bless the quiet calm that rests on the countryside! Bells for Sunday School and choirs and children with 'quarterlies', grown ups with Bibles, visions of visiting at the church steps before attendng the morning call to prayer, sermon and psalms. Bells warned us to hurry with breakfast, to finish our dressing to be on time, to make the necessary preparations for Sunday dinner. We walked to church and smiled to the folks as we passed by, remarked about the beauty of the sunny morning, the green grass here that was so thick, the flowers there that were so colorful. The summons to worship as you passed thru the shadows of leaves on the sidewalk, the summons to prayer as you carried the bell tones in your ears and the joy of faithful worship and true belief in your heart. May we always hear church bells in this community.

JUST THINK!

Over in a section of Free China where some of our American boys are stationed, we learn the high price of articles that we still take for granted here at home. For instance here is coffee, it brings $6 a pound and a large tube of American toothpaste costs $4. Cheese would cost you $12 a pound, milk just $2 for a 12-ounce can with a tin of American cigarets costing $7. If you have a special permit you can buy gasoline, that is if you can afford to pay $3.50 a gallon for it. Socks are $3 a pair, a new portable typewriter sells for $370 and second-hand woolen sweaters will bring $25 if you can find somebody to sell one to you. So we might remember a few of these items when we go to the neighborhood store and start to crab about the price of so and so going up three cents since the last time we were after the same article.

HERB GROWING

There will be added women around St. Joe who will grow herbs in their gardens this year. With the amount of home canning and the increased supply of vegetables that will be found on our local boards this summer, now is the time to grow herbs. In many cases the flavoring of herbs adds to our appreciation of certain meat and vegetable dishes. Herb growing was more popular in years gone by but is coming back to today's gardens in increasing favor. There might be some folks who will lavish care on certain weeds, desirable weeds that are needed for the manufacture of medicine. Comes the shortage of drugs and experts need to look to woods and fields for Jimson weed, poison hemlock, foxglove, nightshade. Pharmacies need them in some of their forms such as roots or leaves or juices. There might be profit in growing some of these valuable weeds since the supply is limited and the demand is increased.

WATCH IT!

With more cyclists on open roads and highways there may arise a need for traffic laws to cover in order to avoid confusion and peril. The threatening avalanche of these 'bikes' may cause a new transportation problem. If any of you in this community have ever been where workers in factories for the most part ride bicycles, you will understand the need for some special thinking on this line. With narrow streets and crowded highways we might need some disciplining along the line to make the danger less. Canada has been using bicycles in many of her factories and the out-pouring of the workers during the rush hour is something to see. We may have to take up this problem with our own motorists and eventually adjust rules for cyclists to obey.

JOIN OR STARVE

What would you think if a law were passed making it possible for a private organization to legally force you to buy its product and pay it initiation fees and dues?

Don't say, "That's impossible." For that is what powerful labor unions are seeking under closed shop contracts. In some industries, such as soft coal, they have succeeded.

The demands now made by the Steel Workers Organizing Committee on the companies known as "Little Steel" are typical. The Committee would make it a condition of employment that all employes of the company become and remain members of the union in good standing within 30 days of their time of employment. They demand further that the companies "check off" (deduct from all employes' pay checks) the union dues and initiation fees and turn them over to the union. And finally, they demand that the union itself be regarded as sole judge of what is meant by the term "in good standing," and that the employer be absolutely bound by the decisions of the union on this matter.

What does this all mean? It means that no man could hold a job unless he joined a union, paid tribute to a union, and kept in the good graces of union officials. It means that the employer would be forced to act as a collection agency in the matter of dues, irrespective of the wishes of the employes. It means that union officials would be given vast sums of money to spend in any way they saw fit — money over which there is no governmental regulation or control of any kind. And it means, lastly, that these union officials would have czar-like authority over the jobs, the opportunities and the livelihood of all workers in great basic industries.

Labor organizations are no longer content with voluntary collective bargaining. They are no longer content to "sell" their services to potential members on the basis of merit. They want every working person to be compelled to join or starve. If they get their way, we might as well stop talking about freedom in this country.

RUBBER FOR AMERICA

Hope for the American motorist is found in the ambitious synthetic rubber program which is being developed by the oil industry.

W. S. S. Rogers, President of the Texas Company, says that the automobile is so interwoven with our national economy that its necessary civilian use should and must be continued. The government's current synthetic rubber plans call for the creation of a supply which will be almost entirely absorbed by military needs. Therefore, the oil industry has appointed a committee "to make recommendations for increasing the announced programs so as to include some rubber for what we consider essential civilian use." Commenting on this, Mr. Rodgers said, "I have a great deal of confidence in American ingenuity, and I would not be surprised if we should soon find some satisfactory solution to this rather difficult problem."

Very great progress has been made in increasing the wearing ability of synthetic rubber for tires. According to W. S. Farish, President of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, rubber substitutes developed as late as 1940 would deliver only 200 miles of service. New synthetic rubber may deliver 10,000 miles at speeds of not over 35 miles per hour. And, says Mr. Farish, a single day's output of steel would enable the oil industry to build all the equipment needed to keep the necessary civilian cars rolling.

It will, of course, be a long time before much rubber is available for anything except vital use. So take the best possible care of your car and its tires. And in the meantime, it is reassuring to know that the oil industry is doing everything in its power to give this nation the synthetic rubber it so desperately needs.

HOOSIER HOME FRONT

INTERESTING HOM EFRONT NEWS IN INDIANA

Steel is the raw material of victory, steel is perhaps the most important single material in modern warfare. All the tanks and the howitzers and the machine guns that will drive the Axis from Europe and Asia are epitomized in that one word—steel.

Most Americans know this well and probably weren't surprised when the War Production Board last week took steps to remove steel from civilian life and divert it almost entirely to war production. But the order which halts the use of iron and steel in the manufacture of more than 400 major commodities contains some real surprises for the Home Front, at that.

One of these surprises is to discover the vast amounts of vital steel which went into the manufacture of very little things—of such things, for instance, as toilet articles—manicure scissors and nail files and nippers and cuticle pushers, hair pins and bobby pins and tweezers and gadgets for squeezing blackheads.

Altogether the items on the above list consumed 1,815 tons of steel in 1941, enough to have made more than 170 big 155 MM guns. The 110,000 pounds of steel which went into blackhead squeezers alone would have made four such big guns.

WPB's steel order is so drastic and far-reaching that as time passes it will work major changes in our way of life. Scores of things we had come to accept as essential to our standard of living no longer will be made after a 90-day tapering off period and gradually will disappear from dealers' shelves.

The business man will find his surroundings changed by the choking off of office machinery of all kinds, advertising novelties, letter shutes, openers and trays, lockers and telephone booths. The housewife will be unable to buy new bookends, teapots, cutlery, bread boxes, butter knives and cake cutters. The glamour girl will have to hold on to her present lipstick holders and compacts, the athlete will look in vain for new sporting goods.

Only two metals, the order specifies, may be used as substitutes for iron or steel—and these are gold and silver. This shows how vital to the war effort are steel and its workaday cousins and how important the so-called "precious metals"—traditional tokens of romance and finance.

The Office of Price Administration urges us to be patient with our retail storekeepers in the next few months, while the new price ceiling is going into effect. OPA points out that "the regulations impose many novel and difficult burdens on retailers and their suppliers" and that "the long-run success of the program requires the complete cooperation of the consumer."

There are still more changes coming for the Hoosier farm. The Office of Defense Transportation is revising the milk collecting system so that there will be no duplication of routes as there is now. This is to save rubber and gasoline. Delivery routes in cities will also be revised.

Speaking of rubber, reclaiming plants now are set up which can use all types of old rubber, not just tires and tubes as formerly. Among the items now valuable for salvage are rubber heels and soles, boots and shoes, overshoes, hot water bottles, rubber gloves, etc.

A lesser-known aspect of the conservation drive is the use of reclaimed rubber for rubber heels. Postmen and policemen of Washington, D. C. have volunteered to act as walking laboratories to test heels made of scrap rubber. On the results of their findings will depend whether millions of pedestrians get a durable reclaimed rubber heel.

American women will not be brought into the war effort on a compulsory, nation-wide basis—they will be allowed to sign up voluntarily as the need arises, said Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt, Chairman of the new War Manpower Commission. He reports that 1,500,000 women are already registered with the predicts that as many as 4,000,000 women will be engaged on war work within two years. That is, one out of every five war workers will be a woman.

"War Ration Book No. 1" is now a prized possession in almost every American home. On the first day alone 27,312,063 persons were registered. OPA advises you to guard the book zealously—it may entitle you to other commodities later.

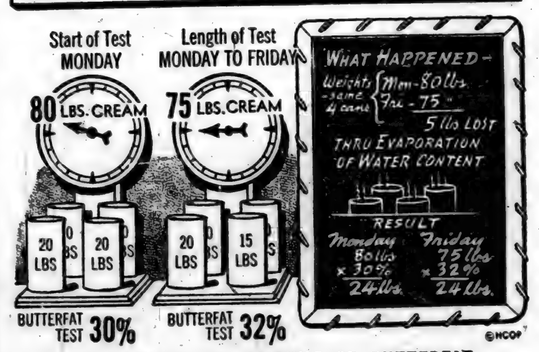
EVAPORATION EXPLAINS "JUMP" IN BUTTERFAT TEST



NO INCREASE IN AMOUNT OF BUTTERFAT

It's natural to want to believe it—the idea that as cream sours its butterfat content increases—but it just isn't so. Take the word of experts whose business it is to check up on such things. They will also tell that this erroneous idea costs farmers many thousands of dollars each year.

Carefully controlled scientific investigations at the various agricultural colleges prove positively that souring does not increase the butterfat content of cream—it merely makes it look thicker and richer. What these tests do show is that the normal, natural evaporation of moisture from the cream in the process of souring causes an increase in the butterfat percentage, not in the actual content of the butterfat. This fact is illustrated in the chart above.

Eighty pounds of cream testing 30 per cent butterfat represent a butterfat content of 24 pounds of fat. Four days later the same cans of cream weigh only 75 pounds because of the five pounds of water evaporated. Testing this lessened weight of cream shows that the percentage of butterfat is now up to 32 per cent. But this has made no difference in the total amount of butterfat in the cans. The 75 pounds of cream, while testing 32 per cent, still contain only 24 pounds of fat. The amount of fat in the original 80 pounds of cream and the reduced amount after evaporation is exactly the same—24 pounds.

It is seen, therefore, that the farmer who lets his cream stand too long near the kitchen stove or other warm place is the real loser. For certainly he cannot get for this type of cream the best prices. Very sour cream is always way off in flavor, and off flavors grade down the butter made from it. The smart farmer takes care to guard the flavor of his cream all along the production line. One of the best ways is by frequent marketing. Experts recommend delivery of cream three times a week in summer, and at least twice a week in winter.

Mr. and Mrs. George Church and daughters were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Blackwell.

TOMATOES FOR THE GARDEN

The tomato is a good garden plant, containing quantities of Vitamins A, B1, B2, and C, and numerous mineral elements and supplying more than 100 calories per pound, says W. B. Ward, Purdue Extension gardener. The tomato will grow upon a wide range of soils, being rather tolerant to acid conditions. Then given plant food and some partial shading from the hot afternoon sun, tomatoes will produce from June until killed by cold weather in the fall.

This popular garden fruit may be used raw or cooked at least once a day during the season. Canned tomatoes, juice, pulp, or whole, may be preserved for winter use. It is recommended that each individual consume at least 50 quarts of tomato products from November to June during the out of season period.

To supply this amount of tomato products for the year, the plants need be liberally supplied with plant food and given good care unless a great number of plants are to be set for only minimum production.

Bonny Best and Pritchard are outstanding early maturing varieties, while the Indiana Baltimore is the leading late tomato. Marglobe and Rutgers are other varieties.

If tomatoes are to be staked, the plants should be set 24 inches apart in the row. If two rows are desired, use the same spacing but stagger the rows. Set the stake on the west side of the plant and have it extend five feet above the ground. Prune to one stem when staking. Tomatoes that are not staked have been found to produce more fruits.

ST. JOE NEWS

A dime out of every dollar we earn IS OUR QUOTA for VICTORY with U. S. WAR BONDS

VOL. LVII (57 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, MAY 21, 1942. NUMBER 21

Your CONGRESS and YOU!

NEWS FROM THE OFFICE OF GEORGE W. GILLIE

Certain forces in this country have been strenuously objecting to parity prices for farm products and have even gone so far as to question the patriotism of farmers and farm leaders for insisting on such equitable treatment of the Nation's producers. The principal argument against permitting farm prices to reach parity is that it would result in unfair increases in retail food prices. This argument, however, comes under the heading of what the late Gen. Hugh Johnson used to refer to as "eye-wash."

Passing over the indisputable fact that "parity prices" are simply "just prices," giving the farmer a dollar with equal purchasing power to that of other groups in America, here is an additional answer to those who oppose fair prices for farm products. It comes from a neutral observer and its logic is irrefutable. We refer to the fact that it is not the farmer who gets the major part of the dollar which consumers spend for food. Here is the proof:

The current issue of the Medical Record points out that of every dollar spent by consumers for food, only 42 cents reaches the farmer. Those who transport food get 6 cents; processors get 20 cents; wholesalers get 8 cents, and retailers get 24 cents. Thus less than half goes to the man who produces the food.

The farmer actually gets the following number of cents out of the dollar you spend for the following foods: Eggs, 58 cents; hens, 48 cents; dairy products, 45 cents; white flour, 40 cents; apples, 35 cents; onions, 31 cents; rice, 29 cents; canned tomatoes, 17 cents, and crackers, 9 cents.

It thus becomes apparent that honest-to-goodness parity prices for farmers would not greatly increase consumers' prices. The farmer is perfectly justified in demanding them. And the farm bloc in Congress is not going to stop striving for them despite attacks from uninformed sources.

UP IN THE AIR. After-the-war prophesies are a dangerous form of conjecture these days, but here is one this column believes is so obvious that few will deny it. After the war, America will "take to the air" for passenger and freight travel almost as America "took to the highways" after World War I.

The other day an official of the Lockheed Co. had this to report about planes his firm is designing for after-the-war use:

"Already," he said, "demonstrator planes have been built capable of carrying 60 to 70 passengers at 400 miles per hr. This means New York to London in eight hours. Breakfast in New York, supper in London!"

With perhaps well over a million trained flyers mustered out after the war, cities and towns without airports of some kind or other will be something like the present day communities without electric lights or even paved streets. It's not too early to begin preparing for the air traffic to follow this war.

BUDGET TIPS. If you are interested in new ways to save on your food budget, you will want a copy of a new leaflet, "Egg dishes at Low Cost," and which column readers may obtain through this office. More than a score of tasty egg recipes are included in this valuable pamphlet. For a FREE copy, write today to Hon. Geo. W. Gillie, H. O. Bldg., Washington, D. C.

VALENTINE FOR MIKADO

We once almost got pretty chummy
With a squat little sly Nipponese,
A slick little guy
With a slant in his eye,
And a color somewhat ala cheese.

We rather admired his ambition,
This son from the Rising Old Sol—
If he did undersell us
Didn't he tell us
"So sorry" he was for it all?

We thot him a true son of Heaven,
When he gave us that fatuous grin;
We've found he is not—
He's a son of a what,
This guy with the lemon peel skin.

He took all the favors we offered
With courtesy, grace and aplomb.
Then he got out the sack
And at once paid us back
With a sweet triple cross and a bomb.

'Twas clever to steal our inventions
That didn't afford so much pain—
But when he shot 'em back
With a smirk and a smack,
He took in just too much terrain.

It wasn't because he was heathen
And dealt 'em from under the deck,
But he went just too far
And—well, boys, there you are
He's become just a pain in the neck.

It couldn't have been much affection
We felt for Monsoor Nipponese,
It may be that yet
With a nice bayonet
We shall cut out his "so sorry, please!"

—Hi Larrity,
St. Joe, Indiana.

GETS APPOINTMENT AS ASSISTANT PASTOR

Dr. W. W. Robison, District Superintendent of the Methodist Church for the Fort Wayne District, announces the appointment of the Rev. G. Ben Hershberger, of Butler Center, as the assistant pastor of the Wayne Street Methodist Church of Fort Wayne.

The Rev. Mr. Hershberger, who is 25 years of age, is married and has two children. Steven Lee, 3, and Janet Lee, 1. He secured his training at Adrian College, Adrian, Michigan, where he majored in psychology and journalism. Mrs. Hershberger is a graduate of Indiana University where she was affiliated with the Alpha Delta Pi Sorority.

While in college the Rev. Mr. Hershberger served as student pastor for two years and at the termination of his training was assigned to the Chattanooga Charge, Chattanooga, Ohio, where he served for two years. In 1940 he was appointed to Garrett, and has been servicing Butler Center, Meese Chapel and Rehoboth churches.

In addition to his duties as pastor the Rev. Mr. Hershberger has served as adult adviser of the Methodist Youth Fellowship for DeKalb County and was a member of the faculty and staff of the Epworth Forest Institute in 1941.

In this new assignment, which becomes effective at once, while the Rev. Mr. Hershberger will be acting as an assistant to the pastor, the Rev. B. Brooks Shake, his more specific duties will be secretarial work, which for nearly two years has been cared for by Mrs. Earl Westerlin. He will also be responsible for all publicity and promotion, and work with children and young people. With this additional assistance, the Wayne Street Church plans to undertake a greatly expanded and more vigorous program for the coming year.

"INTERNATIONAL CRIME"

Story by Maxwell Grant.

Cast: Rod LaRoque, Astrid Allwyn, Thomas Jackson, Oscar O'Shea, Wm. Von Brincken, Wm. Pawley, Walter Bonn, Wm. Moore, Lou Hearn, Tennen Holtz, John St. Polis, Jack Baxley, Lloyd Whitlock.

The present world war makes International Crime a timely picture. International Crime is a new type of mystery entertainment. Treated in the modern maner, it has Rod LaRoque cast as the frankly puzzled young crime commentator who accepts the challenge of a group of international plotters, and undertakes the superhuman job of doing this quickly enough to forestall the far-reaching consequences which would follow success in their ventures.

Rod LaRoque plays the leading role with a fine sense of balance—combining the devil-may-care of the soldier of fortune sort of operative and the sure, clear logic of the older, slower moving Sherlock Holmes type. Astrid Allwyn, who has the chief feminine role, is seen as his beautiful—and not always brilliant assistant, a modern young woman with a lot of determination which sometimes leads her into actions which supply plenty of headaches for her employer.

International Crime deals with a case in the career of Cranston in which he pits his shrewdness and nerve against conspirators whose attempt to block a proposed financial deal places in jeopardy the fate of an entire nation. He is assisted, at times, by his good friend, the commissioner of police; and at other moments finds himself working almost at complete variance with the organized authorities. Not the least interesting phase of the story comes from the manner in which both sides of the controversy use the radio broadcasts of the detective to involve their opponents.

The supporting cast is an unusually strong one, with Thomas Jackson cast as the police commissioner, William Van Brincken, Tenen Holtz, and Paul Panzer as the principal conspirators, John St. Polis as an international banker and William Pawley in an excellent comedy role of a reformed safe cracker, whose jealousy over his good name also adds to the difficulties confronting him.

This mystery drama is as timely as though it were taken from tomorrow's headlines. The story of a master detective matching his skill with the plotting destroyers of a nation.

YOUR SUGAR STAMPS

Saturday was the last day to buy sugar with ration stamp No. 1.

Since midnight, Saturday night stamp No. 1 has no value. All purchases of sugar after that time must be made with stamp No. 2 during the next two weeks.

Members of the rationing board also called attention of persons with excessive sugar amounts to the fact that they must get authority to use this for canning. Unless authorization is received from the board, the excess sugar will be computed at the regular ration rate and the owner will have to wait until the end of the period in which the sugar would be used up at the rate of a pound every two weeks until he can apply for more.

Mrs. Albert Conners and daughter returned by B. & O. Monday afternoon from Philadelphia, being called by the illness of her father, John Becker, who is 100 years old, and his affliction is the result of old age and its complications. She left him feeling some better.

WEAR A POPPY NEXT SATURDAY

America's battle dead will be honored here next Saturday by the wearing of poppies, the memorial flower of the English-speaking world since the first World War.

Poppies will be distributed on the streets by women of the American Legion Auxiliary, who will at the same time receive contributions for the Legion and Auxiliary work among the war disabled and families left in need by the result of war.

The custom of wearing poppies in tribute to the dead sprang up spontaneously in the United States, England and the British dominions at the close of the last war. The custom was inspired by the poem, "Flanders' Fields," which contains the lines:

"In Flanders' Fields the poppies blow,
Between the crosses, row on row—"

Poppies were first worn in America in New York City on November 10, 1918, the day before the Armistice. They were adopted as the official memorial flower of the American Legion in 1920, and one of the first acts of the American Legion Auxiliary when it was organized in 1921 was to name the poppy as its memorial flower.

Be sure to buy and wear the red poppy next Saturday.

The distribution will be made by Auxiliary members from Newville to Harlan as in past years, as this territory embraces its membership.

PERRY A. FOOTE DIES IN HOSPITAL

Perry A. Foote, a prominent Richland Township farmer, died at Sacred Heart Hospital in Garrett Saturday afternoon at 2:35 o'clock. The funeral was held at the residence Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The Rev. Allen K. Trout, of Auburn, pastor of the Richland Center Church, officiated and burial was made in Woodlawn Cemetery, Auburn.

Mr. Foote some years ago served as county supervisor and he was township trustee eight years. He was nominated by the Republicans at the recent primary for the same office. He taught school for 24 years and was active in the Richland Center Lutheran Church.

Most girls are waking up to the fellow who says he will give them a ring sometime.

That fellow is really hungry for love when he starts in biting the neck of his girl friend.

The fellow who has the most backbone, usually can be found to have the most in his head, too.

To many men she may look like a million dollars and to other women she looks like counterfeit money.

The only way some boys know of the joys of home life is when it is somebody's home beside their own.

By living in such a mechanical age and with adding machines at our finger tips, why should anyone's arithmetic get rusty?

Thomas Jefferson never made a speech in his life, but he didn't do so badly with his pen if you consider the Declaration of Independence as an example.

More people would have a more stable future if they would forget the past and anchor on to the future by living for the present.

The folks who have the long vision, are the far-sighted people these days.

Doctors sometimes say that fewer clothes make a longer life, and from rationing and cutting it looks like lots of us are in for living added years.

The trouble with the marching of time, is that lots of folks are out of step.

LATE AGAIN.

Not long ago we read that high school Greek is passing and Latin too is wearing thin. It looks to us as though we were born years too soon. It seems that educators are finding that because of the rigid entrance requirements of liberal arts colleges, students are forced to devote too much time to subjects that they don't like, are not necessary to mental ability and which perhaps wouldn't give a student any better rating within the college itself. They object to the large number of hours required in foreign languages, geometry and others. Technical schools naturally would require mathematics and physics and schools of specialization would find a need for special preparation, but for the liberal arts the needs are not the same. But don't let them lessen any requirements for English. To be able to write and to speak English correctly should be required of all of us. Someone suggested that Americans do speak English—but incorrectly. Many St. Joe people will agree.

SMALL TOWN STUFF

There was a time when literally folk would jest about the small town with its backward ways and inhabitants, the latter they laughingly called 'hicks'. Today some of the same people boast that they are small town and pride themselves upon not being able to get it out of their system no matter how long they have lived in the city. All the worthwhile and accomplished men haven't moved off to the town where there are supposed to be more advantages. Living can't be more enjoyable in the city or so many city folks wouldn't be trying to get out to the country! There is more room out there for grass, flowers and trees. It has become a fad to buy up farms and folks who never saw sheep in the meadow are moving into the small town suburbs (about three squares from the center of town), and liking it. We've known all along because we live in St. Joe.

I AM AN AMERICAN

Proud because we feel that we belong to a powerful nation, that her protection in name gives us added rights and privileges, proud because of our forefathers, the stalwart souls of yesteryear, plowed the prairies and opened the country's gateway to make this nation a good place to live. Are we proud because of what we have inherited or proud of what we are contributing to make this word 'American' mean power and glory? Surely the time has not come when the one who entertains with tales of ancestors who 'were' can carry the weight of the one who boasts of folks who 'are!' To proclaim with a prideful air of being an American without contributing to its institution, is scarcely the spirit in which to celebrate "I Am An American" day. We are justly respectful of our past history, the pioneering spirit that gave us the great country we are today. Will we be proud of our present standing and our future in later years as Citizenship Day rolls around?

We are living in an era of attack, attack on principles which we have held necessary to normal living. Because we have had these privileges, taken them for granted, we have not stopped long to consider the badge of honor we wear as citizens of America. Of course it is necessary that we keep the badge shining and bright so folks can read what it means and stands for! If you don't feel some of the pride and gratitude felt by the Apostle Paul when he boasted of his Roman citizenship, if you haven't the deep happiness which comes with the thought of our heritage, then perhaps you are not worthy of the name and surely not through your efforts will this country pass on to greater heights for your children's children. Citizenship was a revered privilege in the world of the ancients. To acquire that status meant to become a man, to bear the torch for the right to walk in its light. We who live in the midst of a free life accept it as our just right and seldom stop to consider what would happen if the torch failed to burn. History points to a grave price paid on its pages for the freedom which we take lightly. History will write how hard we are fighting today to maintain these rights. Not willing to rest in the shadows of our ancestors success in liberating, we are planning to carry on to better things, a deeper undertanding, a fairer and more evenly balanced way of life, less corruption and graft —to carry upward the torch of liberty after the war is won. We have far to go. This will be our contribution to America, our share in dedicating a nation for later generations that they may be proud to say, "I Am An American."

MORE INSURANCE

Congress is setting up a system for insurance of American property against air raids. There may be no property owner in St. Joe who would be interested tthough they carry insurance against fire, theft and wind. Maybe they don't think the Germans or Japanese can come over and drop bombs down on us. Be that as it may, England instituted this procedure quite a long time ago and the government had to handle it since none of the companies could afford to carry it. This finds us a long ways ahead of 1583 when the first life insurance policy was issued and after that came fire insurance. Centuries back they protected ships and cargoes with insurance. But here we are today with dancer's legs insured, a pianist's fingers, a public ceremony against rain and now insurance against bombs! Looks like man can't escape some form of it.

FUNNY BUSINESS

Vegetables become automobiles and clothes! Henry Ford shows a suit made of soy beans and this cloth which is partly mixed with wool can be used for upholstery. It used to be that all that was expected of a cow was for her to give milk. Now she gives clothes besides. We are living where everything is finding itself a by-product of some sort and so they convert skim-milk into wool which is called 'milk-wool' in order not to be mistaken for sheep's wool. The researchers have found glass as usable for making material for lady's frocks, even bathing suits, if you please! So with making fibre from skim-milk, from spun glass and soy beans with sheep leading the way, the sow following, glass and beans lending a helping hand, it almost sounds like the stories we read in fairy tale books when we were children.

HOOSIER HOME FRONT

INTERESTING HOM EFRONT NEWS IN INDIANA

About the hottest thing on the Hoosier Home Front this week, and for many weeks to come, is rubber. Rubber that you surely aren't going to have for more tires when the ones you have on car and tractor wear out. Rubber that you'll need when that hot water bottle begins to leak. Rubber for almost any civilian use.

America's motorized millions in jalopies, trucks, delivery wagons and limousines are riding themselves off the roads at the average rate of three and a half per cent a month. The more you drive your car now, the sooner you won't be able to drive it at all.

The military is taking more and more rubber and will need still more and more and the armed forces grow—and they are growing very rapidly. Walk when you don't need to ride. cut out the pleasure drives; don't drive that tractor for any work you can do another way.

At the same time, look around your premises for old rubber in any form—old boots, overshoes, tubing, tires, raincoats—any discarded article made of rubber.

All of these can be salvaged by processes developed not so long ago and all are urgently needed by the government. Find some way of getting them to a scrap dealer. If he refuses to buy them, having not heard that they are reclaimable and therefore marketable, write to Dudley Smith, War Production Board, Indianapolis.

Hoosier farmers did themselves proud in the spring scrap metal harvest. Late figures show that Huntington County farms produced 700 tons for an average of 545 pounds a farm; Allen County, 1000 tons; Clay County, 1375 tons; Dearborn County, 340 tons, which makes the farm average 1300 pounds; Pike County, 122 tons; Davies County, 450 tons; Jefferson County, 150 tons; Rush County, 250 tons; and Spencer County, 500 tons.

They figure out just a little higher than the anticipated average farm collection, and there's more to come. The scrap already collected from Hoosier farms will build many a war machine now so desperately needed.

Copper follows steel out of the home and into the arsenal. The War Production Board has added more than a hundred consumer products to those which may no longer be made out of copper and its alloys, including brass and bronz. One of the casualties will be the common household pin, a third of which were made of brass last year. Other articles on the way out are Christmas tree bulbs and cords, dog collars, fountain pens and musical instruments.

To give an idea of what that means to our fighting forces, the copper that went into building materials for American homes last year will provide all the brass and copper fittings for twenty-three 10,000 ton cruisers, and the copper that was used in costume jewelry, gifts and novelties will do the same for forty 1,500 ton destroyers.

WPB has cut the flow of cocoa products, green coffee and spices—black and white pepper — allspice, cinnamon, cloves, ginger, nutmeg and mace—to our dinner tables. Lack of transportation and enemy action make it necessary to conserve supplies.... Drugs and food will come in thinner and plainer glass containers from now on. WPB has standardized sizes and weights simplified design, in order to save soda-ash and other materials. At the same time, production will be raised 30 per cent to help make up for the shortage of tin cans and other metal containers....The Consumer Division of OPA offers women a three-point guide to buying war-time clothes — "Buy Practical Outfits"—"Mix Them Up" — "Make Them Last." There will be plenty of attractive clothes but none to waste....If you failed to receive a war ration book two weeks ago because you had an excess supply of sugar you are urged to cut your consumption to half-a-pound a person each week so you'll be eligible for a book when you've used it up....We spent an average of $131,600,000 a day on war purposes in April as compared with $114,900,000 in March, says Donald M. Nelson, Chairman of WPB... That means we're making progress toward victory.

Cucumber, Melon Growers Warned To Prepare For Beetle "Blitz"

The striped cucumber beetle is expected to come out of hibernation and stage its spring "blitz" as soon as cucumber and melon plants peep through the ground, says G. E. Lehker, Purdue extension entomologist. These little yellow and black beetles not only eat the young seedlings and growing plants but also carry the dreaded cucurbit wilt disease of cataloupes and cucumbers.

Since the beetle's "spring offensive" will soon get under way, now is the time to order materials and dusting equipment, and be prepared to meet this insect enemy as soon as it appears. Do not let the beetles feed on the plants, Lehker warns. They carry wilt diesase organisms in their bodies and a few nibbles may be sufficient to infect the plants and cause them to die later on from the disease.

Field tests over a period of years, by G. E. Gould, Purdue research entomologist, shows that a dust containing 10 per cent calcium arsenate, three per cent metallic copper, and an inert carrier is the best weapon against the beetles. This material is commonly known as "melon dust" and can be obtained ready-mixed from many drug, seed, and insecticide stores. It is best applied with a hand duster having an upturned spout so that all parts of the plant can be covered.

After the first treatment, dusting should be continued at five to eight day intervals for four or five weeks. It is especially important to dust after rains.

Hydrated lime in anv form need never be used on cucurbit crops, because it burns their foliage and stunts growth.

THE GIGANTIC TASK OF FEEDING THE ARMY

Feeding the U. S. Army alone is a job that calls for substantial increases in farm production, it was revealed today by Colonel Louis C. Wilson, Fifth Corps Area Quartermaster, Fort Hayes, O. The Fifth Corps Area includes Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky.

Since one of the Quartermaster Corps' job is to feed the Army, Colonel Wilson's message has a backkground of authority.

"The average soldier needs more food while in the Army than he did as a civilian. The Army ration calls for about five pounds of food per man daily in comparison with the three pounds that were sufficient for the same man in civilian life."

Colonel Wilson cites some consumption figures for a single month that should impress upon food producers the very real need for an extra effort on the part of the farmers, truck gardeners and poultryman. Basing amounts on the menus prepared for May in the Fifth Corps Area and assuming two million men in the Army the following enormous quantities of the more prominent items of food in the soldier's diet would be required during the month:

Flour for biscuits, soups, gravies, pastries and the like, 10,000,000 pounds, and enough more for three times that weight of bread; grain for over 2,000,000 pounds of breakfast cereals; Irish potatoes, 45,000,000 pounds; canned dried and fresh Navy, kidney, lima and string beans, 5,800,000 pounds; cabbage, 3,800,000 pounds, and enough more of 1,200,000 pounds of kraut; dry onions, 5,400,000 pounds; green onions 1,440,000 bunches.

The menus also call for 16,800,000 pounds of fresh beef, 5,800,000 pounds of pork loins, bellies, butts, spareribs, etc., 4,900,000 pounds or sausages, 4,000,000 pounds of veal, 3,760,000 pounds of bacon, 1,400,000 pounds of lard, 1,300,000 pounds of lamb, 1,300,000 pounds of frankfurters and 800,000 pounds of dried beef.

Fruit growers, poultrymen and dairy farmers would contribute as follows: Apples, 7,000,000 pounds; peaches, 1,900,000 pounds; pears, 1,200,000 pounds; chicken, 5,600,000 pounds; eggs, 6,240,000 dozens; fresh milk, 3,875,000 gallons; butter, 5,980,000 pounds; cream cheese, 1,540,000 pounds; cottage cheese, 830,000 pounds; evaporated milk, 13,992,000 pounds.

These figures represent only Army consumption. In addition, there are the Navy and other branches of the armed forces to be supplied, besides the requirements of Lend-Lease, Red Cross and relief of domestic distress. The Department of Agriculture has estimated that a 1942 pack of 50,000,000 cases of canned tomatoes and 38,000,00 cases of canned peas will be required to meet the needs of civilian, military and Lend-Lease consumers this year.

Is it any wonder that the farmer is being urged to plant more seeds, reap heavier crops, raise more pigs, cows and chickens, and in general stir the soil into production of such volume as never before has been seen?

PROPER HANDLING OF CREAM ADDS TO FARM PROFITS

As in everything else, there is a right and wrong way to do every farm chore. The above chart shows right and wrong ways of carrying through certain farm practices connected with the handling of cream, as determined over many years of experience. No butter can be better than the quality of the cream from which it is manufactured. The main responsibility for the quality of butter consumed by the American people must ultimately rest on the cream-producing farmer.

After all is said, the big job in producing quality cream on the farm lies in keeping outside bacteria from contaminating the cream while fighting strenuously to keep the bacteria normally in milk at a minimum. Principally it is a task in sanitation: Clean barn, clean udders, clean hands, clean utensils, cooling of the cream immediately after separation, and frequent marketings. It is as simple as that.

To prevent foreign matter such as particles of dust or dirt, hair and similar bacteria-bearing substances from contaminating milk and cream, the person doing the milking should wipe the udder with a damp cloth, wash and dry his hands, and do his milking into a clean, well-tinned milking pail. The milk should be strained through a cotton-disc strainer and separated immediately. The fresh cream should be put into a separate can immediately and cooled to below 60 degrees. This rapid cooling will retard bacterial development which causes cream to spoil. Water cools cream a great deal faster than the coldest air. Plans for the construction of an efficient cream-cooling tank for the average farm, like the one shown in the illustration, together with instructions for its operation, may be had without cost from the state agricultural college or through the local creamery or cream buyer.

24 HOURS A DAY—7 DAYS A WEEK IS OLD STUFF TO US!

We cheered, too, when the Government called on industry to work twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week, until this war is won.

But continuous production is nothing new to the electric industry. We've always worked that way. That's one big reason why we were prepared to power the factories that are filling the sky with planes, the earth with tanks, and the sea with ships.

Production schedules that stagger the world are possible only because America is so powerfull. America has far more electric power than all the Axis countries combined today's power is quickly available at almost any point of need.

These things have been accomplished because America's electric companies have been built and operated the American way — by good business management.

It's going to take more than one nice spring day to make us forget a lot of the ones that should have been nice.

So kissing is apt to shorten your life, well, who would want to grow old and go unkissed anyhow?

According to John Coburn there is nothing more unattractive than the table legs that stick up from the back of a moving van.

We sit and worry about what is going to happen to the coming generation, and no doubt our ancestors did some worrying about us, too.

Spring surely has to work hard to make us forget some of the early mistakes she made.

The fellow best suited to profit by your mistakes, avers William Keeler, is you yourself.

As the horse re-appears, horseback riding becomes aristocratic and it begins to look as though it may be stylish to walk.

They say candy is a substitute for liquor, but we never heard of candy making a man want to sing "Sweet Adeline."

Why is it that vegetables seem to do better in a little garden where there are also a few flowers?

We found a truthful man yesterday. We asked him what he would do if he had a million dollars and he said he supposed he would spend his time wishing it was two million.

Wouldn't it be a terrible world if children were as bad as the neighbors all think children are?

Biting off more than you can chew is almost as big a mistake as going hungry.

The spring raises your blood pressure over the favorite baseball team and fall cools it when the outfit doesn't look so hot.

A GREAT ARMY

In time of stress religion is accorded a prominent part in our every day life. In the light of present day conditions religion is the natural reaction as man turns to a more profound attitude of thought. The man today doesn't want to know what of it but rather wants to know what there is in it FOR HIM. Scientists have suggested that man seek his Maker, chemists have given credit for some of their outstanding discoveries to a 'divine inspiration,' and leaders of educational centers inform us that the student attitude leans more to religion than in many a year. This is all an encouraging note to those who felt that our fate was that of a lost people since man has strayed so far from his religion. But even with our petty hates and fears and faults, we slowly recognize the principle that before peace can cloak a nation its people must learn to have hope and faith and trust in each other.

The churches are not dying out they have increased their membership. With about 64,000,000 members it is indeed an army for good works. United such a force might accomplish almost anything. Of course there isn't a minister here in St. Joe or Spencerville, or any other town in this land, who won't tell you that his church records also show that many of the members are only listed and do not necessarily attend. That is the trouble with us all today perhaps, we enlist and then take a vacation.

STOCK UP ON THIS

This is the first time the government has suggested that we do any 'hoarding.' We feel the advice is sound in this case. It is suggested that we purchase next winter's stock of coal, and do it at least before the summer is over or even better yet to do it right this minute. Let us say that most of us in St. Joe and Spencerville would do as we usually do, by waiting until the first cold spell in the autumn to place our orders. This brings on a severe increase in mine production and calls for a drain on transportation methods. This heavy bombardment of coal orders comes at a time of year when crops are moving at their high point. In the fall and winter war freight is heavier than it would be in the summer. Not only are you protecting your country with this type of hoarding you are taking care of your personal needs.

IN ORDER TO CLIMB

The idea of limiting a man's income to $25,000 a year might appeal to some men who think that lots of folks have too big an income anyway to be much in sympathy with the "little fellow." Lots of people think that an up-stairs maid might be cut out of the servant list to suffer some of the privations with the rest of us, even tho the upstairs maid might not like the idea so well herself. But there are those people who protest that if they cut incomes to $25,000 that they might come into the $5,000 or $2,600 class and then it would pinch too much. Children have felt that if they worked hard and tried to rise that there was a top of the ladder which might lead to a $25,000 job. The idea of higher rungs encourages the fellow who wants to climb. We don't want the rungs taken away from us.

SPARE THE DOCTOR

"Patriotism need not be limited to such things as driving slowly and saving one's toothpaste tubes," says Medical Economics. "A 'Spare the Doctor' campaign might be promoted on similar grounds. Few people appreciate how many physicians are being siphoned off into the armed forces and how great an added burden this imposes on the doctor who remains at home. Few realize, therefore, that continued good medical service depends on helping the doctor to conserve his time....The more time the doctor can save in traveling to see his patients, the more time he will have to treat them."

Thousands of doctors are being called into military service. Thousands more will be called as the Army and Navy grow. So a doctor who stays home will have to take care of a great many more patients than in the past. The doctor will do his best. But there are only so many hours in the day, and each hour wasted means that an hour less can be given to people who really need attention.

Don't ask the doctor to make house calls when you are perfectly able to go to his office. Don't expect him to sit around and talk about extraneous matters. Do't try to turn a professional visit into a social occasion. The American people are used to the best medical service on earth—and they will continue to receive that kind of service if they give due consideration to the fact that the doctor is the busiest of men.

Our neighboring town of Butler will soon give up Dr. Warick to the armed service and Dr. Clayton Hathaway is expecting a call within a few months, and when this time comes, Butler will be without medical service, unless an older physician can be brought in from some other community, and this seems like a difficult change to be made, as other communities will be in the same position as Butler. Home communities will need medical assistace and this fact will have to be recogized.

BATTLE FOR SURVIVAL AT HOME

American retailing, small and large, today faces an extremely difficult battle for survival. The battle is the inevitable result of the general price-freezing order.

"Time" covered the situation accurately when it wrote: "The retailer.....bears the brunt of the whole price-control program. With few exceptions, U. S. retailers were having the horrors.....Worst blow was that OPA had denied their plea for a 'roll-back' of ceiling dates that would recognize the lag between rising wholesale and retail prices... Retailers maintained that their price level was still some 10 per cent behind their suppliers.

"The National Association of Retail Grocers called this squeeze 'disastrous,' predicted wholesale bankruptcies unless OPA could iron out their problems in a hurry. Other retailers put a finger on the saddest inequity of all: the failure to provide a wholesale roll-back is hardest on the patriotic merchant who tried to keep the lid on his prices (by averaging his costs,) while the one who jumped his prices as fast as his costs rose is rewarded."

War Needs Money—YOURS!

This war calls for every ounce of energy, every dime and dollar we can muster for ships—and planes—and guns.

Hit the enemy with a $25 Bond. Hurt him with a $50 Bond. Help to blow him sky-high with a $100 or $1,000 Bond.

It is obvious that this "squeeze" will be hardest on small merchants who lack capital reserves which would permit them to operate at a loss for some time. There are literally tens of thousands of stores in this country which are in imminent danger of ruin.

Retailing, in general, long ago cut its cost of operation to rock-bottom, and it will be unable to further reduce overhead. The typical retailer doesn't go in for expensive "frills" which can be abandoned now. Unless some provision is made for the "roll-back," he will have no way to meet the problem.

This is a desperately urgent situation. The whole future of retail business is involved. Unless the OPA, Congress or some other responsible agency acts swiftly, widespread retail failures and store closures are certain.

LIONS ENJOYED AN INSPIRATIONAL TALK

The St. Joe Lions Club held their regular meeting at the Akins Tea Room, Monday evening, with eighteen members present to partake of one of these fine Akins meals and enjoy a social hour. President Ralph Sechler was absent and vice president F. B. Leighty presided. Lion Claude Laub was called upon to introduce the speaker and he presented his brother-in-law, Ora Blaker, an official of the Wayne Company at Fort Wayne. He is a DeKalb County boy, being a product of Troy Township.

Mr. Blaker departed from the usual subject of "War" and spoke on "Making the Most of What You Have." He ably passed before our view some of the outstanding national and international characters of past and present, people who had just made the most of what they had, doing their job just a little better than it had ever been done before. Success is the result of high ideals, enthusiasm and application. Without giving approval to the Mormon religion, Mr. Blaker paid high tribute to the people of that faith for their persistency in carrying out their beliefs and purposes and finally establishing a wonderful settlement in Utah.

The club members gave enthusiastic approval to Mr. Blaker's talk and he would be a welcome return speaker.

The nominating committee reported the following nominations:

President, F. B. Leighty.
1st. Vice Pres., Clyde Rectenwall.

HOOSIER HOME FRONT

INTERESTING HOME FRONT NEWS IN INDIANA

From now until the war is over, cost of all but a comparatively few articles cannot rise higher than the highest price at which they were sold in March, although it can sink lower. This "price ceiling" applies to the manufacturer, the wholesaler and the retailer but most of us primarily are interested in the retailer—in the corner grocer, the butcher, the druggist, or the nearby dry-goods store.

We have price control to make certain that the war does not bring a tragic rise in the cost of living, a rise to heights which would mean suffering for many.

Price control is our charter of security, but next time you go marketing remember that your co-operation is needed to make it work smoothly. Price control is a brand new baby, and it may be some time before the infant feels at home and you feel at home with the infant. If you are confused about how it works, don't forget that your grocer has his problems too.

First, there are a number of exceptions — seasonal foods such as fresh fruit, vegetables, fish and game do not come under the ceiling because it is virtually impossible to figure out previous maximum prices, in view of their wide variety and the different times they come on the market. Excluded also are a list of foods like butter, cheese, canned milk, flour, mutton, lamb, poultry and eggs, the prices of which cannot under the Price Control Act, be frozen until they reach higher levels. The idea here is to enable the farmer to get prices for his products equivalent to the prices he pays for manufactured goods.

There are some other exceptions which do not touch the family larder, but about which you should know. The prices of newspapers, magazines, books, and admissions to amusement places do not come under the Act. Neither do collectors' items, such as antiques, pictures, stamps, coins and precious stones.

Don't be surprised if you find different prices for identical articles in different stores. Each storekeeper is entitled to set his prices at the highest levels he charged in March and he may quite legitimately ask fifteen cents for a can of corn while his competitor down the block asks thirteen cents. You can still shop around.

And if, for example, your druggist has not posted ceiling prices for all his merchandise, don't get worried. He is supposed to advertise maximum prices for representative "cost of living items," but he cannot possibly cover thousands of articles. They are under the ceiling, however, and he will give you the top price if you ask him.

Retail service charges come under the roof, too, but will not be affected until July 1. Remember, they are controlled only if they are performed in connection with a commodity —automobile and radio repairs, dry cleaning, laundry, shoe mending and such. Personal and professional services, such as hair-dressing or dental work, will not be included even until on July 1.

Don't try to be an amateur price policeman. Be patient and tolerant with your shopkeeper, co-operate with him in making the plan work. Study the provisions of the price order. Only flagrant and unmistakable violations should be reported to local branches of the Office of Price Admininistration.

Wood is following the metals in the march of materials to war. The War Production Board has frozen the bulk of our softwood lumber for the use of the army, navy and merchant marine over the next 60 days. And it wouldn't be surprising if, after that, most of our timber treasure was permanently mobilized in the cause for victory. Wood is badly needed in the shipyards, for construction of army and navy barracks and depots, for ammunition crates, trainer planes, and other military purposes. All the wood required in a medium trainer plane can be supplied by not building two average-size desks—just to give you an idea.

Watch out for a WPB order saving cloth in men's pajamas as has already been done with women's nightgowns and lingerie.....It probably will restrict pajamas to three styles, cut down to the number of fabrics used, eliminate collars, lapels, cuffs and pockets, shorten trousers and coats....The first textile goods bearing the OPA type label are beginning to appear on retail counters in the form of sheets and pillowcases....It shows you just what you're buying....Office of Price Administration points out that the sugar supply will stretch just so far, and that nobody's allotment is going to be bigger than anyone else, no matter how deserving an individual, group or organization may be.....Recently turned down applications for more sugar included one on behalf of the Red Cross, another on behalf of the United Service Organizations.

AN OPEN LETTER

Dear Mr. Hi Larrity:

I enjoyed your verses "Valentine For Makado" in last week's News. In view of the fact that they are written in exactly the same meter, and with the same stanza pattern as my verses "He Who Laughs Last," published recently, I appreciate you calling the style "scatter-barrel meter" instead of "scatter-brain meter." Thanks.

Yours for bigger and better bombs for the Japs,
Gertrude Borthwick.

Your CONGRESS and YOU!

NEWS FROM THE OFFICE OF GEORGE W. GILLIE

Since gasoline rationing has hit the East, certain Eastern editors and commentators have been crusading violently in favor of extending the gas rationing to include the entire country. Whether this is a sadistic proposal based on the fact that "misery loves company" or an eventuality necessary to war effort is presently perplexing Congress which, unfortunately, has delegated its control over such matters to other authorities.

If rationing is extended to the entire country some other reason than shortages of gasoline or lack of transportation will have to justify it since much of the interior of the country, including Northeastern Indiana, is served by pipelines and oil wells are not now producing to capacity. If rubber shortages are bad enough to warrant nation-wide gas rationing, farm state Congressmen are insisting on knowing the truth and on getting immediate action to authorize synthetic rubber plants in the farm belt to make rubber out of farm products which has now been demonstrated as a practical process.

P. S. Your Congressman is not a member of the exclusive X-card fraternity. He has a limited card and is now walking or riding the bus to work.

Beware of "Hot Tires." The Federal Trade Commission is on the trail of a number of "wild cat" concerns which are making and selling remodeled tires that are nothing more or less than worn out casings covered with a minimum of reclaimed rubber and lined with new linings that conceal casing cuts. These tires are absolutely worthless and are a real menace to automobile traffic since they are likely to blow out with the least pressure and send cars careening down the highway or into the ditch completely out of control.

Several of these concerns have already been exposed by the F. T. C. but others spring up about as fast as one group of violators is arrested. The usual practice is for some unknown trucker or automobile drived to approach a prospective buyer and tell him that he has some bargains in "hot tires." When the buyer falls for this smooth talk he has no recourse in law because he has, himself, evaded tire rationing regulations. When such illegal tire vendors are discovered the best policy is to report them at once to local authorities. Better to have no tires at all than tires which will carry one only to the undertaker's parlor or the hospital table!

Four Months or Four Years?

A question which frequently appears in the mail reaching this office is one requesting an answer which nobody kows. It is: "Can you give any suggestion as to when those in authority think the war will end?" Invariably, of course, our answer must be that nobody in authority here will even make a guess; that the war will end when we win it but how long or how soon that will be is still shrouded in the great unknown.

This does not prevent laymen, however, from making guesses, and some bets have been made "that the war will end closer to four months than it will to four years. Backgroud for such betting is the thought that if Russia maintains her present position or advances her troops between now and December next, Hitler's grotesque "new order" will crack up rapidly during and following the coming Winter.

Contrary-wise if Russia should be driven back substantially during this summer permitting Hitler to strick South or West in a possible pincers movement with Japan our victory in the war would be materially delayed. It is generally agreed that by July 4 the pattern of things to come will be pretty clearly written in developments between Murmansk and the Mediterannean.

A dime out of every dollar we earn IS OUR QUOTA for VICTORY with U. S. WAR BONDS

VOL. LVII (57 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JUNE 4, 1942 NUMBER 23

You ask, "What are We Fighting For?"

Memorial Address delivered by Rev. Frank Stevenson Saturday Afternoon at St. Joe

We are fighting to preserve the American Way of Life, and each American has his own notion of what that means. Some say it is economic plenty, and to them we are in this war to keep all we can of what we have, and above all to keep the enemy from getting it to use against us or for that matter against anyone, especially the innocent victims of the small nations. Others say the American way of life consists of the unlimited opportunities for a man or woman to rise from shanty town to main Street, from a grocery clerk tSreet, from a grocery clerk to governor of a state—and they are in this war to be sure that freedom of choice or occupation is not replaced by the slave whip of a foreign madman. And still others are politicians and are fighting to preserve the basic principles of representative and democratic government.

These are the aspects of the American way of life for which we are fighting on this Memorial Day twenty-one days after we thought peace had come forever among the civilized nations of the earth.

Behind all of these American Ideals are the Universal Religious concepts of truth and right given by Jesus the Christ.

We all know the American Way of life is not a static way of life. It isn't the same today as it was last year and we know there will be many more changes as the years go by. But amid all the changes it's still the American Way of life—a way that exalts the worth and freedom and responsibility of the individual and which seeks the harmonious co-operation and unity of all classes, races and nations, rather than the friction of class distinctions or the illusion of super races or the nightmare of predestined nations.

This is the American Way of life where in each has the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. This is what we are fighting to preserve for ourselves and to make available to all people everywhere. It is still far from perfect here and it may not be welcomed everywhere, but that is what we are fighting for. We know there's going to be a new world order no matter who wins—to make it after our pattern we must control the peace—and to control the peace later we must gain control of land, sea and air, NOW! !

We are fighting again today because our enemies are those who still believe that might makes right. We are fighting because our enemies know no other way to gain their goal than by use of treachery and force, and we have learned no other way to defeat their purpose than to use superior force.

On our side of the ledger, we are fighting because we didn't take the "good neighbor" stitch in time so now we must take the costly nine. While it is true that the leadership in Germany and Japan is traditionally militaristic. I do not believe that even in Japan the common people like war any better than do we common people in the United States. But because in our international policies we have been like some senators and representatives in election years who try to feather their own nest by passing laws benefitting their own voters, we have given ambitious leaders abroad too much evidence with which to convince their people they must fight for their very existence.

We are fighting today because like a big bully we have gone about bragging on our record and boasting of our possibilities against any and all comers, but we let our muscles get flabby, our big stick become worm-eaten, and let our minds become over confident, and un-wary until a Japanese handshake left us sprawling on the ground—a little ju-jutsu trick on an international scale.

But we are fighting now, we are no longer staring transfixed as Hitler marches in Goose-step across Europe, nor sitting on the bleachers while China evades the charging Japanese. We are fighting because like a mighty forest fire, this world conflagration can be stopped only by fire. Back-firing a forest means deliberately destroying thousands of good trees, but if it succeeds it is a small price to pay for the timber saved. Fighting to preserve our freedom, our ideals, our culture our civilization is costly in terms of lives and materials—but the cost of not fighting would be a thousand times more. It is no use in speaking of what might have been—that's past. The fire is burning. We must put it out, even if we must use a scorched earth policy to do it.

We are fighting because this is a war for the control of the world and we are one of the highly desired prizes of that control. This is our war. We thought for years it was alright for the Chinese, the Ethiopians, the Poles, the Czechs, the Dutch, Belgians, Norwegians and Finns to fight because their ideals were being smashed and their freedom restricted. We were disappointed when the French gave up so quickly and the British didn't send more help to their allies.

We were proud of the Red Army last winter because they knocked Hitler's shock-proof watch out of order, and we send up a cheer every time the people of the conquered nations throw a monkey wrench into his war machine. What difference does it make to them if they get shot for it at the ratio of 200 to 1. They're better off dead any way.

But why should we get mixed into the fighting mess? If the Germans must fight let them fight. Europe has to have a war every so often anyway. If the Japanese want to fight, let them fight; the Chinese will finally engulf them as they have all previous invaders. A good war won't kill any more Chinese than a big flood any way. What is it to us?

Then what are we fighting for today?

We've had some sense pounded into us. How long it will stick, no one can say—but for now at least we realize that the nations of the world are as independent as the families of a neighborhood. Not all families have the same standard of living, not the same amount of ambition, not identical definitions of what is O. K. and what is tabu. But in every neighborhood there is the unwritten law of public opinion which regulates how close to another man's nose one's freedom may extend—and when because of insanity, anger, or just plain cussedness one family tries to have everything their own way trouble begins. Even persons once far from friendly now join hands. So internationally we find ourselves hand in hand with some strange companions. We don't like Russia's tyrannical communism, and for that matter we weren't feeling too good about the debt defaults by all Europeon creditors but Finland but we readily forget all that for the present and give them still more money and materials because they are fighting for us. What was once true about the struggling colonies we have come to see is true about the allied nations—if we don't hang together we shall hang separately.

Not only have we learned this internationally, but also here at home. There are still some grafters, some profiteers, some shirkers and slowdown strikers, but more and more laborers and big industries, farmers and the consumer public are putting aside their differences to get on the victory band wagon.

What are We fighting For?

We are fighting because this is our war.

We are fighting because might is the only language our enemy understands.

We are fighting for the preservation of the American way of life for ourselves and the re-establishment of freedom for all.

SUGAR CERTIFICATES TO BE ISSUED IN SMALLER TOWNS

Arrangements for the issuing of canning sugar certificates in th smaller towns of DeKalb County were announced Friday by John Zimmerman, of Auburn, chairman of the county rationing board. The certificates will be issued during the first two weeks of June, beginning Monday of this week.

Richard Latier has been appointed deputy of the allotments in Ashley, and the hours for obtaining the canning certificates in that town will be from 3:30 to 8 P. M. Ralph Monroe is the deputy at Corunna, and his hours will be from 7 to 9 P. M. In St. Joe Leslie Wilbern is the deputy and C. C. Rectenwall at Spencerville. The hours of registering have been set from 7 to 9 P. M. on June 5, 8, 10 and 12th. Please bear these dates in mind for Concord and Spencer townships.

The June allotments are for the canning of fruits and berries, Mr. Zimmerman pointed out. One pound of sugar for every four quarts of berries will be allowed for each member of a family. The approximate limit will be about six pounds of sugar, enough for 24 quarts of fruit, for each family member, he said. Another allotment will be made in August.

Applicants must state the number of quarts of fruit to be canned during June and July.

Applicants must also know how many quarts were canned last year and how many quarts they now have on hand.

You must bring your ration books for the entire family. One adult in the family may register for the entire family. The canning of vegetables will not be considered—only fruit.

REVOKES LICENSE OF A ST. JOE MOTORIST

Following a hearing held Wednesday in the automobile license bureau in Auburn, H. L. Morris, assistant hearing judge of the drivers' enforcement division of the state division of public safety, held that the driver's license of Ed Leighty, 73, of St. Joe, should be suspended for a year.

Mr. Leighty, a school house janitor, was operating an automobile Saturday night, May 2, on State Road 1 south of St. Joe when it side swiped a machine driven by Frank Drake, 16, son of Hugh Drake, of northeast of St. Joe. The youth was thrown from the car, dying instantly. His companion, Paul Kitchen, 16, of east of St. Joe, also was hurt, but not seriously.

Witnesses at the hearing Wednesday besides Mr. Leighty were Sheriff Artus Coyle, State Policeman W. E. Hunter and young Kitchen. The testimony indicated that Leighty's car was on the wrong side of the highway. Leighty claimed the lights of Drake's car confused him. Mr. Morris gave Leighty an eye test and found that he has defective vision.

Leighty has the right to appeal to the circuit court within 30 days. Upon losing his driver's license, he cannot obtain another a year hence excepting by passing a physical examination and a road test.

TWENTY-THREE AND A HALF HOURS LEAVE

Story by Mary Roberts Rinehart.

Cast: James Ellison, Terry Walker, Morgan Hill, Arthur Lake, Paul Harvey, Wally Maher, Andy Andrews, Murray Alper, Pat Gleason, John Kelly, Russel Hicks, Ward Bond.

Rollicking, madcap youth of 1917 heedless of the shadow of the great war in the gusty bursts of their robust mirth, come to life again from the past in the sparkling comedy, "23½ Hours Leave," with James Ellison, a harum scarum young training camp volunteer and Terry Walker, the general's captivating blond daughter in the romantic leads. The picture, based on Mary Roberts Rinehart's classic of the base camps, where young Americans were trained over seas, tells how young Sergeant Ellison and his preposterous comrades spend their last day's leave before embarking in settling a wager, only to see their winnings eaten by General Markley's amazing horse, Caligula.

Terry Walker, in her first starring role is lovely as the feminine lead, who resolves the wager problem to the delight of Ellison and the chagrin of his bunkies. Daughter of the peppery general, played by that capable comedian, Paul Harvey, she deftly and convincingly supplies the romantic interest in the gay plot.

Fast action and high comedy reach their apex in the excitement of a barrack-room vegetable fight, when a vagrant tomato, propelled by Ellison, decorates the general's stern physiognomy. Ellison doesn't recover from the cloud on his military character until he manages to capture two enemy espionage agents, single-handed.

His genuine lighthearted portrayal of the sergeant's role carries out the spirit of the Rinehart story perfectly and never permits action and comedy to interfere with each other's effectiveness.

Seventeen years ago Douglas MacLean was skyrocketed to film fame in the role of the swanky "Sergeant Gray" in Mary Roberts Rinehart's wartime comedy Twenty-Three and a Half Hours Leave. Now the comedy has come to the screen in talking version, produced by the same MacLean who scored such a sensational success in the silent version, and James Ellison who plays the role created by MacLean in the original film duplicates the success of the creator.

The story has for its setting a U. S. Army Camp in 1917 just before the men go overseas, and deals with a sporty young sergeant who bets his mates that he will have breakfast with the General, whom he has never seen, and moreover, will have pancakes with his superior officer, His experiences before he wins his wager make one of the greatest laugh-producing films of a decade.

Why is it that some people can't realize that whatever they do to help beautifying the town helps to build them up as its residents?

One thing different today, when you see a War Bond ad on one side of the page, you don't see ads for new automobiles on the reverse side.

A fellow says he isn't worthy of the girl and she agrees with him but refrains from saying so until after they are married.

The old joke about the only sure way to get money out of chickens was to get your income from some other source, doesn't hold true today for Tri-Township farmers.

The Saturday Evening Post came out last Saturday with a new mast head, and our first impression was that the management made a great mistake, and as one of our customers said "it looks like the Ladies Home Journal." There is a tradition that was overlooked by someone, for the heading on the Post was recognized by every reader, no matter where it was displayed. Perhaps the publishers may decide to return to the old Benjamin Franklin heading and we would consider it a wise move should they so decide and so would the readers.

HOBBLING THE GIANT

Writing in Nation's Business, Fred DeArmond makes a very complete survey of the rubber situation. In it, he says this: "Fearful that the synthetic program does not take adequate account of civilian needs, the Petroleum Industry War Council has offered a resolution asking for an additional 300,000 tons of synthetic rubber a year, to be earmarked for that use. According to one authority, it takes about a ton of steel to produce annually a ton of synthetic rubber. If that is true, one day's output of the steel industry—300,000 tons—would meet the possible extra need as now visualized. Regarded in that light, it isn't a lot of steel.

"The American share of the St. Lawrence waterway project alone will call for more than 125,000 tons of steel. Which do we need more—enough tires to keep our cars in service, or more dams?

It is estimated that, if no new tires are made available to the public, there will be only 3,900,000 non-priority cars on the road in 1945 as against 27,000,000 at the present time. The effect of that on a country which has been literally built on motor-car transportation is almost impossible to visualize. Even now, the drain on public transportation systems is becoming dangerously heavy in many areas. Take this country off rubber-tired wheels—and incredible confusion will result.

Extraordinary progress has been made in developing practical synthetic rubber from oil and coal. Still greater progress is forecast for the near future. Certainly a way can be found to provide the necessary steel for building the synthetic rubber plants—and one of the best ways would be to stop building public power dams which are not needed, and which cannot be completed for many years. It is right and proper to conserve rubber to the limit. It is also right and proper to make every possible effort to provide an adequate synthetic rubber supply, as soon as possible, in the interest of national defense—for if the automobile wheels of this country are actually brought to a standstill, it will be like a giant bound hand and foot.

FREIGHT BY AIR

Amazing stories are being told in Washington about the transport of war supplies and materials by air. A speaker at the National Press Club returning from a trip most of the way around the world related that he traveled on air transports that carried thousands of pounds of all kinds of freight, including food. He expressed the opinion that planes would soon be in general use for tremendous volumes of freight that in the past has been loaded in ships. Is it possible that in time a popular figure of speech will be enlarged so people will say: "In horse and buggy days and steamship days."

POLICE HUNTER TALKS AT FARM BUREAU

The Tri-Township Farm Bureau held their June meeting in the St. Joe high school, June 2, at 8:30 P. M. Meeting was called to order by Chairman, Brooks Trenary. We were then led in song by Mrs. Ira Hook and all sang "America." The Lord's Prayer was then repeated in unison.

Mr. W. E. Hunter, state police officer of Ligonier, was the speaker for the evening, his topic being "Safety." One of the interesting facts revealed was there were over 4,000 accidents in 1941 which is the highest peak in accident fatalities.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Mr. Trenary then read a letter from our County S. & E. leader. Mrs. B. Trenary, local S. & E. leader then presented the evening's program. The Trenary Girls sang "That Silver Haired Daddy of Mine," and this was dedicated to all Fathers. Jimmy Warstler then played several selections on his electric guitar. The Trenary Girls then sang "Life is Like a Mountain Railroad," followed with another selection by Jimmy Warstler. Mrs. Trenary then read an article entitled "A Man Leads A Dog's Life."

Following this program was the roll call response being favorite flower. A fine lunch of fruit salad and sandwiches was served. Reporter.

NEWS FROM COUNTY AGENT

PLAN FARM WORK

Farmers are being urged to plan their work for several weeks in advance, says County Agricultural Agent C. E. Baker. If rains or breakdowns should interfere with these plans farmers need to have in mind what jobs can and should be done in the meantime.

Plans need to be made to keep experienced, regular workers busy at jobs requiring experience and training. The simpler jobs requiring no particular skill or training can be left for children and less experienced help.

Also it is usually easier to obtain extra help when tentative arrangements can be made a week or so in advance.

A list of jobs which need to be done but which can be put off until rainy days or odd hours can be kept and referred to on such occasions. For example, notes need to be made of any machinery parts which are about worn out and which need replacing. Costly delays may be prevented frequently by replacing nearly worn-out parts on rainy days and at odd times in advance of actual breakdown.

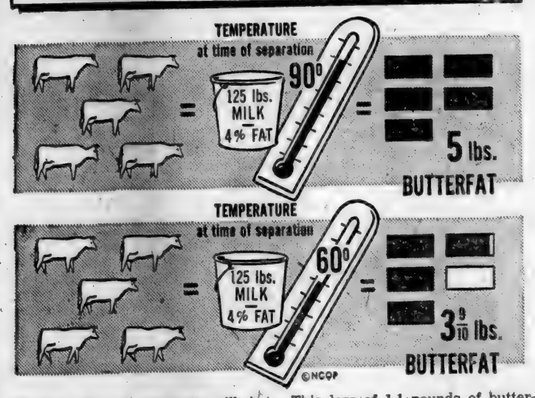
DELAYED MILK SEPARATION EXPLAINS BUTTERFAT LOSSES.



The best time to separate milk is immediately after milking. If it's done any other time, the farmer takes it "on the chin" in the loss of butterfat which may range from a modest amount to a quantity equal to the production of one cow in a five-cow herd—depending on the temperature of the milk at the time of separation.

Milk comes from the cow's udder at practically body temperature—about 98 degrees. That's when the fat globules in the cream can be most easily separated from the milk. Separated while the milk is at a temperature of 90 degrees, 125 pounds of milk containing 4 per cent butterfat will yield five pounds of butterfat. But the same amount of milk, separated when 60 degrees cool, will yield only 3.9 pounds of butterfat. The 1.1 pounds difference has floated off into the skimmilk—a deluxe dinner for the calves, chickens and hogs, but pretty expensive for the farmer.

This loss of 1.1 pounds of butterfat, as compared with practically no loss when the cream is separated warm, is like cutting a five-cow herd down to four cows. When the cost of feeding that extra cow is added to the price the lost butterfat would have brought, it is evident that a tidy sum is passed up during the course of a year. The only way to save this money is to separate milk at once. Letting it stand while some other chore is attended to is costly business.

There is another threat to the size of the cream check by letting milk get cold before separating. Bacteria begin their growth in the warm milk. If allowed to stand and cool slowly in the air, bacteria will begin their quick multiplication and hasten spoilage. Milk should be strained and separated as soon as milking is done, and the cream placed in a smaller cooling can in the cold-water cooler right away. It should never be mixed with the cool cream in the holding can.

There's five times more POWER in back of every Yank!

THEY said America was "soft"—that our easy living would make us easy licking.

But cocky American fighting men proved them painfully wrong at Wake, Midway, Bataan. And the same factories that produced our peacetime comforts are geared today into the greatest war industry the world has ever seen!

Production is military power. And electric power is production. America can produce the planes, tanks, ships and guns to win this war because America has five times the electric power it had in the last war—more electric power than all the Axis and conquered countries combined.

For that you can thank the quiet, competent men who manage America's electric companies. They were ready when war came—and their practical, proved experience will help keep America's war machine humming on the high road to Victory!

HOOSIER HOME FRONT

INTERESTING HOME FRONT NEWS IN INDIANA

We're really getting tough, these days. We have learned to take it, and because we have learned to take it, we are able to dish it out, to dish out the tanks and planes and ships and weapons which will lick our enemies.

Right now home fronters are taking in their stride developments which might have thrown many of us off balance a few months ago. In our progress toward the efficient practice of total war we have been like the army recruit whose training takes off fat, puts on muscle and sinew. The barrack bag which dragged along the ground at first now is hoisted shoulder high in one quick, easy movement. That bag is heavier, if anything, than before. But he is stronger. He's a soldier now. The past seven days brought new proof that we are growing lean and hard, that we are putting everything we have into our punches. For instance, the great program for complete mobilization of our manpower.

We are fighting a three-sided war—war on the field of arms, war under the factory roofs, war on the rolling farms. To win this war we are raising a fighting force or at least 8,000,000 soldiers and sailors together with a labor force of 20,000,000 and an agricultural force of 12,000,000 men and women. If any one of these armies fails, all will fail.

The War Manpower Commission has been casting around for a source of these armies. It estimates that 7,000,000 to 8,000,000 will come from suspended civilian industries, 400,000 to 600,000 from the farms, 400,000 from the professions, 1,500,000 from the temporarily unemployed and 2,000,000 from the home. The peacetime mechanic, the mechanically-inclined farm hand, the retired workers, the woman without children, boys under the draft age and girls in their late teens are sought for enlistment in the army of the home front.

If you fall into any of these categories and want to do your part, get in touch with the nearest office of the U. S. Employment Service and see if they have a war job for which you are fitted. If you have the aptitude but lack the necessary training, there are 2,400 vocational schools and 10,000 public school shops throughout the U. S. which offer technical courses. Or you may be able to get a job in one of the 3,195 factories providing "in-plant" training for their employees—teaching them while they work.

The first rule of total war is not to waste manpower. Everyone must be fitted into the task for which he is best suited—there must be no square pegs in round holes.

Here's an indication of the speed with which the home front is mobilizing—The U. S. Employment Service Placed 605,200 persons in jobs in factories, shipyards, offices and on farms in April, 19 per cent more than in March. At the same time, job-seekers on the records of the Bureau dropped to 4,400,000 or four per cent below March.

Rice was brought under the price ceiling last week after repeated price rises. Rice in the hands of the millers was frozen at the level of the last days of December, 1941 or the first two weeks of March, 1942. Rice is the staff of life to millions in our southeastern states and in our territorial possessions. Cuba has been leaning heavily on us for rice since the war cut off her far Eastern supply.

Now that school has closed for the summer, boys and girls, may join in the great, nation-wide program of salvage. Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and other juvenile groups are invaluable in systematic campaigns to collect rubber, steel and copper—all materials needed so badly.

More evidence of our ability to take it and dish it out—Price Administrator Leon Henderson has warned members of the meat industry not to try to get out from under the price ceiling. "Ignorance, professed or actual," Henderson said, "will not be accepted....as an excuse...."....OPA decreed that the 1942 fall lines in women's, girls' and children's outer clothing shall be priced at the same level as in 1941....And that goods sold at auction shall not go above price ceiling....Among nine WPB Industry Advisory Committees recently appointed, one will advise on snuff....Goose and duck feathers over a certain length have been released for civilian use in pillows and upholstery....The price ceiling over ice has been lifted a trifle to permit dealers to sell ice in the summer months at the same prices they got in the summer of 1941 instead of at the March, 1942 levels....WPB has liberalized the rules under which distributors may sell molasses to farmers for use in preparations to kill insects ....A supply of molasses was necessary to combat a threatened spread of boll weevil in the south....Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security Administrator, reports that 2,500 of the 3,070 counties in the country have organized nutrition committees in the past year, and that 6,000,000 children in 93,000 schools are receiving free lunches as a result of the federal nutrition program.

MORTUARY

DRAKE

Geneva Lochner Drake, daughter of Jacob and Annettie Lochner, was born May 10, 1902, in Allen County, Indiana, and departed this life at her home northeast of Saint Joe, Indiana, May 30, 1942, at the age of 40 years and 20 days.

She was converted to the Christian Faith when a young woman and joined the Cedar Chapel Methodist Church. On January 24, 1920, she was united in marriage to Mr. Hugh Drake. To this union were born four children, Bernice, Betty, Frank and Leona.

She has been ill for several years but has always remained cheerful and hopeful. She was a faithful wife and a loving mother, taking seriously and sacrificially the responsibilities of motherhood.

She leaves in this world her husband and three daughters, her mother and stepfather, Mr. George Lochner, of Churubusco, her sister, Edith Akey, of Spencerville and her brother, Ralph, of Churubusco, besides other near relatives and friends.

Knowing that she could never be well, the family is happy that she is now free from her suffering. And they wish to thank all the neighbors and friends for immeasurable kindness and sympathy shown in various ways during her last illness and in these days of mourning.

The funeral was conducted from the Lutheran Church on Tuesday afternoon, with Rev. Frank Stevenson officiating, and burial was made in Riverside Cemetery by Richard Rupp.

Your CONGRESS and YOU!
NEWS FROM THE OFFICE OF GEORGE W. GILLIE

Seldom does an important piece of legislation pass both the Senate and the House without a dissenting vote. But so serious has the plight of small business become through out this country and so desperate is the need for some immediate correctives that S. 2250, the Small Business Bill, passed both Houses of Congress by roll call votes without a single member voting in the negative.

This legislation establishes a "Smaller War Plants Corporation" within the War Production Board which is empowered to spend $20,000,000 to help small business convert over into war production. The money can be used for many purposes including the purchase of equipment, tools, machinery, material etc., to be sold, leased or loaned to small businesses in "tooling up" to make actual war supplies.

It is intended to do for small businesses in a small way what the Government has already done for big businesses in a large way—namely, provide Government assistance in developing plant facilities to make it what it takes to defeat the Axis.

BUY COAL NOW! Householders in the Fourth District are urged to purchase their Winter needs of coal or fuel oil at the first opportunity. Prospects are that transportation difficulties plus increased war demands for coal and fuel oil will become greater by Fall and that no positive guarantees can be made that tardy providers will always find an available supply of necessary fuel to withstand Old Man Winter.

Now, too, is the right time for farmers to provide all the grain and corn storage facilities which they expect to need for this year's harvest. Already grain storage shortages are developing and available material supplies are growing small or becoming exhausted. However, many lumber yards and other suppliers still have lumber available for such purposes and all stores of nails have not been exhausted.

LOW INTEREST CONTINUED. The House this week passed legislation, prepared by the Committee on Agriculture, extending for two more years the 3½% interest rates on Federal Land Bank and Commissioner loans.

LIONS CONVENTION TO BE HELD AT ANDERSON

Dale Wicoff, secretary and treasurer of the local Lions Club will attend the state Lions Convention at Anderson June 7-8-9. The Anderson Club has planned the most elaborate program of fun, entertainment and able speakers that has been staged by any convention city in recent years. The program includes addresses by such prominent figures as Col. Alvin M. Owsley, former Minister to Denmark, Roumania, and The Irish Free State and past National Commander of the American Legion Oswald Ryan, a native of Anderson and who served in the Hoover Administration as a member of the Federal Power Commission and is now a member of the Civil Aeronautics Authority will address the convention. Two other notable speakers on the program will be Prof. Robert Phillips of Purdue University, a past director of Lions International and Edward H. Paine, of Michigan City, who will be elevated to the International Presidency at the annual convention in Toronto, Ontario, in July.

LOCAL NEWS OF INTEREST

There were many Memorial Day visitors at the cemetery and among them not mentioned elsewhere in this issue were: Mr. and Mrs. John Draggoo, Mrs. Virginia Leighty and daughter, Joan, Mrs. Ida Herrick and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Herrick, of Fort Wayne; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Koch, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Woodcox and family, Mr. Alvy Perry and Mrs. Ruts Busz, of Garrett; Mrs. Kent Provines and son and Orange Draggoo, of Auburn. This is by no means all the guests and we wish to be forgiven if we have overlooked any from a distance.

Everett Smith, wife and daughter, of Elkhart, were Memorial Day guests in the Hugh Neiland home.

A card from Marjorie Ramsey states that she is in Poplarville, Miss. The weather is extremely warm there.

James R. Maxwell, son of Roy Maxwell, and Roger A. Shull, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elza Shull, of Jackson Township, will be called upon to report for Army service soon. There will be 27 boys in the next group.

Everyone remarked Saturday how nice and clean the cemetery looked, flowers were in profusion on the graves and it made a very beautiful sight. People from away came on Friday and Saturday to decorate.

By a special request the Ft. Wayne Scottish Rite Male Chorus will appear at the annual strawberry festival of the Wittenberg Brotherhood at Newville U. B. Church next Wednesday evening. The serving of the strawberry feast will begin at 7 o'clock in order that all can be served before the evening program in the church sancutary begins.

If you have a few minutes to spare drop in at the Kees Flower Gardens. You will enjoy the iris and peonies, and see where the Kees' spend the most of their time. Their sales over Memorial Day were pleasing and the red varieties were completely sold out for cuttings. Some of the callers were from a distance and we are glad to say that this garden spot has become quite famous. This is only a hobby as Harry and Nina say.

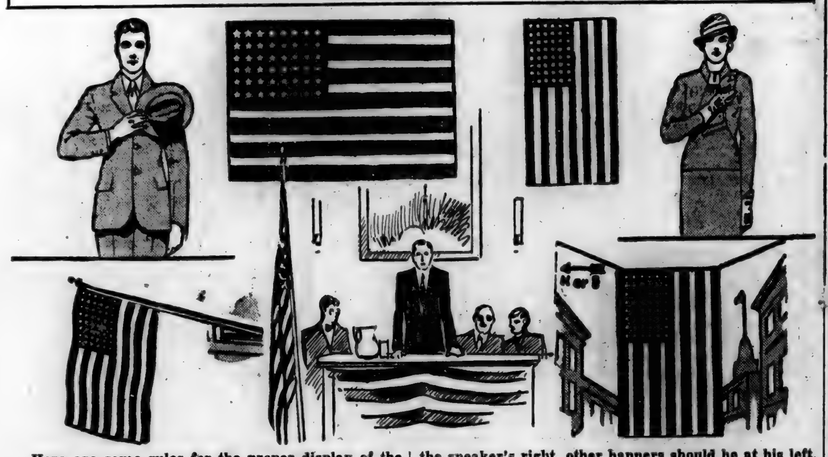
Old Glory: 165th Anniversary



Here are some rules for the proper display of the American flag as suggested by William T. Kerr, founder and national president of the American Flag Day association:

¶ When a large flag is borne horizontally by a number of people, the blue field is forward and to the right.

¶ Do not use the flag as drapery. Use bunting.

¶ Give the banner briskly to the breeze in raising it. But lower it slowly and ceremoniously.

¶ When the flag is used on a motor car, the flag should fly from a staff.

¶ Never permit a fold of the flag to touch the ground—the skies are its place!

DAY-OLD PHEASANTS DISTRIBUTED SATURDAY

Sixteen hundred and twenty tiny one-day-old pheasants arrived in Auburn Friday morning from the state game farm at Bluffton. The truck was met by representatives of various Conservation Clubs in the county which will raise the birds to the age of eight weeks and then liberate them over the county. The fluffy ring-necks, yellow with chocolate brown stripes running down their backs, arrived in perforated cardboard boxes.

The chicks were distributed as follows:

One hundred and eighty to the Auburn Conservation Club, 360 to the Butler Club, and 180 each to the St. Joe, Spencerville, Waterloo, Garrett and Fish Creek Clubs.

Mr. and Ms. George Tustison are taking care of the chicks for the St. Joe Club.

LIGHTNING KILLS AUBURN EMPLOYE

A bolt of lightning during an electrical storm Saturday afternoon caused the death of Lowel Hopkins, 25, of Waterloo, an employe of the Auburn Hardware Co. The tragedy occurred at 3:30 o'clock on a farm two and a half miles north of Helmer in Steuben County.

Mr. Hopkins and a brother, Willard Hopkins, of Auburn, were headed for a cabbage patch on the farm to get some plants when the lightning struck. They were not near any trees. Lowell was killed instantly, and his brother, a few feet away, was knocked to the ground. The latter was paralyzed for about an hour and unable to walk. His right leg and left hand were blistered, and he suffered from nervous shock. The electrical storm preceded a heavy rain.

ROADSIDE PARKS ARE USED EXTENSIVELY

While traffic volume on the state highway system has been reduced by tire conservation regulations and by gasoline rationing in eastern states, the roadside parks maintained by the State Highway Commission are being used extensively by Hoosier motorists as well as by tourists.

State highway maintenance workers and officials who have been preparing the roadside parks for use this year, report that many out-of-state licenses are observed on cars stopping at the parks. They also report a growing number of cars in the parks from neighboring cities and towns, indicating that Hoosiers are taking advantage of the accessibility and the facilities of the roadside parks.

SPENCERVILLE MAN INJURED IN INDIANAPOLIS

Corma H. Kelley, 51, and brother of Mrs. Ray Zimmerman, of Spencerville, is in the Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis, suffering from shock and what hospital attendants describe as "akin to heat stroke" when two heavy explosions rocked the plant of the National Starch Products Co., and injured seven persons on Friday night. The exact condition of Mr. Kelley is not known by his sister at time of going to press.

Besides the lives injured the plant was damaged to the extent of $200,000.

Workmen at the starch plant said the two explosions were believed to have been caused by dust combustion. The second explosion followed the first so quickly that a few plant workers who reached the doors between the blasts literally were hurled outside by the force of the second, witnesses said. Several other persons in the vicinity reported they were knocked down by the percussion.

The blaze was confined largely to the three story building where corn and other products are pulverized preparatory to making dextrin, used as a base for paints. The company holds war contracts.

The first explosion blew one wall of a building down and a wall in a nearby building collapsed shortly afterward. Huge stocks of grain were lost.

CLARENCE PAYTON WRITES FROM CAMP

Through the courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Weikel, we print extracts from several letters received by them from Clarence Payton who worked for them for some time on their farm, and who entered the Navy service at Great Lakes Training Station, Chicago, and is a member of Co. 24.

The letter follows:

Dear Friends:

"Received your card and sure was glad to hear from you, sorry I couldn't write sooner, but I really haven't had a chance. Writing to let you know I am O. K. I am having a swell time, plenty to eat and lots of sleep. There are so many boys here they stack them three high at night. We slept in hammocks for two nights. I fell out once the last night I was there. Now we sleep in beds. The boys here roller skate and ride bicycles when they are off duty right here in the barracks. When the officers come down the halls they are so crowded they can hardy get through.

"There are about 10,000 boys on this pier which is a mile long and about a block and a half wide. There is an aircraft school here also a diesel engine school.

"I haven't been on K. P. duty yet, but am getting ready to go on two hours of guard duty. I have signed up for six years in the Navy and if I like it will sign up for six years more. Our uniforms are much different than in the Army.

"While in Chicago I found my sister who is married and has a little girl and her husband has a good job, and has a nice home. We are leaving here soon but dont' know where we are going. We have been out drilling every day mostly with rifles.

"Shortly after your card came we left Navy Pier and moved to Seattle, Wash. Had a very nice trip. The mountains of Montana are beautiful. From Seattle I went to Bremerton, Washington, about 30 miles from Seattle. Was there two days and now am at sea. That's all I can tell you now but will write you later. The sea is really rough and nearly all the fellows are sea sick. I can't give you the name of the ship but it's a nice one. The Captain just gave orders that we are to have "black out" every night from now on. You never saw any weather, the wind is so strong it almost carries me over board. Waves come clear over the ship lots of times, but we enjoy it all. This will be continued later.

"Well, folks we are in Kodiak, Alaska, a long way from home, but I like it here. All sorts of amusement such as a bowling alley, library, gym, skating rink, canteen, etc. We surely had a nice trip, even though I did get sick a part of the way. I can't tell you much about Alaska, except that it is a very beautiful country, and wish you all could see it.

"Well I haven't much more time, so I'll close. Tell all hello for me. I'll be looking forward to your letters any time."

Goodbye for now,
Clarence.

Nation Honors Flag, Symbol of Our Freedom

Old Glory Is Visible Sign of America's Past and Present History.

On June 14, the flag of the United States will be 165 years old. Since that memorable day in 1777, when the Continental Congress passed the resolution which gave birth to the flag, it has stood as the symbol for all Americans' rights to liberty, justice and freedom.

The last changes in the flag were made in 1912, when Arizona and New Mexico were admitted to the Union. One star was added for each state, making a total of 48 on the blue field of Old Glory.

Now, in 1942, the people of this nation are more conscious of what their flag stands for than ever before. Today, while American soldiers—sons, sweethearts and husbands—are fighting the battle for freedom in all corners of the globe, their loved ones join with them in that spirit of determination best manifested on Flag day.

It was another war-time President, Woodrow Wilson, who—bowed down with the weight of World War I—wrote, "The things that the flag stands for were created by the experiences of a great people. Everything that it stands for was written by their lives. The flag is the embodiment, not of sentiment, but of history. It represents the experiences made by men and women, the experiences of those who do and live under that flag."

In times of peace—and America has been more fortunate than other nations in this respect—Old Glory's day was taken as a matter of fact. Sometimes the matter-of-factness was viciously near indifference.

But look you today at even those who consider themselves hardened and unemotional. No longer is their flag just a representation—nothing else—of something intangible, yet vital. Now it is to them the unfurled spirit of democracy whipping in the good air of freedom.

To those millions of others who have always responded emotionally and vocally, the flag has for them—whether they are battling the foe, plowing the land, knitting sweaters, or producing tanks and bombers by the thousands—the same powerful impact and appeal that Julia Ward Howe put in the line, "As He died to make men holy, let us die to make men free."

Your flag is the symbol of all that is good and American. Give it an American reception, display and honor on June 14.

TRUSTEES TO REGISTER FARM HELP

The farm labor situation is becoming increasingly acute according to C. E. Baker, County Agricultural Agent. More help will be needed in the coming weeks to harvest the hay and small grain crops.

To help relieve this labor problem the following plan has been decided upon by the DeKalb County U. S. D. War Board. This plan, stated by Arthur Latsenhiser, chiarman of the War Board is as follows: All people who can spare a few hours to a few days during the harvest season are to register with their Township Trustee. Then farmers needing help will contact their local trustee who will refer them to available workmen.

The War Board urges that all people able to help with the harvesting of hay, small grain and fruit register at once with their Trustee so that the Trustee may in turn refer farmers to them as the need arises.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish in this manner to express our appreciation for the kindness and sympathy extended to us in our recent bereavement occasioned by the death of our wife and mother.

THE HOUSE OF SECRETS

Cast: Leslie Fenton, Noel Madison, Leslie Herbert, Muriel Evans, Sidney Blackmer, Morgan Wallace and others.

The House of Secrets is true to its name, a mystery story. From the cellar to the attic it is crammed full of excitement, terror and suspense. It is an excellent screen treatment of an exceedingly successful play by Sydney Horler. The story tells of Barry Wilding, American globe-trotter, who while crossing the English channel on his way to London, meets young Julie Kenmore, who refuses either to tell him her name or her address.

In London Barry learns that he is the heir to his dead uncle's large estate, "The Hawk's Nest," and also a goodly sum of his deceased relative's money. In order to take possession of the Hawk's Nest, Barry signs a pledge promising that he will never sell the property. However, when he goes to take possession of the estate, he is chased off the place and his life is threatened; Barry heads straight for his lawyer who insists that Barry must be mistaken for the property is vacant and has been vacant for years. Barry returns to Hawk's Nest but his arrival is greeted with more shots and more threats. From all this confusion comes the face of Julie Kenmore, who runs from Hawk's Nest to Barry's side and pleads with him to leave immediately and stay away.

Barry tries to force some explanation from her after he has told her he is the rightful owner of the Hawk's Nest. Julie refuses to explain and Barry is in deeper confusion than ever. And, from that point on, the story races along and is guaranteed to keep you on the edge of your seats. You'll be particularly astonished at the conclusion.

BUSY BEE 4-H CLUB NOTES

The Busy Bee 4-H Club, of Spencer Township, met June 4th at the school house with 17 present. The meeting was called to order by singing "I Want To Be Friendly," and followed by repeating the 4-H pledge. We then responded to the roll call with our favorite song which was followed by the secretary's report. Miss Schwartz gave us our schedule for 4-H Club Camp. Barbara Laux and Beverly Shumaker were on the program. The meeting was then adjourned to the work period.

Refreshments were served by Patsy Angel and Joy Beerbower.

COFFEE MAKING

A Latin American advises American housewives on how to get the most out of her coffee. He feels that hoarding coffee helps to lose the best flavor and suggests that we buy coffee by the pound as needed. Suit the grind that is right for the pot. Keep it in a tightly covered canister so the air doesn't get to it. Measure coffee and water carefully and not by guess. Draw fresh, cold water and bring it to a boil, and make only as much coffee as you care to serve at a time. Use left over coffee for desserts or puddings. Keep your coffee maker and drip bags absolutely clean.

SWEET MEMORY

For those of you who travel and stop in small town hotels, if you are of the old school who recall what this American institution used to be, you have noticed that we have progressed a long ways from the gay nineties period and are taking longer strides in moving away from the plush and velour stage to the motor inn and over night cabin era. It used to be in the oft recalled good old days, that the small town hotel was the general meeting place, its lobby the center of an informal evening's discussion of national and local affairs. The radio was not known so the opinions of the drummers who were passing through were valued as important data and helped to shape the small town public opinion no end. There was the host for the occasion, the owner of the inn or desk clerk as he might be termed, presiding over the open meeting and directing the course of the program which covered everything that could be touched upon within the alloted time. Perhaps the crowd gathered around the large stove that centered the lobby and struck a warming note in these impromptu discussions. The lobby was as important as today's printing press since its news was relayed from mouth to mouth by salesmen who had been around. The comment with various opinions exchanged was as good as your editorial section. It seems a bit sad to realize this simple scene is relegated with the cigar store Indian to those days gone by when man was liking the pleasant simpleness of this country manor life.

SOLTICE

There are a few of our older readers who pay much attention to the approach of June 21, and even then don't think a great deal of the date's meaning, which comes under the heading of summer soltice. Soltice means "sun's stance" and it is at this time when the sun appears to stand still in the heavens just before it starts on its downward journey. Astronomy says that the soltice is the furthest the sun swings away from the equator. In early European history it was the occasion for large bonfires to be lighted in order to aid the halting steps of the sun and aid it in its travel downwards. After the soltice the days of summer are marked as shorter. Even the foliage begins to lose the ripe green and starts in so slowly to accept the early autumn colorings. This may sound too early to most of us but if we will pay special heed to the sounds of bird songs that become more hushed, we will realize that the early man who built his fire to revive a dying sun wasn't wrong.

BUNKER HILL DAY

June 17 marks the anniversary of Bunker Hill Day and recalls to the mind the time when the British and Americans were not fighting on the same side in the battle for freedom. This day in 1775, in Charlestown, Miss., which is now a part of Boston, the first severe engagement in the Revolutionary War was fought. The British forces numbered 4,000 and the Americans added to 1,800. During the battle there were 450 Americans killed, wounded and prisoners while British losses were 1,100. It was a noted date in history books for many a year and still stands as a score in our favor in our initial effort in this country's fight to become an independent power. We are today engaged in war to remain an independent force, to protect those aims and ambitions which the successful outcome of the Revolutionary War gave us. But today we are fighting on the same side, two country's with but a single aim. One never knows, does one?

SPORTS AFIELD

In spite of shortened or eliminated vacation plans of men around St. Joe, there will still be those addicts of the sport of fishing who will find time to indulge in their pleasure during the summer. Maybe they won't go as far away as other years to unspoiled and wild sorts of spots, will be content to do away with expensive guides and hired boats and willingly take to close stream and smaller fry, attaining the usual sunburn with the same brand of mosquito, attendant good food and tired body to complete the picture. But even though the woods and hills are nearer home this summer, there is still the enjoyment of waters, sun and stars, the beauty and healthfulness of nature. Perhaps you may be a golf addict and like to hunt balls under a blazing sun while you growl about your game and argue about the number of strokes of your companions. You can take the opportunity in this game to look more at the scenery and sniff extra doses of wholesome air. All of this pleasure is possible—war or no war.

Ten girls and four boys active in 4-H work in DeKalb County left Monday for the 24th annual state 4-H Roundup at Purdue University, remaining until Wednesday evening. The girls include Billie Jean Walters, of Jackson Township, Mrs. Lola Carper, adult leader; Evelyn Shook, of Spencerville, Miss Eva Mae Schwartz, adult leader; Patricia Carpenter, of Concord Township, Mrs. Doris Yeiser, adult leader.

Indiana farm people are opposed to gasoline rationing to save tires, when government officials give so little consideration to the development of synthetic rubber from farm crops, states Hassil E. Schenck, president of the Indiana Farm Bureau. In the first place farm people are not wasting their tires, and second, without gasoline, food production for war purposes is bound to come up short. It is rather difficult to make brick without straw, says the farm leader.

Mr. and Mrs. Erby Messimer and family, Mr. and Mrs. Meade Baker and M. H. Andress attended Children's Day exercises at the Harlan Church of Christ, Sunday evening. An interesting program in which 30 children participated was greatly enjoyed. Previous to the entertainment, impressive baptismal services were held. Minister Messimer immersed the three young daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Duff, of Springfield Township.

Harry G. Kreider, secretary of the Auburn Y. M. C. A. for nearly fourteen years, tendered his resignation to the directors of the association at a meeting at the "Y" building Friday noon. Mr. Kreider has accepted a call to become general secretary of the Benton Harbor-St. Joseph, Mich., association and will leave Auburn on August 1. This is considered a real promotion for Mr. Kreider. He will have a staff of four assistants and an equipment valued at $350,000 to work with.

HOOSIER SOLONS' CHESTS EXPANDED; REP. GILLIE TELLS WHY

The fact that Indiana led the Nation by oversubscribing its May quota of war bond sales prompted Rep. George W. Gillie to engage in some justifiable gloating in the House of Reprsentatives on Monday.

Taking the floor, Representative Gillie explained to his colleagues that "if members of the Hoosier delegation are strutting a bit today, or if our chests are somewhat expanded, there is a very good reason for it. For the announcement has just been made that Indiana led all other states of the Union in war bond sales for May, oversubscribing its quota by 15 per cent."

Representative Gillie, in commenting further on Indiana's record response to the war bond drive, said that it was "a source of pride to all Hoosiers and a challenge to the patriotism and generosity of all other Americans."

HOOSIER HOME FRONT

INTERESTING HOME FRONT NEWS IN INDIANA

Those old boots are marching in from Hoosier farms to do their part in the war effort. A few weeks ago they were worthless. They were unmarketable. But necessity has again mothered invention and a new process has been discovered to salvage them.

Not only boots, but old raincoats, garden hose, overshoes and the like are being turned into new rubber goods. Rubber is a vital commodity now, more vital than most people realize.

If you have any trouble getting your scrap dealer to accept rubber in any form, hold it and write to Dudley Smith, state salvage secretary, 308 Board of Trade Building, Indianapolis. He will arrange for it to be picked up.

Because we are pouring everything we have into the war effort we are faced with shortages in vital materials, shortages which, according to WPB's Division of materials, will grow more serious as the war progresses. This has meant and will continue to mean less and less for the civilian, wide-spread substitution, and an increasing necessity for getting scrap metals and other materials back to the processing plants.

That last necessity, more than ever before, indicates a spare-time job for each of us. WPB stresses the urgent need for civilian collection of scrap, especially metals and old rubber. Only by scraping the bottom of the barrel shall we have enough for victory. This was true some months ago, today it is a matter of pressing, immediate continual need. Unless we get in the scrap, furnaces will grow cold, and cold furnaces can lose wars.

The U. S. A. has put more materials and finished products into the United Nations' pool than any other of the democracies, because we have had more to give. We've sent and are sending vast quantities of weapons and supplies to our allies in the form of lend-lease shipments.

Now, however, the adventure in co-operation is working both ways—we're getting help from these allies as well as giving it. Lend-Lease Administrator Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., the other day disclosed that the British are feeding our troops in Northern Ireland, furnishing them with supplies and building their camps and that Great Brittain also has turned over much military equipment to us, including a complete gun factory.

Russia has sent us valuable data on building tanks and technical experts on explosives,—Australia is servicing our forces in the far East. American warships are being repaired in British ports just as British warships are repaired in American shipyards, and American airplanes are supplied at Australian airdomes. It's one for all and all for one in the fight to lick the Axis.

More than 800 plants now are operating under the War Production Drive Program... WPB has a special committee investigating the possibilities of cargo planes for swift, long-range transportation....The Office of Price Administration reminds you that if you're still looking for a war ration book or a sugar purchase certificate the place to apply for it is at your local War Price and Rationing Board—not the school house where the original registration took place... WPB has ruled you can't get new telephone service unless you're in war or essential civilian work and can prove that without the telephone installation you can't do your job properly....Rubber is in the news again in these ways—styrene, one of the chemical compounds used in artificial rubber, has been brought under rigid WPB control,—A plastic substitute for rubber hose has been developed for use with air raid stirrup pumps—Sale of rubber life-saving suits has been restricted to cargo ships and tankers. ...Canned citrus fruits and citrus juices have been taken out from beneath the price ceiling and cat and dog foods have been placed under it.

A large crowd is expected in Orland on Monday, June 15th for the dedication of the Fawn River state fish hatchery and the annual Steuben county fishermen's jubilee which opens the fishing season. The program starts at 10 o'clock and continues throughout the day.

HOOSIER ANGLERS TO OPEN FISHING SEASON AT MIDNIGHT MONDAY

A half-million Hoosier anglers are preparing for the opening of Indiana's 1942 fishing season on the stroke of midnight next Monday, (June 15) and Tuesday morning's sun will find thousands of them on the lakes and along the streams, Harrell Mosbaugh, director of the Division of Fish and Game, predicted today.

Fishing attracts more active participants in Indiana than any other outdoor recreational sport or activity, due in large part to the more than three thousand miles of streams and the presence of nearly a thousand lakes which are stocked annually with millions of game fish by the Department of Conservation and the local conservation clubs. The propagation of bass, bluegills and other game fish for stocking the lakes and streams, carried on by the Division of Fish and Game, is financed entirely by the people who participate in hunting and fishing through the licenses which they purchase to enjoy these sports.

Hoosier sportsmen are more fortunate than those in other states, an Indiana resident paying only $1.50 for a license which includes hunting, fishing and trapping for the calendar year. In most states separate licenses with fees totaling more than $1.50 are required for fishing, hunting and trapping. In addition Indiana favors the feminine anglers with a special resident fishing license, good for the calendar year and costing but fifty cents. Out-of-state anglers may fish in Indiana during vacation outings with a $1.00 license that is valid for fourteen days, or they may take out a fishing license for the entire year at a cost of only $2.25. Licenses are available at the offices of county clerks and at agencies maintained in stores throughout the state.

We wish to remind the anglers to be sure that they have a 1942 license and suggest that they check up on bag limits, etc.

In condensed form these laws provide the following open season and bag and possession limits:

Open Season June 16 to April 30

Other statutes make it unlawful:

To possess any seine, dip, trammel or pound-net or any other kind of a fishing net, or any spear, gig or fish trap.

To use any hook and line attached to any floating object except a cork or bobber attached to a pole and line that is attended.

To kill fish by means of poison or explosive or to shoot at any fish.

To fish in Indiana waters without a license, except persons under 18 years of age, or to fail to have the license on the person when fishing.

To fish on the lands of another without permission.

Anglers having questions regarding the fishing laws should check up on the laws with their local Conservation Officer to avoid unintentional violations. Under Indiana laws, all fishing tackle and equipment may be confiscated when the owner is convicted of a violation of these laws.

Your CONGRESS and YOU!

NEWS FROM THE OFFICE OF GEORGE W. GILLIE

Conflicting statements by Government officials about gasoline and rubber rationing, the status of married men in the draft, and alternate waves of optimism and pessimism concerning the progress of the war, have created a dangerous state of confusion in the minds of the people. Many of us, grasping for the truth, have begun to pray the prayer of the chap who was lost in the midst of a terrible thunderstorm. "Lord," he prayed most fervently, "Please give me more light and less noise."

Horse and Buggy Days. Gasoline rationing is slowly but surely bringing Washington back to the horse and buggy days. With auto traffic reduced almost 50 per cent by the fuel shortage, horse-drawn vehicles are beginning to apper on Capital streets. Merchants are using them for deliveries and society matrons have by some miracle produced Victorias drawn by prancing steeds. All this has caused problems for District officials who have been forced to resurrect the White Wings of former days to tidy up the streets.

Gasoline rationing has resulted in another resurrection. The Capital Transit Company, finding itself unable to handle the overflow on busses and street cars and not being able to buy new equipment because of open air models of years gone by. And thus do Washington's seething thousands move about.

West Point Exam. An examination for Fourth District candidates for appointment to West Point will be held at 9 o'clock Saturday morning, June 13, in the Civil Service Room of the Fort Wayne Post Office. Open to all young men in the District between the ages of 17 and 21, inclusive, the exam has been arranged by Congressman Gillie to assist him in selecting nominees to fill a special vacancy at the Military Academy on July 15. The vacancy was created by a recent Act of Congress increasing the Cadet Corps at West Point.

The examination will last about six hours and will cover Algebra and Plane Geometry, English Composition and Literature, History, and English Grammar. Appointments will be awarded to the candidates receiving the highest grades. Boys desiring to compete for an appointment are urged by Congressman Gillie to report for the examination next Saturday. No letters of authority or other credentials are required.

Flag Day. Next Sunday, June 14, marks the 166th birthday of the flag of the United States. Designed by Betsy Ross and officially adopted by the Continental Congress, Old Glory today has more significance to more people than at any previous period in history.

General George Washington, when the stars and stripes were first unfurled, described its symbolism as follows: "We take the stars from the heaven, the red from our mother country, separating it by white stripes, thus showing that we have separated from her, and the white stripes shall go down to posterity representing liberty." This year as we commemorate Flag Day we should each and all rededicate our efforts and our prayers to the preservation of that liberty which has characterized the growth of this Republic, and which is symbolized by our flag.

Free Booklets. This office has received a supply of attractive and informative booklets entitled, "Our Flag—How to Respect and Display It." Published by the U. S. Marine Corps, these pamphlets tell the story of Old Glory, contain colored pictures of early American and Colonial Flags, give detailed instructions on how to display the flag for special occasions and include the poem, "I Am Old Glory." Copies will be sent to all persons who drop a postcard or write a note to: Congressman George W. Gillie, House Office Building, Washington, D. C. They are yours for the asking. First come, first served.

BECAUSE of the scarcity of certain critical metals needed for our armed forces, the Government has been compelled to curtail their use for new electric line construction.

The order of the War Production Board forbids us to extend our lines to new customers other than defense housing for a distance of more than 250 feet from existing facilities.

Even where the distance is less than 250 feet we are restricted in the amount of money we may expend for the new construction.

If you plan to build or occupy premises not now supplied with electricity or if you contemplate changes which would necessitate enlargement of our facilities to serve you, please consult us. We shall be glad to give you full information concerning the restrictions and in this way you may save yourself unnecessary disappointment and expense.

RETURNED TO CALIFORNIA TO WORK

After spending a couple of weeks here at the Frank Bowman and Mrs. Inez Chapman homes, Max Chapman, wife and baby were compelled to return to California and take up his work in the factory which he had left only a short time, in the hope of being able to be with his family, who were advised to leave the confusion of the California war activities. Mr. Chapman had his credentials, as a draftsman, with him and could have gone to work in Detroit, had it not been that in the meantime defense workers jobs had been frozen, which did not allow a changing of places or factories. With this, Mr. Chapman was confronted with an immediate return to his old iob, and they left St. Joe early Thursday morning, taking with them a trailer load of furniture.

ESTABLISH "OLD RUBBER" COLLECTION DEPOTS

Reed's Service Station at Spencerville, and Wilbur Yeiser, of St. Joe, have established a depot for collection of old rubber of all kinds and are paying one cent per pound as per government orders. Look about your premises and bring in any kind of rubber that you can spare, you will not only be helping yourself but your country, because scrap rubber is necessary for defense.

Willard Hurni, who drives a cream route is surely doing his bit by way of collecting rubber. In two days he had collected over 600 pounds from his cream patrons. As a people we are being taught the necessity of saving and we hope that folks will continue this practice long after the war is over.

Father's Day

Here's a Dad fortunate enough to be home when the family celebrates Father's day. Son—looking at his Pop's aviation insignia—is very much interested in those wings of freedom. Dad, admiring his son, seems to be saying to himself: "I might not be seeing you for a long time, little fellow, but all this fighting will be worthwhile so that you, too, can grow up in a sane, normal world.

ST. JOE TEACHER IN ARMED SERVICE

Lee Sharp, a St. Joe school teacher last year, was called in the draft, and we are pleased to reproduce his first letter sent home. Lee has many friends at St. Joe who will be pleased to read his letter and to learn his address.

The letter follows:

I made a number of rather good friends at the orderly room, one especially Sgt. Jas. Don Rush, my first barracks leader and a regular fellow, I went for him. My experience in the orderly room should help if I ever get in another office.

I stayed up and talked until one this morning with Sgt. Rush and some others. After a couple of hours of sleep all of our shipment was awakened about 3:10 A. M., we dressed and carried our bags in formation to the train.

Omer Clark, Wabash, and I are shipping together and a fellow by the name of Bob Jones is seated in our compartment of four in the pullman. At 4:50 A. M. the train left Ft. Benjamin Harrison in a north-easterly direction. We traveled approximately 25 miles and stopped at what turned out to be Anderson, where we picked up a number of cars of boys from Fort Perry, Ohio, and then proceeded due south from Anderson, passing through a number of towns and villages. Some of them we were able to identify, others not.

PVT. CHARLES LEE SHARP
303rd. SS Flight 347 Air Corps
Keesler Field, Mississippi
(Serial No. 35354008)

Arriving at Rushville at 7:05 A. M. we were rebuked for talking to a woman and asking questions. She said Willkie lived only a few blocks away. Moving on from Rushville we passed other towns. Soon after leaving North Vernon the terraine changed from broad, level fields, much similar to that around St. Joe, to rolling and hilly territory. This lasted for only a short period of time. For some time the hilly portions were intermittantly spaced with level ground. But the level land is becoming increasingly far apart. The terraine is gradually approaching a resemblance of foothill country. Even now I can look down some 50 or 75 feet to a plowed field.

The country is becoming increasingly beautiful as it grows wilder and less cultivated.

This train is the jerkiest outfit I ever rode on. It has twin engines, and at least 20 cars (pullman with troops) and the engineers are evidently having difficulty in synchronizing the stops and especially the starts.

The boys are reading, writing, smoking, playing cards and just laying around in general. One fellow has a portable radio which is kept continually on stations where modern swing music is playing. There was a great deal of complaining in connecetion with our breakfast this morning. There wasn't enough, either, but perhaps it's just as well, for undoubtedly some of the boys will have digestive trouble on this "bouncey" train.

When we first left Fort Ben. I thought we were starting for some Fort on the East Coast, but a Captain did break down and inform us that we were in some branch of the Air Corps. So now it would appear, since we are continuing to travel in a southerly direction, that it's going to be some camp in Mississippi or Texas. I wouldn't be surprised if it were Keesler Field, Miss., for I know, from my work in the orderly room that a number of boys are going there, or at least have been.

Just passed through Charlestown, 9:35 A. M., and again the terraine is relatively flat. Could see the edge of the powder plant field. Hills are starting now and the senery is beautiful. The weather has been ideal. It's warm enough to have your windows all up and your sleeves too. There are a few snow-white clouds floating largely in what would otherwise be a clear, azure blue sky. Vegetation, especially on the hills is rank and dense, but we pass many fields that are flat and appear reasonably fertile.

It is growing warmer, and were it not for the fact that we are moving and there is a breeze, I suspect that we would be uncomfortably warm. I'm not sure exactly the direction we're taking, but it seems that instead of south and soutwest, we've been going almost straight west. Maybe it's Camp Wallace, Texas. Just passed a field of shocked wheat. Wow! Early! Bowling Green 4:02 P. M., Woodburn 5:00 P. M. I learned from a boy at Bowling Green that we're headed for Nashville. Portland, Ky., at 5:30 P. M. Time to eat, We're all tired, dirty and hungry.

For a number of miles after leaving Bowling Green the topography resembled that of home, but now at 5:45 (chow is coming) we are in very hilly country and have gone through two tunnels, making our third for the day. I just saw a freight train that was wrecked. One derailed and several others smashed. We are still on the move, passing towns and chow just over except for more iced tea, (have already had two cups.)

After 1:13 minute wait, we left Nashville at 8:13 P. M. During the interval I asked the Corporal a great many questions. He says the Air Corps offers the greatest possible chance for advancement. We just passed a small place called Mayton and it's now 8:30 P. M. It's practically dark, just light enough to see the outline of the hills. The far-away silhouttes are beautiful. And now, in spite of everything that's going on I think of" When Day Is Done," and home. Just passed through another tunnel.

It's Sunday morning 6:45 and we just passed through Greenville, Ala. Last night about 1:30 A. M. I awakened and saw, through the window a moonlit fairyland of mountains, gorges, rivers and trees. It all appeared fantastic and unreal in the hazy-yellow glow of a full moon, and it was just as beautiful as it was fantastic and unreal. It all seemed rather terrifying, and caused a feeling of varying emotions: those hills, those curves, the river many feet below the towering trestles, the gigantic timber, and playing over it all, the moonlight. I remember that it made me feel how terribly small and unimportant I was, how insignificant and powerless any human being would be in a battle with the elements, and how frail the thread of life might be, should something go wrong with just any one of the many things essential to a safe passage....a pin in a trestle, a sleepy engineer, a wrong signal, etc.

All those thoughts seem to steal over one in the face of the present environment.... the troop train, newly made acquaintances, and the entirely new (to me) surroundings.

This morning, when we awakened we were in an apparently poverty-stricken territory, relatively level. Occasionally we would pass through swampy places, overgrown by all sorts of the very densest undergrowth. This changed later (Polland 9:20 A. M.) to timberland, and was interspersed occasionally with pasture fields and land that could quite easily have been mistaken for that of our Hoosier state.

Remarkable to me were the banks of red clay; and curious to me are the many negro huts on the outskirts of villages. They speak silently, but more eloquently than words, of a poverty-stricken, low standard of living.

We're going to Keesler Field, Miss. Of that we are now pretty certain. Again today the weather is ideal....a few white, floating clouds, soft and billowy, lazily drifting toward some unknown destination. There is much timberland, both developed and undeveloped on the land through which we have been passing.

We stopped suddenly a little while ago. an upper berth came loose (Flamato 9:30 A. M.) and one of the boys in the next car received a gash on his head. We passed through a city at 1:30 last night I wish I could identify it for it was quite large. Now the land is (Canoe 9:25 A. M.) flat, the fields large, but the ground is all red clay. The homes are better, indicating that the ground is as fertile as the crops' appearance indicate. There was some corn already tassled.

The land now is as level as any I ever saw. Roads are made of that range-red clay. We just crossed a very broad river (Ben Bigley ? ?) someone said. It must have been at least a mile across. There's an oil pipeline, similar to the ones shown in "Life." It's swampy now with occasional large bunches of a strange lavender colored flower. We just crossed another large river. Waterways are numerous in these swamps.

The river we've been following is the Alabama, we're going to Mobile. Still swampy, tree-covered, and overgrown with all types of bushes, etc. (Aladocks 11:20 A. M.) Two ocean steamers, a large city, 4 instead of two. Two are being loaded by huge derricks. We stopped (chow time) at Mobile 11:45 to 12:30. Many ships. We're moving and will be in Beloxi in two or three hours.

One of the most distinctive sights of the whole trip so far, was a pine grove. This grove covered a number of acres of pastureable land. The grass in it was about ten inches high. These pines were of a variety that I have never seen. They had long trunks and a different type of limb than the fir trees one sees up north. Interesting too were the large warehouses near the loading docks at Mobile. (St. Elmo 1:13 P. M.)

We'll be wherever we're going in a short time. The country here is very flat, and if it weren't for those pine trees it could be a part of Indiana. (Boscacoli 1:45 P. M.) We're crossing a river, lagoon or something. Roses in bloom. Much water. I've really enjoyed the trip. Some of the boys have headache or the heat's bothering them, etc., but I feel fine. I always have been disgustingly healthy I guess.

We're in Ocean Springs, Miss., now at 2:05 P. M. We're in a town, I believe Beloxi, which is the end. Palm trees! ! 2:08 P. M. It wasn't! It was still Ocean Springs. We're moving again. Just crossed the Back Bay of the Gulf. A bridge about a mile long. We're entering Beloxi at 2:25 P. M.

Sunspots are said to be thousands of miles in diameter, yet some girls make an awful fuss over little freckles.

It has been some time since I have heard anyone make the statement that radio is still in its infancy.

One thing about this time of year is that you have so many more mosquitoes to annoy you than you do politicians in the fall.

The way traffic pulls past you, it would seem that folks don't take much stock in that forty-mile speed for conserving tires and gasoline.

Haven't heard many of the men around fussing a whole lot over the short skirts the girls are wearing.

Banditry used to be the bane of China. The way it looks now, bandits are still something for China to worry about.

Despite the rumors of a shortage of razor blades, most men will manage a shave when they know company is coming.

As a nation, we the people, owe ourselves so much money that one would think we could all get unlimited credit with each other.

Are you entitled to wear a target lapel button?

You can ONLY if you are investing at least ten percent of your income in War Bonds to do your part on the home front toward winning the War.

The target lapel button is a badge of patriotism, a badge of honor. You should feel proud to display it. The buttons are obtainable at your plant management, at the office of your local War Bond chairman, or at your Payroll Savings Window where you authorize your ten percent payroll deductions.

Enlist in the ten percent War Bond army and do your part to win the War.

U. S. Treasury Department

Experience as a teacher, so often demands that we stay after school and make up our work.

Some St. Joe folks are beginning to whet up their appetites right now for the corn-on-the cob season.

When Congress approved a minimum of $50 a month pay for men in all branches of the armed forces, and made provisions to care for dependent wives and children, there was no general complaint against Congress from any part of the country. That was one time that Congress "rang the bell" of public approval.

Leaders in Washington are growing more and more optimistic. The Russians told us months ago that the war could be won in 1942. British Ambassador Halifax is talking the same way, and the people in London are demanding invasion of the continent. Next thing you may expect to hear will be as big a surprise as the Armistice of 1918. The present speed of the war should bring it to a finish this year, in the opinion of our Washington correspondent.

HUNGRY WORLD

As we stated at about this time last year, the worldly wise tell us that European countries are facing a terrible famine next winter. That was last winter, and yet they managed to pull through and live to fight another day. But of the grief facing Europe for this coming winter there can be no doubt. Consider the plight of poor Greece at the present time and be convinced. A teacher in a college at Athens, when asked if the populace was liable to rebel because of the starivng conditions, replied, "the people are too weak to carry a gun." So there lies the truth of all occupied countries. The fact that a Finnish newspaper says that European countries are weary of war may be typical of that country in its fight with Russie. To have a settlement between this country and its fight against Russia would indeed be a victory over Hitler. But then we must remember that as to the lowered morale of other nations, it is the occupied countries which are the sufferers in regard to starvation. The aggressive nations are looking to their larder and keeping their warriors supplied in order to continue to fight. Germany is not going to let its army starve if it can get food from the occupied lands. England and Russia and our own country are keeping stocked shelves and full pantries and farms producing. The voices of the people of occupied lands call in hunger but they are not the ones which will probably bring the war to an end.

POLITICAL POWER MONOPOLY PLANNED

Government by the people is threatened by a Congressional bill to create a Columbia River Power Administration under one-man control, the Secretary of the Interior.

That bill, if passed, would set a dangerous precedent for the entire country. And here in part is what it would do:

1. It would give the CPA arbitrary authority to take over privately-owned or municipally-owned local power systems, regardless of community wishes.

2. Once existing power systems were acquired by the CPA, communities would either have to buy the local lines on terms and conditions dictated by the CPA, or buy their electricity at retail from the CPA at its own price.

3. All local or state control over power resources or rates would be destroyed by the bill. No provision is made for regional representation in the CPA.

4. Communities could be discriminated against in rates if that happened to be the wish of the CPA—there would be no appeal to a state regulatory commission.

5. The bill authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to buy revenue bonds issued by CPA with money obtained from the sale of securities issued under the Second Liberty Bond Act. That is the Act under which War Savings Bonds are being sold in vast amounts. In other words, incredible as it may seem, the bill would make it possible for money put into War Bonds by patriotic Americans to be diverted from war purposes and used to establish state socialism in our country.

6. The CPA monopoly thus created could control any community as it saw fit, by holding back or releasing power for industrial development or any other purpose. Local towns, local businesses, local farmers, and local citizens would be 100 per cent dependent on Washington bureaucrats for the quality, the cost, and the extent of their power service.

The principal importance of this bill lies in the precedent it would establish. It would pave the way for a revolutionary expansion in national socialism and destruction of State and local taxing power and authority. It would undoubtedly harm the war effort, because no existing power company could plan and build for the future if it knew that CPA bureaucrats could step in and take over without notice. An industry which is under the heel of bureaucratic dictation is not a progressive industry.

If Congress approves this bill, we might as well stop talking about democracy.

DATES IN PASSING

In June comes two memorable anniversary dates that greatly affected our history and that might offer some food for St. Joe thinking. First consider that on June 29, 1767, a tea tax was imposed upon the heavily burdened American colonies and called forth real action on the part of the people who had felt oppression for too long a time. They were smoldering under the yoke of taxation without representation. This new tea tax was the final straw that broke the camel's back. We all know what was stirred into American history books with the brewing of this tea tax.

Take another June date, such as the 28th of the year 1914 and see if you recall what happened of importance at that time. Remember when Archduke Ferdinand was shot and about thirteen million people fell dead from the effects of that fateful bullet that ended the life of this royal personage. Little did the towns folk of Sarajevo know what disaster was to follow the local event. June may be the month of brides and graduates and flowers in bloom, but in the annals of history June's dates are not so significant of sweetness and light.

STILL AT IT

Many folks that you know here in St. Joe have surplus sugar stored away. Some have recently purchased cases of tomatoes and when there was the scare of lack of spices and oils people bought heavily to put these in. There are buyers who have started to hoard coffee, tea and cocoa because of 'priorities' in this line: We heard one woman say that she would be willing to shoulder a gun if it would enable her to keep her coffee pot full. But our restrictions on sugar were not so severe that we are going without our sweet. Sugar is still sold across the counter, it still is found on our dining table. We still have our candy and cookies. Perhaps it is time for us to have a 'run' on something else and maybe coffee is the thing. Of course it doesn't matter perhaps, but coffee loses its flavor when it ages even though it might be vacuum packed. But there are always folks who will hoard through fear. It is fear that makes us act this way and fear plays the devil with 'morale.' Instead of hoarding coffee, why not try hoarding war bonds?

SLAUGHTER HOGS PLENTIFUL AT AUCTION

More slaughter hogs on sale last Thursday than in any June sale since 1935. Veals were also plentiful. A review of individual sales follows:

Thin lambs weighing near 65, $12.90 to $13.10. Slaughter ewes, $5.40. Hogs in a weight range from 170 to 225, $13.80 to $13.95. Slaughter sows, $13.25 down.

Stags, $11.50. Boars, $9.00 to $10.25. Feeder shoats to go back to the country are scarce and higher each week. One lot of pigs 9 weeks old changed hands at $8.10 per head. A few select veals sold from $14.10 to $14.70 with the bulk of good calves going at $13.60 to $14.00. Dairy cows from $85.50 to $92.00. Low cutter cows from $7.80 to $8.30. Shells $7.30 to $7.75. A heifer weighing 680 at $10.25.

LAKES AND STREAMS GIVE UP MANY FISH

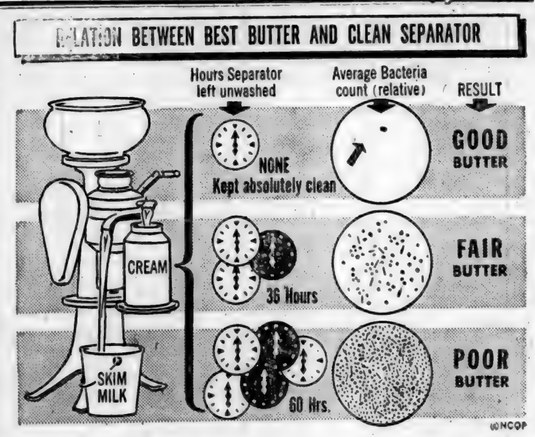
Hoosier lakes and streams were targets for an army of Indian anglers Tuesday when the 1942 fishing season got under way and the "blitz" will be renewed this week end as thousands of other fishermen and women are released from factories and offices to try their luck.

On the heels of the opening of the season came the usual crop of fish stories. Mingled with the moaning of the angler who let the big one get away was the boasting of the ones who landed all they wanted or had some other choice experience to relate. While definite figures are lacking, it was estimated by the Conservation Officers that there were more than ten thousand anglers out on the opening day. Arrests for violation of the fishing laws were reported in some parts of the state but these were fewer than in past years and of a less serious nature.

With the passing of the coming week end when most of Indiana's half-million anglers will have opened their fishing season, things will get back to normal thru out the state and Hoosiers will settle down to a summer of good fishing. Both lakes and streams are in usually good condition, the fish to all indications are plentiful, and there is no reason to anticipate anything but plenty for the men and women who thrill to the strike of a black bass or landing a long string of panfish.

Fishing leads all other outdoor sports in the number of active participants and is one of the state's major attractions for anglers and vacationists from other states. Every effort is being made by the Department of Conservation with the cooperation of the local conservation clubs to maintain and further improve the fine fishing which Indiana already possesses in a thousand lakes and more than three thousand miles of streams.

The operation of this better fishing program is already in evidence throughout Indiana as the state hatcheries are now engaged in the planting of millions of fingerling bass, bluegills and other game fish in Hoosier waters to assure the continuance of this healthful outdoor recreation.



It's hard to believe, but it's absolutely true: Washing and sterilizing the cream separator every time it is used not only means cream and butter of the highest quality but also a maximum amount of butterfat from each separation.

A curious investigator, Dr. D. R. Theophilus, working in a dairy college laboratory, found a simple explanation why the best cream and butter always come from the cleanest separators. The results are shown in the graphic chart above. Dr. Theophilus first separated milk in an absolutely clean separator. He found relatively few bacteria in the cream, which was later churned into fine butter. He left the machine unwashed and used it again for separation in 36 hours. Now he found 60 times as many destructive bacteria as he counted when the separator was clean, and the resulting butter turned out to be much lower in quality. He ran a third trial in the unwashed separator after 60 hours. This time he found 480 times as many bacteria in the cream as on the first trial—so many of them that the resulting butter was almost unusable. The dirtier the separator the higher the bacteria count, and the higher the bacteria count, the poorer the butter quality.

Other tests have proved that the amount of butterfat found in skimmilk when a separator is washed only once a day is greater than when it is washed twice a day. In some cases, the amount of butterfat lost was twice as great in the morning as in the evening. The reason was soon discovered: The separator had been washed in the morning and was clean when used in the evening; it was not washed at night and was used in its unclean condition for the morning separation. The small particles of curd and slime sediment adhering to the crevices of the separator bowl lowered the efficiency of the machine and slowed up the free flow of the milk and cream. This condition, which takes money right out of the farmer's pocket, is easily eliminated by the simple practice of thoroughly washing the separator as soon as the separating job is finished.

Uncle Sam has far more

POWER

for War Production

than all these three together!

Adolf, Hirohito and Benito aren't sleeping well these nights. They know that America's war production must inevitably turn the tide against them.

America can do it because America has the electric power to do it. Electric power multiplies man-power and drives the machines that make tanks, planes, ships and guns.

How much power has America? More than the three dictators and all their conquered countries combined. Five times more than we had in the last war. And this has been done almost entirely by electric companies owned by millions of Americans and managed by American business men.

The full facilities of all these companies are dedicated today to making Uncle Sam so power-full that Axis aggressors will soon be nothing more than three busts in the Hall of Infamy!

HOOSIER HOME FRONT

INTERESTING HOME FRONT NEWS IN INDIANA

Land-locked Indiana has produced the equivalent of 15 destroyers, and, more appropriately, 121 medium 27-ton tanks in the month of May. This, through only the operations of the Auto Graveyard Section of the War Production Board headed by Donald Cummings, district chief.

That means that Indiana auto graveyards have delivered to steel mills 13,798 tons of scrap during May, which, put together with that much pig iron, makes double that amount of steel. That much steel makes that many destroyers and that many tanks.

About 25 Office of Price Administration investigators polled Indianapolis this week to see what compliance there was with the posting of prices for "cost-of-living" items. It has been found by a spot check that only one-third of the retail merchants have been completely complying with the regulations. One-third have been incompletely complying. One-third have not been complying at all.

Other surveys may be made, and merchants must know now that they must comply.

After a little more than six months of war we are turning out ships and weapons at a rate that must give Hitler and Hirohito nightmares. But if we are to win the war and win it quickly we must do more than merely keep up the present rate of production of war products. We must turn out ships and weapons even more rapidly.

This means we must have war materials to put into the machines of war and it means that we must use almost all the space in our ships and almost all of the engines and cars on our railroads to move these materials to the factories and the finished weapons to dock side.

Only in one way can we provide these great amounts of materials and the transportation to move them and that is by living lives as different from the lives we are living now as the life we are now living differs from the life of peace.

This we shall do and never doubt it, because we have demonstrated our capacity for acting together toward a common end. It is one of the lies of the dictators that the democratic peoples cannot work together, that people only work together when they are whipped to work by the lash of tyranny. The dictators doubtless are as dismayed by the accomplishments of the War Production Drive as by the fierce and dedicated resistance of the Russians.

The needs of total war dredge up some strange materials from the industrial seas... Recent W. P. B. orders, for instance, have dealt with istles, waste waste, osnaburg, and "dotted women's footholds"... Dotted women's footholds are the bottoms of women's rubber galoshes with rubber dots in them for decorative purposes.

Istle is a Mexican fiber used as a substitute for jute and other fibers we used to import from the far East... Osnaburg is a loosely woven cloth.... Since the summer of 1940 we have spent $30,615,000,000 on the army and navy and last month we were spending at the rate of $148,000,000 a day, more than $1 a day for every man, woman and child in the country.... The "victory" bicycle has been put under a price ceiling by the Office of Price Administration.... The highest retail price in the middle zone, $33.50.. These bicycles, as all other bicycles, will be rationed by OPA.

If you have pawned your typewriter you can get it back if you pay the pawn broker.. OPA so interpreted rationing regulations recently... Use of tin for unnecessary civilian purposes will be cut another 10 per cent July 1 because of urgent military and civilian needs... Most of America's milk trucks will be off the streets in less than two years unless further steps are taken to save their tire. After September 1 no mattresses or pads may contail iron or steel..... There is going to be a lot of substitute material in electric light bulbs from now on but WPB says their efficiency won't be affected.

WPB estimates that the order requiring the use of substitutes in making light bulbs will save a million pounds of brass, 40,000 pounds of copper and 30,000 pounds of nickel.. WPB has prohibited use of cellophane for packing animal food, rubber nipples, candy and window cards.

NEWS FROM COUNTY AGENT

HOW TO CONTROL CABBAGE WORMS

Cabbage worms are easily controlled, says G. E. Lehker, Purdue extension entomologist, and no Hoosier Victory Gardener need allow these pests to eat his cabbage. Any one of several insecticides, such as rotenone, arsenate of lead or paris green are known to kill the worms.

Contrary to popular belief, cabbage may be dusted or sprayed with an arsenical, such as lead arsenate or paris green, until the cabbage heads are at least four inches in diameter, he says. without leaving an objectionable residue. Even later applications afford little danger because the cabbage grows from the inside out, and external leaves are generally removed before cooking.

As a dust, Lehker recommends that one part of arsenate of lead be mixed with three of hydrated lime. Paris green is a stronger poison and can be mixed one part with seven of lime. Rotenone dust can be purchased ready mixed and applied at any time. It, too is effective against the worms.

For those who wish to spray instead of dust the cabbage, Lehker suggests the use of lead arsenate at the rate of ten level teaspoonfuls in a gallon of soapy water.

PERSONS INJURED IN CRASH NEAR BUTLER

A Ford tudor coach, driven by Mrs. Luella Hensley of Corunna, collided with a Chevrolet coach driven by Earl Miller, 17, of Butler, Saturday afternoon on the county road 2½ miles south and 3 miles east of Butler in Stafford Township.

The Hensley car had stopped for an intersection and then started up again, the driver unable to see the oncoming Miller car because of high weeds on the road. The Miller car was dented on the right side and the Hensley machine badly damaged.

Occupants of the Hensley car were Mrs. Hensley, 25, who suffered cuts and bruises, Paul Hensley, 4, and Phillip, 19 months, who were uninjured, Roy Hensley, 24, Mrs. Roy Hensley, 21, David, 3, and Beverly, 8 months, who received bruises and scratches.

ONLY IN THE EAST

"No Nation-wide rationing of gasoline!" Thus, yelled Congressmen early this month, and the chorus gradually deepened by the middle of June.

The indications in Washington, as this item is written, are for continuance of rationing in the East, but nowhere else.

NEWS FROM THE OFFICE OF GEORGE W. GILLIE

AN OPEN LETTER TO MR. DONALD NELSON

Dear Mr. Nelson: I desire to register my protest against the rationing of gasoline and fuel oil in the Middle West. There is no gasoline shortage in this section of the country. As a matter of fact, oil wells from Texas to Montana and Michigan are only permitted to pump a fraction of their normal flow, and large surplus supplies of petroleum products are accumulating.

From the Allegheny Mountains and west, transportation facilities by pipe line, rivers, truck and rail are more than adequate to take care of supplying all types of petroleum products for both civilian and war needs, without causing a shortage.

It is most unfortunate that the Eastern seaboard States are not able to secure an adequate supply of gasoline due to the sinking of tankers in the Atlantic. But why, Mr. Nelson should the entire country be made to suffer as a matter of sympathy?

The argument is advanced that the balance of the country must be rationed on gasoline to conserve rubber for war purposes. If this is the truth, and our tires are needed for the war effort, every American citizen will gladly give his car and his tires to the Government. After all, we now have only one job, and that is to win the war as quickly as possible. Every true American is consecrated to this task.

However, the rubber conservation argument does not stand up, if the people have received true information from Government officials in charge of our war effort.

Nn one claims that the Eastern States were rationed to save rubber. The rationing was necessary on account of a shortage of gasoline in the area. The sinking of tankers caused the shortage of gasoline supplies.

It is estimated that we now have a supply of raw rubber between 400,000 and 600,000 tons—to say nothing of several hundred million new tires, and an estimated scrap tire rubber stock of over 2,000,000 tons. All this can be used for war purposes.

Only a few days ago, President Roosevelt's press conference statement on rubber caused the following newspaper headlines from coast to coast: "Hope held for civilian tires soon," "President optimistic over tires," "Rubberless tire near, says F. D. R.," "Roosevelt optimistic on rubber," and "President takes issue with own war-agency heads on rubber crisis."

The President must know if we are getting the truth on the rubber situation. He should know. To be frank about it, there has been too much loose talk during the past few months by high officials, about confiscating private cars and tires, and rationing of this and that commodity. We had better have the cold truth at once. We can take it. Otherwise, public morale and the national unity our country needs to win the war, will be destroyed.

To the State of Indiana, unnecessary rationing of gasoline will cause terrific economic damage to business and agriculture, without stressing the large amount spent annually in our State for recreational enjoyment. Every citizen of Indiana is wholeheartedly back of our Government in the war effort. We are contributing a good share of our resources to win the war. Agriculture, manpower and industry are all cooperating to the limit. We are willing to make sacrifices. Hundreds of small businessmen and manufacturers already have been forced out of business. Thousands of individuals have been thrown out of work because of Government war policies. We are ready to make more secrifices—but let the people know the truth.

Let me point out that the rank and file of automobile drivers are conserving their tires. The reduction in speed limit and the disappearance of virtually all pleasure driving has brought results.

In conclusion, I wish to suggest that your office conduct a Nation-wide investigation with public hearings to determine the need for country-wide gas rationing, before arbitrary action is taken. The people are entitled to this much consideration. The success of our war effort depends on national unity. Arbitrary action without justification will destroy the unity we need to win the war.

REPUBLICANS OF STATE SELECT STATE TICKET

Indiana Republicans Thursday chose Rue J. Alexander, Pine Village, as their candidate for the office of secretary of state, over James H. Knapp, Hagerstown, veteran Indiana law maker.

Knapp withdrew from the race after 54 counties had given his opponent 1,256 votes by an unofficial tabulation. Only 1,107 votes are necessary to nominate.

The election of Alexander was made unanimous upon a motion by Knapp.

Immediately after Alexander's nomination was assured Albert Ward, of Indianapolis, withdrew from the attorney general race and moved the unanimous nomination of Jas. A. Emmert, of Shelbyville. The motion was carried.

The nomination of two organization candidates to the most important state offices at stake in the coming election was a clean victory sweep for the forces of State Chairman Ralph F. Gates and was regarded as virtually ending the "rebel" movement which backed up Knapp.

Paul Harvey, of Bloomington and Russell Robbins, of Richmond then withdrew from the race for clerk of the supreme and appellate courts and the convention nominated Thomas C. Williams, of Jeffersonville, another organization choice, by acclamation. Mart J. O'Malley, of Huntington was nominated unanimously as the party candidate for 4th judicial district supreme court judge when the name of his only opponent, Lloyd McClure, of Kokomo, failed to come before the convention.

Conner D. Ross was not placed before the convention as a candidate for first district appellate judge and the remaining two candidates, Paul F. Dowell, of Madison, and Wilbur A. Royse, of Indianapolis, were acclaimed candidates for the two first district judgeships at stake.

The platform adopted by the state party, too, was regarded as proof of its unity, not only within itself but with the majority of national committee leaders.

Keystone plank of the platform, from a unity point of view, was that on "peace after war," opposing any "appeasement peace" and generally regarded as backing, in a mild way, the anti-post-war-isolationism stand of the Wendell Willkie camp in the national GOP.

The platform made a definite bid for labor support, pledging appointment of labor representatives to all boards and commissions handling questions directly affecting labor. However, the labor plank also favored curtailment of "government interference" in employer - employe relations "in all normal times."

The party went on record in favor of liberal old age pensions, oragnized on a "pay-as-you-go" basis and extension of employment security to those groups not yet included.

Auditor of State Richard T. James, State Treasurer James M. Givens, Dr. Clement T. Malan, superintendent of public instruction, had no opposition as the nominations opened and were named cadidates for their respective posts by acclamation.

Failure of Paul T. McCain, Hammond, to complete arrangements for his candidacy resulted also in the acclamation nomination of Harry Crumpacker, Michigan City, and Floyd S. Draper, Gary, for appellate judges from the first district.

Those attending the convention from this section were: Carl Carpenter, Derwood B. Ridgway, Fred B. Leighty, Walter Baker, Frank Hilkey, J. C. Noel, and Elza Housel, of St. John.

A SERIES OF ACCIDENTS LAST MONDAY

Monday seemed to be an unlucky day for several people in this vicinity. Mr. Mansfield, with another man, was working in the timber and in the forenoon a limb struck his head inflicting minor bruises, and in the afternoon a limb fell on his arm putting it out of commission.

Mr. Hugh Strong, preparing to move a small building, was prying up a corner and the building toppled over on him pinning him beneath the timbers. Harry was with him and succeeded in prying the timbers enough to release him. He had bad bumps on his forehead, but altogether it was a lucky escape.

A section hand, working in the crew where Edgar Lysher works out of Garrett on the B. & O. railroad, was pounding a steel bar and a piece of the steel chipped off and lodged in his neck, inflicting a serious wound. He was rushed to the hospital where the piece of steel was removed, and he will be compelled to remain in the hospital a few days.

ECONOMY SPEED ON ROADS SAVES LIVES

Almost uniform observance of the 45-mile-per-hour "Economy Speed" proposed by Governor Henry F. Schricker, has resulted in greater motoring safety on the state highway system, S. C. Hadden, chairman of the State Highway Commission, has pointed out.

Reports from the Bureau of Traffic show a 42 per cent decrease in motor vehicle fatalities for May, 1942 as compared with May, 1941; a 37 per cent decrease in accidents, and a 52 per cent decrease in property damage resulting from motor vehicle accidents. These figures, Mr. Hadden, said, apply to state highways outside cities and towns.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Ridgway, Mrs. Jean Davis and daughter, Mrs. Walter Ervin, Foster Gee and son, Eugene, were Fort Wayne shoppers, Tuesday.

VAST NEED OF COAL EACH AND EVERY WEEK

It takes about 2150 pounds pounds of coal to make a ton of steel.

In order for the railroads to move the enormous tonnage of freight offered them this year, they will use around 100 million tons of coal.

In order for the utilities of the country to furnish light and power for the operation of plants, the lighting of homes, the running of street cars, etc., they will use about 70 million tons of coal this year.

The steel industry will use over 100 million tons.

It takes about 2540 pounds of coking coal to make a ton of pig iron.

Then, too, it must be remembered that coal is used in the manufacture of many other war necessities, chemicals for fertilizers, Benzol for high-test gasoline, Toluol for TNT, Naphthalene to make plastics and dyes. Sulfanilamide and its derivations are made from coal and are used in the hospitals throughout the world today to arrest infections.

NURSE IS SELECTED FOR DEKALB COUNTY

Mrs. Fred Quance, of Auburn, registered nurse, has been selected as the DeKalb County Red Cross nurse, it was announced Tuesday by Ralph Greist, of Garrett, Red Cross chairman. The appointment was made at a meeting of the organization's executive board. Her duties will begin with the opening of the school year in September.

Mrs. Quance succeeds Miss Josephine Fisher, of Spencerville, who now is serving at a Huntington Hospital. She is well qualified for the position, having been doing private nursing as well as work at both the Sanders and Dr. Bonnell M. Souder hospitals in Auburn since 1931.

SQUIRREL HUNTING SEASON DATES SET

Indiana's open season for hunting grey or fox squirrels begin this year on Monday, August 10 and close on Tuesday, October 8, with bag and possession limits of five squirrels, Harrell E. Mosbaugh, director of the Division of Fish and Game, announced.

This year there will be no zoning of the state as in the past, with different open seasons for the northern and southern zones. This action was taken by the Division of Fish and Game upon recommendation of the State Conservation Advisory Committee which also suggested the open season dates. The abandoning of the zones and the fixing of opening and closing dates for the squirrel season by the Division of Fish and Game was done under authority of an act of the 1937 session of the General Assembly.

Establishment of zones, each with its 60-day open season for squirrel hunting, had been tried in the past in an attempt to meet climatic differences prevailing over the state. At one time three zones were in effect—Southern, Central and Northern—but in more recent years the state had been divided into a Southern and a Northern Zone with the Southern Zone including about two thirds of the 92 counties.

YOUTHS REGISTER NEXT TUESDAY, AGE 18-19

Announcement is made by the DeKalb County Selective Service Board that the American Legion will again be in charge when the fifth registration is held Tuesday, June 30.

Those who are to sign up at that time are the 18 and 19 year olds. The order stipulates that youths who were born on or after Jan. 1, 1922, and on or before June 30, 1924 are to register. The estimated number in DeKalb County is 900. No legislation has yet been passed by congress to draft these youths, but such a law may follow and it is probable that the list will be used to call the registrants into service as they reach the age of 20.

The same chief registrars will officiate as on previous registration days.

St. Joe—Town Hall includes Concord, Spencer and Newville townships. Roscoe George, chief registrar. Jackson township youth register at American Legion Home in Auburn, and Wilmington and Stafford at school house in Butler.

ANOTHER SOLDIER BOY WRITES HIS RELATIVES

Frank Kitchen and wife received the following letter from their son-in-law, Robert Johnson, and gladly furnished it for publication that his many friends here may hear from him also. It was mailed out June 10, and is as follows:

Camp Cooke, Calif.

Dear Folks:

I am feeling fine and back in the dust hole again. We came back last night about dark. It was 11 o'clock till we got our trucks taken care of and supper over. Sure felt good to get a good hot shower and get in bed. First time for two weeks to undress and go to bed. From two weeks ago tonight to week last Sunday we were on alert at camp. Slept with our shoes on ready to go any time. Then on Sunday they sent us down by Los Angeles. Took everything we had. Arose at 3:30 on Sunday morning, ate breakfast and got our vehicles ready to go. Left camp at 5:30. Had a nice trip. Wore our overcoats all forenoon, then when we would stop it was very warm. Driving with out any windshields and no tops it was like winter.

We followed along the coast about all the way. In the afternoon we sure saw a lot of bathing beauties. But they wouldn't let us stop. We sure had traffic tied up. They only took about 3,000 men from here, and we had about eight or ten miles of tanks and armed trucks. I never saw so many State Police, they gave us the road, never stopped at any stop signs or stop lights. When we reached Los Angeles everyone seemed to welcome us, throwing us cigarettes, cigars, candy, gum and oranges. I think every one was out to see us pass.

We were parked in different parts of the city, mostly on the old race track. No one received a pass to go up town neither was the public admitted. But a lot of the boys sneaked out after dark and two or three of them were caught and had to do extra duty or K. P. for a week. I wanted to go but had to bunk with the First Sergeant so I didn't have much chance. We remained here until Tuesday afternoon then were sent to the edge of the city closer to a large airplane factory.

Were parked in a large field which hadn't been farmed for some time. The ground being of a blue clay and hard, haven't had any rain for some time and do not get much from now on until about Christmas. Some cracks in the ground 3 feet deep. They have to irrigate everything that is raised here.

When we arrived I thought there was a lot of volunteer oats in the field. Gathered a lot of it for our bed, we got so many stickers on our blankets I began to see what was wrong, it was just a weed instead of oats. I sent a head home. My blankets are full of them. And of course we had lots of company, lots of ants. They didn't bother much after the second night. We arose at 3:00 every morning, packed every thing ready to move any minute, but the Japs never came. I think we could have given them a nice welcome if they had.

They kept two guards out all the time, one at the radio and 50 California aircraft machine guns and walked the area. I was on guard for an hour one night. We changed guards every hour. In the forenoon we would clean our guns and vehicles and have some classes, afternoons we could sleep until three o'clock.

We had a very nice trip, tent life isn't so bad. We don't know how soon we will be called out again or where we will go. They don't want us to write when we are out like this, so will close for now and write to me often.

Lots of love to all.

Pvt. Robert L. Johnson, B. Btry. 58th Arm'd F. A. Bn., A P O No. 255, Camp Cooke, California.

AUTO TAX STAMP SALE NOW ON

Will H. Smith, Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Indiana, has called attention to the fact that there are many auto users who have not as yet purchased the auto tax stamp in the denomination of $5.00 which was placed on sale in all postoffices and offices of Collectors of Internal Revenue on Wednesday, July 10th.

The law provides that any person liable for the tax who uses or permits the use of motor vehicle before the tax has been paid shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than $25.00 or imprisoned for not more than thirty days, or both.

The stamp must be placed in the lower corner of the windshield farthest removed from the driver's position.

Mr. Smith said that, to guard against loss or theft, it has been suggested that, when affixing the stamps, the vehicle owner should dampen the windshield rather than the adhesive side of the stamp. This method has been recommended to keep the stamp intact upon the windshield. As an additional precaution, it has also been suggested that each motor vehicle owner make a record of the serial number which appears on the use tax stamp in order that there may be some means of identification in connection with gasoline rationing in the event the stamp should become lost.

Final date for the purchase of the auto use tax stamp is July 1, 1942.

FLYING DEUCES

Featuring Laurel and Hardy. Laurel and Hardy again provide good, down to earth slap-stick on the screen in The Flying Deuces. This laugh-provoking comedy proves to be one of the best of their long career.

The story concerns a couple of tourists in Paris, who thru unrequited love for a girl, join the French Foreign Legion to forget her. Given the dirtiest jobs in the regiment, they finally rebel, only to be charged with desertion. Sentenced to death, they escape in an endurance airplane. As a couple of novice flyers, they make the most of comedy opportunities, finally crashing. The climax of the picture is best left unrevealed. It neatly caps the generous series of comedy situations.

In this picture the noted musician, Boris Morros, has used his wide knowledge of orchestration to augment the effect of that clever brand of comedy which Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy have for years made their own. "Laurel and Hardy are the master pantomimists of our day" Morros declared.

Mrs. Prudie Congdon, of Elkhart, is here the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Woodcox. She arrived Sunday when Mrs. Jessie Ruthuff and Mrs. Florence Richardson accompanied her here for the day. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kees were dinner guests in the Woodcox home Tuesday. Mrs. Harry Kees, Mrs. Etta Hull, and Mrs. Loa Curie, friends of Mrs. Congdon, are being entertained today by Mrs. Woodcox.

A bicycle collision on Sunday evening resulted in some cuts about the face of Billy and Nancy Monroe when the two youngsters were thrown from their bikes and Billy landed in the ditch near the Lamont Likes home. About 10 o'clock Nancy was sent to the Frank Warstler home to get her brother and was riding on the wrong side of the road when they met. Medical aid was summoned.

What we need in the United States is a week-end that doesn't keep the undertakers busy the week following. Indiana shows a decrease in accident fatalities because of a more sane speed.

INDEPENDENCE DAY

As time is measured in the span of making history, 166 years is but a short period. Yet it was just that long ago, on the Fourth of July, there was born a nation destined to take its place as a leader among other nations who trace their origin back to the early centuries. The United States of America came into being but 166 years ago, into a world that today seems a simple place of simple-hearted people.

At that time there was not a republic on either hemisphere, not a country in the world that assured its citizens freedom of using their tongues, a right to a voice in making laws that governed them or permission to worship according to the dictates of their conscience. There was not a nation in which the blood of those ruled was considered as pure as the blood of the rulers. But on July 4, 1776, the people of this new America burst forth to shake off the shackles of royal bondage, got together and signed a declaration saying they were going to be independent of any government but their own. They fought for the right as they saw it.

But this is July 4, 166 years later, when life is not simple and people do not lead simple lives as hard as they might try. The word independence today, for millions of people, is a word with no meaning, a dead challenge to liberty, a cover for propaganda, shrewd persuasion by dictator powers, promises of politicians. The ideal for which they fought in 1776 is being attacked in 1942 and it comes back to rest on our shoulders, the heritage of preserving the Declaration of Independence for 130 million of us. On the anniversary of its signing St. Joe celebrates with her sister towns and cities this document that created a nation of free people, home-loving, God-fearing people, proud of their name. We offer a prayer that peace might reign throughout the nation soon, that brotherly love will triumph, with a hope that the future may soon be blessed with peace, progress and prosperity. We celebrate the birth of the greatest nation that has ever been accorded a place on the map of the world.

A FINE IDEA

There comes to this desk numerous stories of various sections of the country where lack of hands to harvest crops, pick berries and cherries and dig sugar beets, has caused consternation among the farmers and has led to pleas from the agriculture centers to help save food. In Michigan this war emergency has found a town of foresighted and patriotic citizens to give us a fine example of civilians coming to the aid of farmers. This shortage of manpower on farms resulted in the stores of Vassar, Michigan remaining open until 10 P. M. each Wednesday and closing down on Thursday afternoons, starting the second of July, in order that the business men of the town can offer free service to those farmers in the community who need help. They figure that through Labor Day there will be 200 manhours a week turned to the cultivation of crops. This emergency isn't severe just around Vassar, Michigan, but can be found as existing throughout the country. This idea used in this town is one that might be interesting to other communities and is surely an ingenious way for civilians to help soldiers carry the load.

USE CARE HERE

The time of pests is at hand. The flight of mosquito and fly is approaching its seasons high and such caution is necessary to prepare against the invasion by carefully screening windows and doors during the summer months. There have been many sorts of preparations on the market to keep the pests away and numerous poisons to eradicate them when they do make inroads against us. But in the use of these poisons we must always use special care in keeping them away from the prying hands of children. There is a lot of information regarding the amount of disease spread by flies who breed in filth. Refuse and garbage should be burned if at all possible and if not burned should be placed in cans with tight-fitting lids. The mosquito and fly may be small in size but they can start an epidemic that might sweep a continent.

NEWVILLE RESIDENT FOUND DEAD ON COUCH

Frank Snellbaker, 70, was found dead Monday evening at his home in Newville, apparently the victim of a heart attack. The body was discovered by a relative, Lavon Richmond, of near Newville.

Mr. Richmond investigated upon learning that the elderly man, who lived alone, had not been seen by neighbors since Saturday night. He found the body lying fully clothed on a couch in the house. Dr. R. A. Nason, of Garrett, DeKalb County Coroner, said the death probably occurred sometime Saturday night and was caused by coronary heart disease. He said putrefaction had set in. A tub of water in a back room led to the belief that Mr. Snellbaker was preparing to bathe when he was stricken.

The deceased formerly resided in Butler and Swanton, O. His wife, Rosa Hatch Snellbaker, died in 1934. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Viola Harter, of Newville and Mrs. Hester Price of Toledo, O.; one son, Don Snellbaker, of Newville, and a sister, Mrs. Nora Cook, of Butler. Another son, Leonard, died two years ago.

Graveside services were conducted Tuesday at 1 o'clock, with burial in Newville Cemetery.

"Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness"

AGAIN the immortal phrases of the Declaration of Independence are ringing throughout the land, as fresh in meaning as the day they were penned, 166 years ago. Today they ring not alone for America but for the whole world. The bowed head in Malaya, cringing before a cruel brown master; the slave people of France, of Norway, of Greece—all may take heart! For the blue-print of world freedom which was written on the North Atlantic by the leaders of two great free peoples is in working process now.

And so, with a slave-weary world suddenly grown conscious of their eventual deliverance from bondage, this 4th of July is a dedication to the future rather than a salute to the past. It marks the re-birth of the Spirit of '76—it is a call to all free men to accept the stern responsibilities and dangers which lie in the path of victory.

The explosion of the firecracker is lost in the roar of the 8-inch gun and the demolition bomb. We lay aside for the present the noise-makers of other and happier Fourths and settle down grimly to the task of building the fabric upon which shall rest a world that is free.

General maximum price regulation bulletin No. 2 can now be obtained by anyone interested, as long as the present supply lasts, by calling at the Chamber of Commerce at Auburn. Mr. Zimmerman is also advising all merchants to be sure that their ceiling price lists are on file with the county board not later than July 1, and also that holders of sugar cards can make a two weeks purchase of sugar should they care to do so, thus saving trips to the grocery where they are driving.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Our army spells and pronounces it ponton, not "pontoon", as you do. Ponton bridges cost all the way from $15,000 to $700,000. The smaller bridge using individual metal pontons is pictured here. The largest ponton bridge is 1,080 feet long and is made of rubber instead of aluminum.

One small bridge has a weight capacity of 25 tons, using about 2,000 individual metal pontons. The smallest is used only to take troops over smaller streams. But whether our army uses the smaller or largest ponton, our engineers need plenty of them. If you and every American invests at least 10 per cent of income in War Bonds every pay day we can supply our fighting forces with these essentials to a victorious war.

HOOSIER HOME FRONT

INTERESTING HOME FRONT NEWS IN INDIANA

Indiana is really going to the filling stations with its scrap rubber. Since the President issued a call for a short and intensive two-week drive to collect scrap rubber. Hoosiers have shown conspicuous patriotism.

For instance: One farmer in a southern Indiana county collected 10,000 pounds from neighboring farms in the first two days of the drive; a Logansport filling station collected 4800 pounds in the same length of time; two service stations in Indianapolis collected four tons each in 48 hours and one at Winchester collected 20,000 pounds the first day of the drive.

At Lake Village a truck driver reported that he had already collected 20,000 pounds and had 20,000 more pounds in sight.

The committee in charge has reported to Washington that the response and the production of the drive "have far exceeded our expectations."

You may look for a brand new campaign to begin probably next month. Your governmen then will ask you to replace the loss of fats and oils from the Far East. There is a ready way to replace this loss—to recover and save an estimated half billion pounds of cooking fats now wasted every year.

From the fats will be made glycerine. Glycerine helps make the military explosives used by our armed forces and those of our allies. Glycerine is important in the recoil mechanism of our weapons and to the instruments which guide planes and ships on their war time courses.

We have taken in our belts, we have tightened our economy so that almost nothing which might be useful in war is wasted on the non-essentials of ordinary living. We also are fighting another sort of waste which we can afford as little as we can afford waste of materials. We are fighting the waste of what we call "manpower" but which actually embraces almost everyone—man or woman or adolescent child—in the U. S. A.

The Manpower Mobilization Program, with its aim of seeing that everyone has a job and that each is doing the job for which he or she is best fitted, is one attack on the problem of manpower waste. Another line of attack has been stressed recently in messages from the President himself and from Paul V. McNutt, Director of the Office of Defense Health and Welfare Services and Chairman of the War Manpower Commission. This line of attack hits at the waste of industrial manpower caused by ill health.

Ill health is an enemy on the production front fully as much as on the field of battle. The Japanese on Bataan were aided by malarial fevers which fought for them against our troups in the steaming jungles of that peninsula. The Japs and the Nazis are aided by the disease and illness which fights on their side in the war production centers of America.

But the compulsion to remain fit extends beyond the factory front,—it is a compulsion laid upon all of us. Indifferent health means indifferent morale, and indifferent morale is an invitation to defeat. The weapons with which ill health is fought on the Home Front are weapons known to every housewife—proper food, proper exercise, proper rest.

On the industrial front the problem is complicated by other factors. Several weeks before Mr. McNutt transmitted the president's message on health and morale to some 8,500 key executives in war production plants, the six government officials most directly concerned with increasing our output for war appealed to war production drive committees in more than 900 plants to fight sickness and accidents. Their joint statement pointed out that sickness and injury lost 6,000,000 work days every month — work days which might otherwise have brought victory over the axis that much nearer. And it pointed out the need for active public health departments in every community, with enough doctors, nurses, and hospital beds to care for workers and their families.

The "Old Oaken Bucket" may be on its way back. A WPB order encourages the manufacture of wooden pails and tubs to save metal....We'll have plenty of electric light bulbs but they'll be made with substitutes for scarce war materials....The Office of Defense Transportation has brot long distance bus operations under war time restrictions, forbidding more than one round-trip a day over routes where the average load is less than 40 per cent of capacity...A 24-inch pipe line from Long View, Texas to Salem, Ill., a distance of 550 miles, is being built to carry petroleum products, including scarce fuel oil, to the East Coast. Cast iron will be used instead of steel wherever possible..WPB is permitting continued production of baby carriages but they must contain none of the scarcest metals and only a bare minmum of iron and steel....The answer, probably, is wood.

Your CONGRESS and YOU!

NEWS FROM THE OFFICE OF GEORGE W. GILLIE

Decisions vital to millions of American families have been made. An entirely new basis for classifying men for military service has been established which affects the lives of all men from 18 to 44 years of age. Congress, in passing the allotment pay bill, recommended a new system governing the order in which married men are to be drafted. While not binding on local boards, these recommendations are of importance to every American family with men in the fighting age group.

In the past, any man who could prove that he had persons financially dependent upon him for support was deferred from service. This meant deferment for a large number of single men with dependent parents, sisters, brothers, uncles, etc.

In the future, dependency no longer is to be the only test for deferment of a family man. For the immediate future, heads of families may be deferred as a group regardless of their financial status. But by November 1, when the Army puts the allotment pay system into effect, many single men with dependent relatives are to be drafted. When it becomes necessary to draft married men, a new system governing the order in which they will be called has been adopted. Here is the situation facing men in various groups.

An unmarried man with no dependents—This man is almost certain to be called within the next few months. Most of these men including those in the 36 to 44 age group, will be taken in draft calls of July, August and September.

Unmarried man with dependents—Up to now, this man has been deferred unless he had an independent income adequate to care for dependent relatives. As soon as the allotment pay plan is put into effect, he is to be eligible for immediate induction. Monthly allowances, ranging up to $37 for one parent, will be paid to his dependents.

Married man without children—This man will remain in class 3-A and be deferred from service until all or substantially all unmarried men are called for service. The present needs of the Army and Navy are not expected to require the drafting of married men for eight or nine months—probably not until February.

A married man whose wife is working—This man is to be deferred until all single men have been called. Under the new plan, the wife's ability to provide for her own support is not to be the controlling factor. However, when circumstances require that married men be drafted, those whose wives are financially independent will be called ahead of those whose wives are financially dependent.

A married man since this country entered the war—No man who has married on or after December 8, 1941, will be deferred because of his family. This applies also to men who were married before the attack on Pearl Harbor, at a time when they were about to be drafted.

A married man with children—This man will not be called for induction until the supply of single men and married men without children has been exhausted. Here again, when the local board begins to tap this group, the financial test will be applied to determine which men are to be called and which are to be deferred. The allotment plan provides $12 monthly for the first child and $10 for each additional child in addition to the $50 for the wife.

A married man in war work—Married men already are being classified as 3-B if they are working in war industries. A married man in this classification will not be taken until substantially all married men not working in war industries have been taken. Chances of most men in this category ever being drafted are slight.

Up to now, a number of draft boards have classified some men with dependents in A-1 and ordered them inducted. Other boards have leaned backwards to protect the family unit. In part, these differences may have been dictated by variations in the supply of men without dependents and by quotas given the boards to fill.

Under the new plan, Selective Service headquarters is prepared to prevent a local board from reclassifying any married men until substantially all unmarried men with dependents in all board areas have been inducted. Men with childern are not to be taken until all eligible married men without children have been called. Draft boards have authority to appeal and obtain readjustments of their quotas.

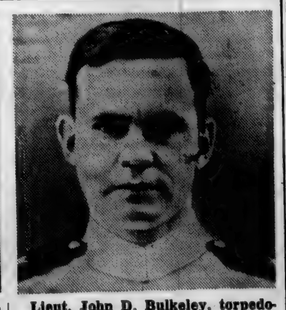
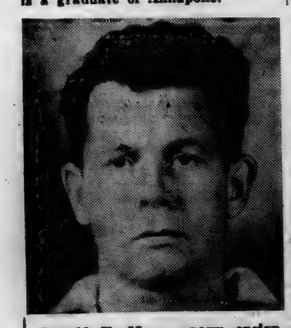
ROLL OF HONOR
War Heroes Decorated

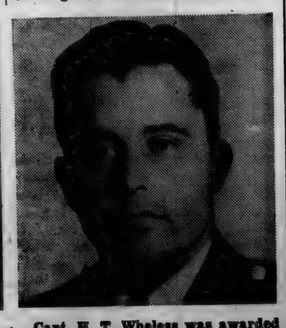
One of the greatest heroes of the present war is Lieut. Edward H. O'Hare, who received the nation's highest military award, the Congressional Medal of Honor, when singlehanded he shot down five Japanese bombers and damaged another in one aerial encounter off the Gilbert islands. O'Hare was decorated at the White House while a guest of President Roosevelt. He is a graduate of Annapolis.



Lieut. John D. Bulkeley, torpedoboat hero responsible for the destruction of at least seven Japanese ships, has been commended by ranking naval officials for "executing his mission successfully." Bulkeley was in charge of a motor torpedo boat that entered Binanga bay, Philippine islands, and torpedoed an enemy vessel of 5,000 tons. His mosquito boat was under the fire of machine guns and shore batteries.



Donald F. Mason, navy ensign, was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and Silver Star for sinking two submarines in the Atlantic area. His first sinking came when he dropped depth bombs on a submerged submarine. He reported the sinking with his famous message: "Sighted sub, sank same." Several weeks later he sighted another sub on the surface and destroyed it with depth charges. He has been in the navy since 1938.



Capt. H. T. Wheless was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for bravery in the western Pacific. The army Flying Fortress under command of Wheless, became separated from its combat force and fought a running battle with 18 Jap pursuit planes for 75 miles, shooting down 11 of them, outdistancing the remainder, and landing safely although the plane was almost out of control. Two of the plane's engines were gone.

Returns To California

Miss Margaret Goodwin, who has been in Clevéland with her sister, Helen, since January, spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Goodwin, leaving Monday evening for Los Angeles, California.

RETURNS TO INDIANA FROM EAST COAST

Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Girardot and daughter, of Waynedale, spent Sunday in the home of Mrs. Girardot's sister, Mrs. Roy Bowser.

The "Girardots" returned Sunday morning from Lynn, Massachusetts, where Mr. Girardot, a G. E. executive has been taking special training there in the Super Charger—for the past four months. They are very glad to be in the Middle West again away from the constant defense vigilance on the East Coast.

Mrs. Girardot and daughter were on the beach just four miles in from the sinking of the submarine there last week. Within an hour after they left the beach it was swarming with soldiers on patrol for survivors of the submarine, who might try to swim to shore.

Partial blackouts are enforved every night there and total blackouts three nights a week.

In spite of the fact that they will miss all this war activity they are glad to be home and Mr. Girardot will begin his work in the Super Charger in Fort Wayne this week.

JULY 4TH

AMERICA and the Four Freedoms

Today—166 years after the signing of the Declaration of Independence—America is warring against tyrants who would rule the world's free people by force and oppression. American soldiers are fighting to bring the four freedoms to peace-loving nations in all parts of the globe. They are fighting for freedom of speech, freedom of worship, freedom from want and freedom from fear.

Somewhere in the Icelandic outpost of freedom, two soldiers of the AEF are donning their arctic uniforms, getting ready for guard duty.

The scene changes to a land thousands of miles to the south. Here, in Puerto Rico, a coast artillery rifleman takes his position in one of the old Spanish sentry posts.

Eternal vigilance is the price of victory—and a part of every American soldier's training. Even as a great convoy headed into an Australian port, these American doughboys stayed next to their anti-aircraft guns until the voyage ended.

This U. S. trooper, a seasoned jungle fighter, stands at his post in the dense foliage of a Dutch Guiana jungle. With millions of other Americans, he is more than willing to help spread the four freedoms to the four corners of the globe.

SPENCERVILLE WIFE ASKS FOR 2-YEAR SEPARATION

Her husband falsely accused her of associating with other men. Nelly Burns alleges in filing in the DeKalb Circuit Court a cross-complaint for a limited separation for two years from Clarence R. Burns, a railroad employe living at Spencerville.

Mrs. Burns also claims that her husband, whose age is 20 years, was himself guilty of misconduct. She adds that he nagged her and deserted her without means of support. She claims that she worked to provide for herself, earning $20 a week; that her husband put a chattel mortgage of $200 on some of their household goods in order to pay for damage to an automobile and that he sold this furniture to pay the mortgage. She asks that she be adjudged the owner of the remainder of the furniture.

The couple married Dec. 10, 1939, and parted last April 5. In the divorce complaint that Burns filed recently, he charged that his wife cursed him and told him she intended to leave and not return and that he should get a divorce.

Late in the afternoon the guests departed for their homes hoping to meet again next year.

KIMES—YOUNG

Gerald Glenn Kimes and Betty Jane Young, of Spencerville, Ind., were united in marriage June 27, at 9:15 P. M. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kimes, parents of the bridegroom. Rev. L. B. Sharp read the single ring ceremony receiving their mutual vows of holy marriage.

The bride wore a lovely navy blue dress trimmed in white with a beautiful corsage of sweet peas. Refreshments of cake and ice cream were served to the guests. They will make their home at Spencerville.

Those present at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Kimes and two daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kimes, Jr., Mrs. Richard Kimes, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hursh and two children, Mrs. Kathryn McEwen and daughter, of Washington, D. C., Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kimes, Sr., Bernard and Blaine Kimes.

OLD SCHOOL REUNION IS HELD WITH H. G. HURSH CHOSEN AS PRESIDENT

The twenty-ninth annual session of the Spencerville School Reunion was held in the school building on Sunday, June 28. A fair sized attendance of old reunion-ers came with baskets filled with a bountiful dinner, that was enjoyed with the usual old time merriment. The spirit of the occasion was marked by the poem inserted in the mailed invitations, that read as follows:

We are thankful for our glorious land
And the principles for which it stands.
We love our homes, churches and schools,
Old friendships true and Golden Rule.

The devotional hour and the business session that always follows the dinner hour, was open by the president, Harry G. Hursh, in a welcome talk on the Twelve Periods of Life, emphasizing the school period as the most interesting, vital and memorial of all the other periods of life.

Many interesting reminiscences of old school days were brought back in story by the older school teachers present, showing the differences of school days of the three R's in contrast to the modern teaching methods of the present time.

Dr. Carey, of Ft. Wayne, announced that the historical book that he has been writing from the gathered material on Spencerville historical data, was about ready to be printed and made ready for distribution. Dr. Carey has spent many years on the work of compiling this data. The reunion voted a sum of money from the treasury to help in the publication of this work.

The business session showed that the membership believed that the regular session should be held on next year as usual, unless the war regulations make such meeting impossible. The following officers were elected for the coming year: president, Harry Hursh; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Audrey Wade.

The next reunion will look for the return of its student body at the same time to convene in the spirit of the following poem:

Wooded meadows and inviting fields,
Stupendous industries of mountainous yields,
Colleges and universities of rich endow,
What other nation can make such a bow?—America.

ST. JOE ON THE FOURTH

Indications are for a quiet and sane Fourth, with all of our business houses open for business as Saturday is the day for trading by most of our rural folk.

A ball game will be played about 3 o'clock by older ball players and the young fellows that are left, and the public will be welcomed to see this game at the school diamond.

Remember the free moving pictures in the evening.

One thing about love at first sight, it saves a lot of time.

John Knight says that in his grandfather's day they didn't handcuff prisoners but merely cut off their pants buttons.

We may have our minds occupied with national affairs, but it will never prevent us from asking the other fellow if it is warm enough for him.

"They talk about scarcities all the time," sighs Clifford Billow, "but no one has mentioned that we have reached the last ton of coal in old Mother Earth."

With government trying to keep the little fellow above water, and big business in line, they sort of forgot to take into consideration the fellow who didn't have any business at all.

It doesn't matter how much money is spent for equipment, it looks as though no nation is ever really ready for war.

A St. Joe man was overheard to say that even Hitler would be stumped with our complicated political system.

"Gimmie" is almost a word of a forgotten tongue. Today they just say nothing and take it.

Supplies of consumer goods shrink. Wages continue to increase. The combined efforts of the Administration and Congress have failed to lower living costs.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

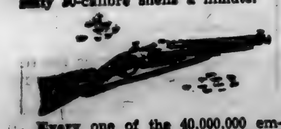
The Garand semi-automatic rifle, which is the standard issue today for the U. S. army, is superior to the old Springfield rifle in many respects. We literally need millions of these fast shooting powerful rifles to equip our army. They cost $85 each and are being manufactured at the rate of one a minute. They fire sixty 30-calibre shells a minute.



Every one of the 40,000,000 employed persons in America could easily buy one of these rifles for the army. Not that we need that many, but the reserve could go into shells and other much needed supplies. Buy more and more War Bonds and top the quota in your county by investing at least ten percent of your income every pay day.

The U. S. used about 82 pounds of fats and oils per person last year.

The family can opener is due for a rest; WPB has ordered that fewer tin cans be made from now on, and in larger sizes, to save critical metals.

What a grand break for St. Joe boys with future wives who can change tires, help build boats and do plumbing.

If folks have to give up vacations this summer you won't be getting post cards during a heat wave that state "we are sleeping under blankets every night."

Robber trees aren't the only things that die after being bled. There isn't much life left in taxpayers, either.

There will be solutions to the oi land rubber problems in the due course of time. The people are patient and their patience will likely be rewarded before they expect it.

No restrictions on individual railroad or bus travel now exists, the Office of Defense Transportation advises us. It couples this information with reminders and pointed hints that "planning a vacation close to home this year will not only relieve public transportation facilities this summer but will be a patriotic gesture."

Freighters of the sky are increasing the volume of their business. Before the war is over heavy freight will be shipped around the world through the skies. It is being done right now on a large scale in carrying on the war.

Up to date there seems to have been no real attempt to meet the rubber shortage despite the fact that the biggest and most dependable industries in the country have never ceased claiming that they could manufacture all the synthetic rubber that the country needs for military and civilian purposes. A handful of Adminstration officials, including the Secretary of Commerce, supported the claims of the industrialist in the beginning, but for some reason these officials have been very quiet upon this subject for several weeks.

HIKING

In the good old summer time when the wheels of the country are reduced in revolutions, there will be more folks around St. Joe who will be attracted to hiking. Those who formerly rode over hill and in dale who stepped on the gas to climb a mountain, who accelerated speed to reach streams and swimming pools, will many take to hiking this year. There is enjoyment to be had from this healthful recreation if undertaken sensibly by giving proper attention to the feet before the jaunt. An experienced walker knows better than to hike in toeless, high-heeled pumps, patent leather strapped slippers. They wouldn't wear brand new shoes and will not wear hosiery that is too short or garters that are too tight. A Seasoned hiker knows how to stop and rest each hour for about ten minutes to keep the rest of the trip a pleasure and not an effort. Always watch corns and blisters that come on your feet if you expect to do much in the walking line.

FOLK SONGS

In hearing some of the old time favorites brought to life by modern dance bands, a News subscriber asked why we can't seem to have songs that will live from generation to generation as American folk songs, as other countries pass theirs on through their children's children down through the centuries. We do a lot of reviving of old tunes and have sectional songs typical of certain parts of our country, we still have nothing really national. The negro race has a rich store of folk songs but they belong solely to them and are not ours. A news item says that the folk songs of the twentieth century will be 'swing music' which is really something to tap your feet about! The day may come when you gather grandchildren round the knee and hum hey nonny nonny with a hot cha cha to them and with that 'Old Kentucky Home' and 'Beautiful Ohio' and 'Carry Me Back to Old Virginny' hadn't been sectional songs.

GET THE PROOF

In a recent conversation several Spencerville people admitted that they couldn't prove they had been born if producing a birth certificate was the necessary evidence. This is not a rare instance as many of us have found out when due to government requirements we must show a birth certificate to secure certain positions. Most of us have taken our birth for granted and not considered seeking official proof. We may have the blood of 'landed gentry' flowing in our veins, may have come from super deluxe stock whose ancestry has made us proud and boastful but just try and get a national defense job without a birth certificate even if you are a descendent of the 'first families.' Maybe you had better get out the family bible and begin to figure about where to send for the necessary data. It wouldn't hurt to have 'them thar papers' on hand.

NOT SO SPECIAL

The curtailment of special delivery service won't affect us in this section as in large cities where they might have two and three milk deliveries a day, where stores deliver merchandise as a special call, where extra service is given in almost every branch of business at little or no extra cost. We have been asked to try and remember what we want at the store so that one trip will complete the shopping for the day. In cities where large stores had delivery service once or more each day, they have reduced this to perhaps every other day. It looks as though we can help in this business of conservation by simply using our heads a little better. Make out lists, give more thought to shopping, consider the other fellow and thus with little effort on our part we are doing our country a favor, and a great saving to the local merchant as well.

THE OLD WAY

Often you hear a St. Joe person remark about how someone has modernized certain old homes in town and in the country and made over old residences into streamlined houses with all the present day fixings. But there is now the rage for taking modern homes and changing them into ancient looking domiciles, quaint airs and primitive styles to a piece that was originally meant to be very up-to-date and "last word." With our taking to horses again we are leaning a bit to small dormers, stables and narrow porches. They say that in some cases folks have chosen to light with kerosene lamps, have no phone or water pump. There is probably another school of thought on this seeking of the pioneering life, of going on foot or hoseback for a doctor who lived miles distant, of winding a windlass or breaking ice to get your bucket of water, of choosing to stoke a wood-burning cook stove instead of perhaps an instants turning of a button on an electric range. Folks who have known no other way but the 'hard way' are bound to wonder.

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE

NEWS FROM COUNTY AGENT

ROTATE PASTURE FIELDS

One of Indiana dairyman's best methods for pushing milk production up and pulling costs down is a system of rotation pastures. Many Indiana dairymen have changed their cropping plan and even rearranged their fences to provide rotation dairy pastures.

Several different corps are needed. Good dairy pastures from spring to late fall can be had by using winter rye or barley, sweet clover, oats, sudan grass, and clover mixture including lespedeza for the southern part of the state.

Fertilizing pastures is important for two reasons. Cows eat more grass and it does them more good, and the pasture istelf is more productive.

Avoid both over-grazing and under-grazing. Start grazing when the grass is four to six inches high, and take the cows off when the grass begins to get short. Sudan grass should be allowed to get 12 inches high before grazing.

PAVEMENTS BLOW UP

The extreme heat of the week is accountable for a number of blow-ups in the cement pavements over the state. Cream which was not cooled immediately after separation and which was not kept cool all the time it remained on the farm has "three strikes" on it by the time it reaches the butter-making plant. If there is one thing the butter maker has learned over the years it is that the best butter is invariably the product of properly cooled cream on the farm.

Experiments at the dairy department of Purdue University show that through "temperature control" the farmer is enabled to hold the quality of his cream as many as three days and collect a premium price over the next grade product. The creamery striving to manufacture quality butter is glad to pay the premium for cream kept well-cooled on the farm and delivered clean and fresh.

Cold temperatures will not prevent bacterial growth, unless the cream is cooled immediately. Bacteria start their work of destruction in the warm milk and cream. Air cooling, even in cold weather, is too slow to retard bacterial growth. If milk is allowed to stand before it is strained and separated, the damage will be done. Or if the cream is allowed to stand before being put in the cooler, another opportunity will be made for bacterial growth. Water cools cream a great deal faster than the coldest air. A cold water cooling tank will quickly bring down the temperature of warm cream. It will slow down bacteria so that their rate of multiplication will be kept at a minimum.

An efficient cooling tank can be made on the farm from an old barrel. Placed between the pump and the watering trough, with an inlet and outlet pipe, cold water can be kept flowing. Cream cooled in this way as soon as it is separated will have a low bacterial count. If all the other steps necessary to the production of quality cream have been observed, and if the cream is marketed every two or three days, it will grade No. 1 and be bought on quality.

The Flower Of Liberty

By Oliver Wendell Holmes

When those fleeting flaming glories
Were displayed across the sky
In remembrance of the stories
Of brave men in days gone by,
Then we thought of deeds of daring
And of clear and steadfast minds
That had set the country faring
Safe through the tempestuous winds.

Then we pondered on the toiling
And the watches of the night;
Of the suffering and despoiling
Braved in reverence of the right.
And each memory we cherish
Shall not fade away and die,
Shall not be allowed to perish
Like a rocket in the sky.

NEWS FROM THE OFFICE OF GEORGE W. GILLIE

A story of vital concern to the corn and wheat farmers of Indiana and the Middle West has been unfolding before the Gillette Committee of the Senate, investigating the manufacture of synthetic rubber from surplus farm products. It is a story which deserves front-page headlines, a story of how the Administration, confronted with a golden opportunity to accomplish something of genuine benefit to agriculture, is muffing the chance and preparing to sell out to the great oil combines.

With the Japanese having wiped out our source of raw rubber in the East Indies, the Gillette Committee has set about the task of finding a substitute source for at least 700,000 tons of rubber a year, which the Government estimates as our minimum need. The answer, of course, is synthetic rubber.

Synthetic rubber of good quality can be produced rather simply from a chemical substance known as butadiene, which in turn can be derived from two sources—from high proof alcohol, made from corn, wheat and other grains, and from petroleum products. The question therefore arises—shall our future source of synthetic rubber be surplus farm products or shall it be petroleum? Whatever source is chosen now will probably become a permanent source. Thus, a clash between agriculture and petroleum has developed.

THE PRODUCTION of rubber from surplus farm products—from corn and wheat and rye, even from potatoes and sorghums—is not a mere scientist's dream. A procession of chemists has demonstrated to the Gillette Committee, without exception and without dispute, that it can be done. It is a proven process, a practical reality. In actual tests, using corn and wheat, our chemists have been able to produce between six and seven pounds of rubber per bushel of grain.

Committee witnesses have testified that plants for the production of rubber can be established throughout the Middle West at a cost of approximately $20,000,000 for a capacity of each 100,000 tons of rubber per year. And they can be placed in operation within six months. Thus, the Government program of 700,000 tons a year would involve an initial investment of approximately $140,000,000.

The production of rubber from petroleum products, on the other hand, is a much costlier and slower process. The initial investment would be considerably larger, and it would take at least four times as long to get such processing into operation.

IN THE FACE of these facts—in this controversy between agriculture and the petroleum interests—what do you suppose the Government is doing? The Government, or rather the New Deal bureaucrats in charge of the Government, has taken a position in support of the oil combines and in direct opposition to the farmers of America. It has decided to allocate $650,000,000 for the construction of synthetic rubber plants and every dollar, mark this carefully, is being allocated to the petroleum industry. Agriculture is being cut off without a nickle.

These millions are being turned over to the country's largest oil companies—to Eastern millionaires—and what will the Government get in return? It will get rubber, yes, but how soon? Conservative estimates indicate that it will take at least two years to get these plants into operation. Two long years of waiting for rubber that our planes, tanks and armored units need today. At least three or four years before rubber is available for civilian use, in the form of tires for defense workers, farmers and others, who even now are threatened with gasoline rationing as a rubber conservation measure.

After the war, which will end, God willing, sooner or later, these Government-financed plants will be owned and controlled by the great oil companies, and their profits will flow into the pockets of a selfish group of millionaires.

THIS, THEN, is the bill of goods that the oil barons have sold to a gullible Government. This is the program which the lobbyists and dollar-a-year men of the great oil companies are putting over at the expense of the people, and of American farmers in particular.

Either the Government is asleep at the switch, or this Administration has forsaken the farmers completely and just isn't interested in providing a constructive, permanent outlet for surplus grains and developing a sound economy for agriculture, independent of Government subsidies.

From the standpoint of cost of production, of speed in acquiring supplies of much-needed rubber, of accomplishing the greatest good for the greatest number, and from the standpoint of a fair and equitable solution to our agricultural problems, the Gillette Committee advocates the immediate use of surplus farm products—rather than petroleum—as the speediest, most economic and most practical source of synthetic rubber.

VOL. LVII (57 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JULY 9, 1942 NUMBER 28

TAX BOARD APPROVES ASSESSMENTS

During its annual session of 30 days, which ended Tuesday the DeKalb County Board of Review gave its approval to 12,000 assessments, 2,016 mortgage exemptions and 80 soldiers' exemptions.

An interesting revelation is the granting of 11 Civil War widows' exemptions. These are all elderly women, the oldest being 92. The board has also approved applications for exemptions filed by 9 other war widows.

The law provides that $1,000 exemptions will be granted to war veterans and their widows. However, a veteran must be at least 62 years old or have at least 10 per cent service-connected disability as shown by the records of the government and no exemption is granted if the soldier or widow owns property of $5,000 or more taxable value.

The soldiers' and widows' exemptions approved in each taxing unit of the county follows: Auburn, 19 Spanish War and 9 World War; Garrett; 7 Spanish War and 6 World War; Butler city, 2 Spanish War and 3 World War; Waterloo, 6 Spanish War and 4 World War; Wilmington township, 1 Spanish War; Newville township, 2 World War; Stafford, 2 Spanish War; Richland, 2 Spanish War and 1 World War; Butler township, 1 World War; Smithfield township and Ashley, 2 World War and 1 Spanish War; Grant township, 1 Spanish War; Concord township, 2 Spanish War and 1 World War; Franklin township, 3 of each war; and Fairfield township, 3 Spanish war.

The distribution of mortgage exemptions by taxing units follows: Auburn, 442; Garrett, 338; Butler city, 133; Waterloo, 60; Richland township, 66; Keyser, 62; Altona, 20; Fairfield, 106; Concord township and St. Joe, 59; Union township, 79; Wilmington, 97; Newville, 31; Troy, 41; Stafford, 21; Jackson, 110; Spencer township and Spencerville, 65; Butler township, 59; Smithfield township and Ashley, 99; Grant township, 43; and Franklin township, 85.

TO WED SUNDAY

The wedding of Miss Josephine Fisher, to Corp. Don E. Bohl, of Fort Wayne, now stationed at Fort Knox, Ky., will take place at 4 o'clock next Sunday afternoon at the home of the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Fisher, Spencerville. Miss Fisher is a registered nurse and now is employed at the Huntington county hospital at Huntington. She served as DeKalb County Red Cross Nurse for about a year, leaving that position early this spring. Corporal Bohl was with the General Electric company at Fort Wayne prior to entering the service.

426 YOUTHS OF 18-19 YEARS WERE REGISTERED

The number of youths 18 and 19 years old in DeKalb County is not as great as anticipated figures reported by the selective service board Wednesday disclose.

Only 426 boys of these ages registered Tuesday, as against an estimated 900. The figures for each registration place follow: Auburn, 187; Garrett, 115; St. Joe, 48; Butler, 55; Waterloo, 50; and Ashley, 21. Some additions will be made to the list when reports are received of registrations of DeKalb County boys in other counties.

The registration was in charge of the American Legion. The draft board will meet July 20 to assign serial numbers to the cards. There is at the present time no legislation to conscript youths less than 20 years old for military service, but those who signed up Tuesday will be subject to call as they reach the age of 20.

The Frank Akins residence is being painted this week.

The wedding of Everett Mavis Jr., of Auburn, and Miss Rita Johnson, of Garrett, took place last Saturday. Since entering the armed service Sergeant Mavis has been stationed at Camp Shelby, Miss., for the last 15 months, but will enter officers' training camp at Camp Davis, N. C., next week. The couple will return to Auburn some time this week from a short wedding trip.

CANNING FACTORY BUSINESS INCREASES

One of the most busy places in town is the canning factory operated by Art Guilford and wife. Since its opening for this season which was about two weeks ago, the increase in green peas and string beans has been noticed daily.

New customers, coming for at least 20 miles distance, are being received daily, and together with an entire new territory now being served, namely Grabill and its surrounding territory, due to that plant being out of operation, will soon tax the capacity of the local factory, then other help will be added to continue steady operation.

Once a customer of our St. Joe plant, you will always be a regular canning customer. Because of the years experience of the Guilfords they are able to handle any canning need and in the most satisfactory manner. They are noted for their cleanliness in all their canning, and this is one great factor in complete satisfaction of customers.

TWELVE REJECTED FOR ARMY SERVICE

Of the group of DeKalb county men who went to Toledo, Ohio, last Thursday for examination by army doctors, twelve were rejected and were sent home, according to word received by the county selective service board.

The list follows:

Delta O. Inlow, St. Joe.
Lawrence Grace, Auburn.
Derrill Murphy, Hicksville.
Roy Rhodes, Auburn.
Kenneth V. Boszor, Hudson.
Robert P, Hall, Altona.
Wm. Clyde Deam, Corunna.
John D. Wagner, Garrett.
Ivan M. Getts, Ashley.
Donald E. Morrow, Butler.
Edward P. Schuller, Waterloo.
Wallace S. Hersh, Auburn.
Paul G. Parker, Waterloo,
Arthur W. Weimer, Garrett, and Wayne B. DeLong and Donald J. Grear, of Auburn, chose to enter the army at once and were sent to Camp Perry, Ohio. The others accepted, numbering 19, were sent home on about 14 days' furlough. Paul R. Koch, R. 1, St. Joe, who was the leader for the trip to Toledo, was appointed acting corporal in charge of men returning home and he also will be in command when the group leaves for service in the army. They will be sent to Camp Perry.

TO IMPROVE STREETS OF ST. JOE SOON

The town board is planning work on several of our streets in the near future. They will begin to repair Jefferson street from the Methodist Church on west to Road 1; north school or fifth street to the car house; and north third street to the B. & O. depot. Material and finance are the two important parts of an improvement program and the board has approximately $800 that can be used to make our streets more permanent.

The road to the cemetery is also on schedule for later improvement.

Posts are being installed at the parking lot in order to keep the cars from being driven over the lawn.

Hawkins Named Coroner

The County Commissioners at their session Tuesday appointed Calvin C. Hawkins of Auburn as coroner succeeding Dr. R. A. Nason of Garrett, who is now in the medical corps of the army.

GETS LETTER FROM BROTHER IN AUSTRALIA

Mrs. William Strouse received a letter from her brother, Francis Sellon, who is well known here among the younger folks as he worked in the Strouse Foods plant for some time. The letter was received this week and is as follows:

Australia, June 1, '42.

Dear Sis:

Just a line to let you know that I am feeling fine and dandy. I think this Australia climate must agree wih me. Sorry that I haven't dropped you a line sooner but writing is like pulling a tooth.

I just received my first letter from you dated back Feb. 17th. You probably know that we get 20 per cent extra of our base pay for over-seas service. I read in the paper that we may get another raise. I make about $36 a month.

I went for a ride in a plane the other day and was good and sick too. Think the lieutenant was trying to turn the plane wrong side out. I'm going up again though if I get the chance.

I can't tell you very much about Australia except that it is very similar to the United States and the language is the same. Their money is of the English style. The people are kind and sociable. One of their cuss words is "bloody." I go into town about once a week.

Well I suppose it won't be long before summer fishing. I plan to go about a year from now.

Signing off,
With lotions of love,
Pvt. Francis Sellon-ASN-16043153, 370th. Material Squadron (Reduced) U. S. Army, A. P. O. 924, % Postmaster, San Francisco, Calif.

CHARLES HART WRITES HOME

Camp Davis, N. C.
June 28, 1942.

Dear Mother:

I guess I had better write today while I have a little time. We sure have been busy these past two weeks. We graduated the class of 214 and got 332 more to replace them the next day. I sure am glad this first week is over. These men have finally learned to march together.

This is the first I've been out here to the beach for two weeks. It sure seems nice to go swimming and lay on the beach in the sun. It makes the war seem miles away, although it is right here on our doorsteps. Oil floats upon the beach every now and then, and we know there has been another sinking. Several tankers have been sunk not far from here.

I'm writing this letter to let you know I've been promoted to First Lieutenant. Will you tell Ralph Sechler when you see him next time. At this rate I ought to be a captain by the time the war is over.

Write and tell me all the news.

"Bud" Charles Hart.

MORE JAP SLAPPERS

The Mann kiddies, Jack, Gene, Don and Betty, of Coburntown are doing their bit in taking a slap at those Japs with rubber tires and scrap.

Last week they sent 453 pounds of rubber along with the oil man, Mr. Roy Laub, of Butler. The youngsters will buy War Stamps with the proceeds to help fill their stamp books.

With all this search for rubber, it makes one hesitate to stretch his neck too much. Even the radio announcers say "if you think it's rubber send it in."

FLY PHILOSOPHY

There's two sides to every question, the wrong side and the right side, see? The wrong side of the fly paper for a fly, is always the right side to me. By the time the fly finds out his mistake, it's too late to change his mind, for when he pulls his front legs out, he's stuck with the two behind. It should make a difference to a fly, on which side he's going to light—and there's a lot of people that's got a black eye, for insisting their side was right. There's no percentage in wrecking your car, maintaining your right-of-way, there's no fun nursing a blackened eye, just to have the last word to say. So, take a lesson from the humble fly as he twists and pulls in the "goo," there's a right side to every question, but that side may be wrong for you.

—Gertrude Borthwick.

THE OLD GUARDS AGAINST YOUNG BLOODS

No, there were not fatalities in St. Joe over the Fourth, but by Monday we were beginning to wonder what had happened to the Old Guards, because they were crippling about, and complaining of being sore, and all because of playing ball on Saturday afternoon.

The Young Bloods gave them a real work out any way, but lost the game by 7 to 10. Spectators said that most of the Guards had that old spirit that made St. Joe famous about 40 years ago.

Sechler and Bleeks were the pitchers for the boys, with Stanley Garman as captain. and Reed and Davis catching. The Guards had three famous pitchers namely, Lew Gerig, Ted Lyons, a south paw and Monte Stratton Coburn, a one legger, and Howard Williams was behind the batter.

Mark Williams was manager as long as they led the score, and he had to be relieved in the third inning due to four charlies in his leg. He complained of having to play 10 men, of course that meant the Ump was against him, and Hap Hamman agreed because he was struck out both times up to bat, and he swears they were balls.

Donald Kinsey got the benefit of the jeers as he was the man in the center who called the ball.

Everett Collins came all the way from Fort Wayne to play.

The boys had plenty of fun as well as the rooters.

Bets were not available.

New Rationing Board

A new county rationing board was organized Tuesday afternoon, its members being Claude P. Fitch, John P. Hoff and Fred W. Knott, all of Auburn. The board elected Mr. Fitch as chairman. The appointments were made by Don E. Messenger, of Auburn, chairman of the county council of civilian defense. The three memberships on the board all became vacant last week, when John Zimmerman and E. A. Johnson, of Auburn, resigned and Herman L. Brown, of Auburn, was appointed executive secretary of the board.

FARM BUREAU MEETING

The Tri-Township Farm Bureau held their out door meeting at the home of Chas. Cook July 7 and was opened with prayer by Mr. F. Harding. A display of 4-H projects was shown. Doris Yeiser, the 4-H leader for Concord Twp. gave a few remarks concerning the work the girls had done. Mr. Trenary read several letters in regard to contests being held in the near future namely: play writers and program, cake and poultry poster contest. There will be awards given according to work done. Among the speakers were Forest Harding and C. E. Baker, County Agent. Brooks Trenary took charge of the program for the evening. Evelyn and Lavon Kline, of Spencerville, furnished several numbers on the accordion and saxophone, and the Trenary Sisters sang. A vote of thanks was given the program committee for their help. Ice cream and cake were served after which the meeting adjourned.

It takes 71 railroad trains each with a minimum of 20 cars to move an army division of about 15,000 men with their weapons and equipment. Since troops traveling by rail move at a rate of about 250 miles a day, it would take almost 1500 cars ten days to move the division across the U. S.

Three contracts for the construction of bridges on the state highway system were awarded during June. They were contracts for the construction on Road 13 over Turkey Creek in Syracuse; for the building of a bridge on Road 75 over Middlefort Creek in Carroll County; and a bridge on Road 120 over Pigeon River west of Howe in LaGrange County.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Keesler and daughter, Dawn, are spending a couple of weeks in Alabama with her parents. They are making their trip by bus.

An armored division may use up as much as 600 tons of amunition in a single day of fighting—an amount which, loaded into freight cars, would require a train of 17 cars.

Fred M. Scott, of Elkhart, who relieved Scudder Hollabaugh as agent at the Wabash a few weeks ago, will be transferred to Montepelier, Ohio. Operator Grace, of Blakesley, Ohio, has bid in Spencerville job and will move to Auburn and drive to work. No homes are available close to his work.

Another Democratic State Convention has met in Indianapolis, adopted another state platform dealing in generalities and selecting a ticket without a semblance of freedom of choice on the part of delegates. The same leaders of the Democratic party who voiced caustic criticism of the Republican State convention's harmonious session, went even farther to rule out the rank and file of the Democratic organization in its steam-rolling tactics.

A comparison of the platforms of the two major parties in Indiana will reveal to the voters specific pledges on the part of the Republican party, while, in contrast, the Democratic platform deals in high sounding phrases to lay at the feet of the Republican party blame for all governmental ills and claim credit for all good government during the past fifty years.

Democratic spellbinders sounding the keynote of their convention claimed credit for making it possible to reduce the state tax rate and to reduce appropriations in the 1941 General Assembly. Truth of the matter is that for ten long years Democratic administrations have piled up governmental costs while refusing to grant any measure of relief to an over burdened tax-paying public. The first Republican controlled Legislature since 1929 slashed more than five and one-half millions of dollars from appropriations, and the GOP-controlled state finance board reduced the state tax rate by one cent, effecting another savings of approximately $400,000.

It was a Republican Legislature that granted relief to retailers in payment of gross income taxes, removed the regulation of the alcoholic beverage industry from politics and recreated bi-partisan boards for management of state institutions, and enacted a merit system law for hiring of employes in those institutions.

These are specific acts of Republican government continuance of which is pledges in the Republican platform of 1942. Eliminate from the Democratic platform the condemnation of the Republican party and its elected officials and all that is left are listless promises.

RUBBER SALVAGE

In the state of Wisconsin a farmer who had fired his evaporator in his maple sugar camp, with old rubber tires which he used as a substitute for wood or coal since they made a hot but slow burning fire, came to his nearest filling station with a truckload of old tires that he had not used and offered them to the agent. As soon as he learned of his government's plea for old rubber he stopped firing his boiler and burned up the road to Victory.

This collection of scrap rubber has found such a response from the American people that there is little prospect of the drive falling below expectations. There is enthusiastic cooperation throughout the country and this means not only on the part of the public who bring in the discarded rubber products but the gas station operators as well. There isn't anyone in the Tri-Township who fails to realize the importance of this salvage campaign. We are not only doing our best in this drive for the sake of our country's need but we have a selfish motive as well. Reclaimed rubber means tire retreads and perhaps the final decision of gas rationing and this affects us all. After all, we are being given another lesson in thrift which is one we can all use. We are becoming wiser people today. We who took the cream and left the milk, who wasted thoughtlessly and recklessly, are learning a new sense of values. Maybe it is the hard way—but we're learning.

In order that readers of The News may know just what was accomplished in this section in the drive to collect old rubber, we have been able to collect the following data:

At the time of moving the scrap to the bulk plant of the Standard Oil Co. at St. Joe, a total of 18,350 pounds was collected by Roy Reidenbach, Wilbur Yeiser and Willard Hurni, and the offerings brot here by individuals.

James Reed of Spencerville, had 4,076 pounds and the Vendrely station now has over 4,000 pounds on hand. Olen Waltz Farm Bureau truck, made delivery of his collection direct to the Auburn plant, and was unable to give the pounds collected. Rubber still continues to come in since the extension of time was made to Friday. In all the collection in this section of Tri-Township will net 15 tons and it is a job well done.

TAKING VACATIONS

With the government asking all people to take vacations who are able to do so without affecting the national defense security, in order to keep up the public morale, it is certain that there will still be thousands of folks spending travel dollars this summer. The nice part of it is that the money will be spent right here at home. America affords the tourist much in the way of scenery and recreation with also the utter freedom to enjoy it as he sees fit. Those world travelers who used to go to Europe or take the Mediterranean as a side trip, are going to spend that vacation money in America this summer. Canada is inviting us to "come up and see her" and there will be many who accept, but even so each recent year has found an increasing number of people spending their vacation funds in their own country. May this sensible urge for workers to take their families away for several weeks of relaxation, prove beneficial to all concerned. We realize well enough that the entire world is keyed up to a high pitch, that the nerves of the universe are on edge, that worry and despair run rampant, furrowed brows and frayed pocketbooks both help to keep people depressed and therefore in need of bolstering. If public opinion is correct this war business is not going to be over in such a short time and since the morale of the people must be built up to withstand the pressure during the period, the idea of stressing vacations in order to return to the defense picture in a freshened state of mind and body, is a wise suggestion.

GIVE THEM WATER

We can thank our forebears for early beginning to establish a water system for us. Folks have worked on this idea for over a thousand years to give us what we have today merely by turning a faucet. No such convenience is offered to birds and animals who get as dry and thirsty in the summer time as we do. They can't turn a faucet to quench their thirst, so they depend upon the thoughtful people like we have around St. Joe to keep a plentiful supply of water on hand for them. With bird baths and pans of water they can find relief. It is only humane to see that dogs have water and perhaps that dog which you thot 'mad' was only a thirsty one. Practice humanity by turning your water faucet for the birds and dogs.

FIREFLIES

It has baffled the best minds, the keen brains versed in research in electrical problems, but they still can't figure out the question of how the firefly produces light without heat! When roses are in full bloom is when this firefly twinkles to the best of its ability and for those who have noticed the flickering lights as these self-luminous insects flit around over head, the sight is pleasing. Maybe we pay little attention to them as they light their fairylike tapers over our lawns and brighten the sky far into the night. Fireflies are unknown in some parts of the country and are a most interesting sight to those people who have missed seeing these nightly flies with their twinkling bodies. It is just another of those things that we take for granted without appreciating.

Enjoy Your War-Time Vacation in Indiana

Rolling Hills of Southern Indiana

This Booklet Tells You

Yachting at Michigan City

INDIANIANS are luckier than ever this year. In spite of handicaps imposed by war-time conditions, they can still have a grand vacation at the lowest possible cost in time and money—right here at home!

Most Indiana folks are not fully aware of the great variety of advantages for vacation pleasure and recreation offered them in Indiana. Few other states have such a wide range of "places to go."

And today when the emergency of war makes it vital to conserve tires, gasoline and oil, and time as well, Indiana's many advantages provide a complete answer to Hoosier vacation problems.

Right here in our own state you can choose whatever you most desire. In Indiana we have twelve of the finest state parks in the nation, nearly 1,000 lakes, winding streams, swimming, boating, beaches, rolling hills, sand dunes, famous memorials, many spots of historical interest.

Connecting these many points of interest there are 12,000 miles of modern state highways. In the state parks, at the lakes and at many other points there are hotel accommodations of the best kind. Whatever it is that would please you most, you can find right here in Indiana. And wherever it is you want to go you can get there quickly with minimum costs of transportation. The Indiana Division of State Publicity is working actively right now to bring to the attention of Indianians the remarkable vacational advantages offered here in our own state.

"Literature which pictures and describes Indiana's state parks and lists specifically scores of interesting places to go is available, gratis, to anyone who will ask us for it," says J. H. Albershardt, director of the Indiana Division of State Publicity. "Merely send us a letter or a postcard, addressed to our offices in the Board of Trade Building, Indianapolis, and the literature will come to you promptly. Just ask for '101 Reasons.' You'll be surprised at the information this literature contains and you'll have a new idea of your own good state and what it has to offer you.

"People need vacations more than ever this year because of the drains on mind and body brought about by war conditions. But Uncle Sam wants folks to conserve time, gasoline and tires.

"This means that nearby vacations are the answer. And for our own people, Indiana is certainly nearby. We hope you'll write for our literature. And we feel sure it will help you."

The Division of State Publicity is calling attention also to the fact that the Office of Defense Transportation is asking business organizations to schedule mid-week departure and return of employes who plan vacation trips, so as to relieve week-end congestion on highway, railroads and bus lines.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The 155-millimeter gun is the modern version of the old "GPF" of World War I days. It has a range fifty percent greater than the old gun, heaving a 95-pound projectile approximately 15 miles. It is capable of high road speed and each one costs $50,000.

Arsenals of America are working at terrific speed turning out this long range, effective weapon for our armed forces. You and your neighbor working hand-in-hand in unity can make possible the purchase of an adequate number of these guns by buying War Bonds. Put 10 percent of your income in War Bonds to help reach your county quota, every pay day.

HOOSIER HOME FRONT

INTERESTING HOME FRONT NEWS IN INDIANA

When the emergency scrap rubber drive ends Friday, July 10, you should begin preparing for a new intensive drive for scrap metals. That will begin July 13 and is being sponsored by the Bureau of Industrial Conservation, the farm implement manufacturers and other manufacturers engaged now in war work.

As in past drives, so in this one the leaders believe that it will be the farms which will turn in most of the scrap to feed the ravenous steel furnaces that feed the assembly lines that back up the troops.

So while you Hoosier farmers are about your duties raising crops to feed the people and the troops, keep your eyes open for that piece of scrap metal in the fence corner, or a ravine, or back of the wood shed that you need no longer but your armies and navies do.

All of us, by now, are aware of the importance of these things—or should be. All of us know the desperate need to save rubber, know the unceasing demand of our factories for metal, metal and more metal to make the tools of war. To make the tools of war which is at our doorstep, a war which stands in our Aleutian Islands and off our East Coast beaches.

Much of the news from our fighting fronts has been bad lately. But there never has been any excuse for easy optimism in this war, anyway—we know we are going to win, but we know too, that it will be victory won with difficulty.

From this standpoint there has been a lot in the past few days to inspire confidence. The surface currents, at the moment, favor the Axis—but beneath the surface moves a strong tide and that tide runs against our enemies. That tide is the tide of American production, a swelling tide of planes and tanks and weapons in which, one fortunate day, our enemies will drown.

The President himself has announced that we "are well on our way to achieving the rate of production which will bring us to our goals" and his heartening statement was followed by two significant announcements—,war shipments by the automotive industry in April were 46 per cent greater than such shipments in February, and plants engaged in the War Production Drive continue to smash all previous records.

Add to these developments the fact that conversion of peace-time industry to war production—, that change over from the manufacture of gadgets and appliances to the manufacture of guns and gun mounts and military instruments, is going forward apace. The answer, the sum total, is a promise of defeat for Hitler and Hirohito and Benito the Babbler.

Housewives can help win the war by keeping their families well-fed. OPA is making their job far easier for them by specifying that beginning July 13 beef and veal must be graded according to government standards and must be plainly stamped. From now on the housewife will know exactly what she's paying for—no guess work.

Bicycles will be rationed, starting today, July 9, to persons who need them in their work or to get to and from their jobs. The number of adult machines on hand is estimated at 240,000. The OPA will fix quotas for various regions as it now does with autos...Steps have been taken to increase the flow of food to our fighting allies—, OPA has lifted its price control bars so that the Agricultural Marketing Administration can buy 840,000 cases of apricots for shipment abroad....And a higher percentage of the 1942 pack of certain fruits and vegetables has been set aside for Lend-Lease requirements, the Army and Navy...Toys and games will be brought under a separate price control shortly—we bought $130,000,000 worth last year.

The value of new machine tools, presses and metal working machinery shipped during May was $118,500,000 WPB reports, an increase of 80 per cent over last May...Safety razors will continue to be produced at 70 per cent of their 1940 rate, razor blades and straight razors at 100 per cent until July 31 under a new WPB order....Chloroform, ether and blood plasm for the armed forces are exempted from an order banning the use of tinplate or terneplate in the shipment of many products ...The ice man is going to get some relief from the price ceiling if he can show that his March prices were too low to operate at a profit...More of the better dyes will be made available for civilian use this autumn as a result of a conservation order amendment.

Henry Morgenthau Jr., Secretary of the Treasury, today made public the official War Bond Quotas by States for the month of July, which places the nation on a Billion-dollar-a-month basis to aid in meeting the War cost. The above table also gives May War Bond sales in the various states in comparison to the May Quotas. (June sales by states will be available for publication shortly.) The percentage of Quotas range from 71.3 percent above quota in Utah, to 22.6 percent below the quota in Montana, but puts the nation as a whole above the $600,000,000 total May quota. Vulnerable Alaska and Hawaii led all states in sale of War Bonds on quota basis.

"Everybody, every pay day ten percent" is the Treasury slogan which is expected to place one of the attractive new window stickers in every American home. "We're Buying at Least 10%" reads the sticker, printed in the national colors. The new window stickers and the new "10%" lapel button, which indicates the wearer is investing at least ten percent of his income in War Bonds every pay day, are yardsticks of patriotism in the War Bond drive.

Your CONGRESS and YOU!

NEWS FROM THE OFFICE OF GEORGE W. GILLIE

Prompted perhaps by the many stories circulated last year about the destiny of aluminum scrap and the failure of that campaign to produce the desired results, many readers are writing in to inquire what disposition will be made of the scrap rubber being collected in the current Government drive. A careful investigation makes possible the following answer, which may prove of interest to other readers.

In due time, this rubber scrap will be loaded in cars and sent to a reclaiming plant. There it will go through ten steps or prosesses and come out in the form of usable rubber.

It will pass across a string of knives and be cut into small chunks. It will be shredded, then passed over strong magnets to remove all metal. It will be dusted. It will be placed in huge kettles filled with caustic soda to eat away the worthless fabric and non-rubber material. It will be de-vulcanized. It will be washed. It will be forced through a screen and come out in the form of black spaghetti. It will be cut into short lengths. It will be heated to high temperature and run through rollers. It will come out as refined rubber, in sheets ready to go back into tires, hot water bottles, rubber heels, etc.

The science of reclaiming rubber is well-advanced and patriotic citizens who are now so generously parting with rubber supplies may be sure that their contributions will be used to good advantage by the Government in supplying both military and civilian needs for rubber.

UNFORTUNATELY, however the Administration is still stalling shamefully in the development of a sound program for producing synthetic rubber in America. The main difficulty seems to be that it is not yet possible to single out one authority in Washington who has the power, plus the information, to end existing confusion and begin large-scale production of synthetic rubber from surplus farm products.

Fulton Lewis, Jr., ace Washington radio commentator, recently devoted three broadcasts to the citation of facts and figures showing:

(1) A definite antipathy and prejudice by administrative officials to the use of farm products in making synthetic rubber,

(2) That rubber from farm products could be made cheaper and more quickly than from any other source,

(3) That such rubber is practical and,

(4) That petroleum interests have been blocking the use of grain alcohol for conversion into synthetic rubber.

Senators and Congressmen joined Fulton Lewis in demanding action in meeting the rubber crisis and in decrying the influence of the petroleum monoply in side-tracking efforts to get under way the production of auto tires from farm source rubber.

WASHINGTON AT WAR. Metropolitan Washington, jammed to overflowing with Army and Navy officers war workers, and regular Government employes, has reached a population of over a million—and it's still growing. . . More than 15,000 new Government workers came to Washington last January, alone—the largest pay roll increase for a single month in history. . . It's a fifty-fifty toss-up whether you will have gasoline rationing for your car between now and September. Nation-wide gas rationing appears inevitable, although some officials are predicting that it will be postponed until after the election . . . As long as our fast-dwindling supply lasts, copies of the latest Dies Committee report on Un-American activities will be sent to all who request them.

FREE BOOKLETS. This week's list of free Government publications: "Recipes to match your Sugar Ration," prepared by the Bureau of Home Economics; "How to Respect and Display Our Flag," published by the Marine Corps, and "Climate and Man," the annual Yearbook of the Department of Agriculture. Requests should be addressed to: Hon. George W. Gillie, House Office Building, Washington, D. C.

OFFICIAL U. S. TREASURY WAR BOND QUOTAS FOR JULY

The above map of Indiana shows the War Bond quotas, by counties, for the month of July, 1942. Total War Bond quota for the state is $18,800,000. With the National quota total placed at a billion dollars, the nation goes into high gear in its support of the War financing and to give our fighting forces adequate implements of war which will bring ultimate Victory. American Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airmen are on every front. They are giving 100 percent for their country. What are we doing here on the home front? Are we lending at least ten percent of income to help them? It's very little. But to fight this war successfully our country needs a billion dollars in War Bonds every month from us—the People. Let's Go, America.

"Please send me 10¢ worth of electricity—today"

IF YOU had to order your day's supply of electricity fresh every morning, you'd appreciate even more how little it costs and how much it does for you.

Actually, about two-thirds of all American families light their homes and run radios, cleaners, toasters, percolators, clocks and washers for a dime a day—or less!

What's more, that dime buys just about twice as much electricity for the average family as it did fifteen years ago!

These bargains don't just happen. They come from the electric industry's constant effort to give you good service at low rates. They are made possible by practical, efficient business management.

That's the American way—and it works!

It works so well that even though America is pouring record-breaking amounts of electric power into the world's greatest production of planes, tanks, ships and guns—you still get low-cost current at the flick of a switch in your home!

VOL. LVII (57 YEARS) (In the St. Joe Valley) ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JULY 16, 1942 NUMBER 29

PAROLE DENIED JACKSON TOWNSHIP SLAYER

A dramatic murder case that took place 16 years ago in DeKalb county was recalled Thursday as the state commission on clemency denied the petition of Charley McInturf for parole from the state prison. McInturf was sentenced in 1926 to life imprisonment for the murder of Forrest Farver, of Waterloo.

Following is the story:

The murder took place Oct. 26, 1926 in the woods of McInturf's farm situated in Jackson township, 4 miles west of St. Joe. On the day of the murder McInturf said that he was digging potatoes on Farver's farm, which lay half a mile north of his farm. Farver made his home in Waterloo but still retained his farm.

McInturf and Farver started an argument with him about the relationship between him (McInturf) and Farver's wife, Lalia. He said Farver called him names and threw clubs at him, and when he started away Farver followed him into the McInturf woods and hit him with a chunk of wood.

Then McInturf pulled a .22 calibre revolver from his pocket. Farver ran and was shot in the back. As the wounded man fell to the ground McInturf shot him twice more in the head.

McInturf carried the body into the woods of the Farver farm and went home to dinner. Then he returned that evening and carried the body to his farm, put it into his car and drove toward Concord. He stopped near the Curtis Watt farm dragged the body over to an almost empty well and dumped it in headfirst. From there McInturf went on to Concord and then returned home to bed.

When Farver's disappearance was noticed, McInturf was questioned immediately by Sheriff William G. Morr because there had been previous trouble over his relationship with Mrs. Farver.

McInturf told the sheriff that his cousin, Al McKee, of Fort Wayne, had told him that he killed Farver to rob him and then put the body in the well on the Watt farm. McKee was cleared of any suspicion, and McInturf confessed the killing.

He was indicted by a grand jury and after pleading guilty was sentenced to life imprisonment in the DeKalb Circuit Court by Judge William P. Endicott. The prosecuting attorney at that time was H. C. Springer.

Mrs. Farver was questioned and confessed to her relationship with the guilty man, and she said that she and McInturf had once talked of poisoning him. She was released.

The murdered man had four children. McInturf had six children. McInturf's wife died in 1923, three years before the murder.

PERSONALLY SPEAKING

There are two things that the average man thinks he can do better than anything else—one is to edit a newspaper and the other is to run the small town baseball team. But every now and then you hear of some fellow who is engaged in one profession understanding pretty well the situation in another one. Perhaps it is because we feel the same way as the professor, or because we think that he might have sat back of a desk like ours one time himself, but we feel he hit it on the head when he says that higher standards prevail in a small newspaper office than in most of the large city offices. In the city the editor figures anything that happens is alright because it is news, whereas in the small office the editor is pretty well acquainted with most of the folks living in the town and has a personal interest in them and also in the place where the paper is printed. His contact makes the subject matter closer and warmer than just being 'news.' Not so far wrong, professor!

SPENCERVILLE SCENE of PRETTY HOME WEDDING

Miss Josephine A. Fisher, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Fisher, of Spencerville, became the bride of Corporal Donald E. Bohl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Bohl, Weiser Park Avenue Fort Wayne, in a pretty home wedding at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The Rev. F. A. Ruder, of Fort Wayne, officiated.

The vows were pledged before an improvised altar of snapdragons and babybreath flowers. Thebride entered with her father, who gave her in marriage. Her wedding gown of white silk marquisette was fashioned with a lace yoke forming a square neck with long, full sleeves and a lace bodice with a very full skirt. She wore a locket, gift of the groom. Small sprays of stephanotis held in place her fingertip, scalloped bridal veil of illusion. She carried a white prayer book with a small nosegay of stephanotis from which white ribbon streamers hung.

Her sister-in-law, Mrs. Francis Bohl, of Huntington, as maid of honor, was gowned in pink silk marquisette with a garland of pink rosebuds and blue delphiniums holding in place a shoulder length veil of blue. The maid of honor carried a bouquet of pink roses, blue delphiniums and babybreath with wide blue ribbon streamers. Herb Kramer, of Ft. Wayne, served as best man.

Preceding the reading of the vows, a fifteen-minute musicale was presented by Mrs. Olive Weicht, of Angola, cousin of the bride. Her selections included "Ave Marie," "I Love You Truly," "Because," "O Promise Me," "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life," and Lohengrin's wedding march.

Mrs. Fisher, in a gown of pale blue with white accessories, wore a shoulder corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. Bohl wore a navy sheer dress with white accessories and white carnations.

A reception was held for about 75 guests at the home of the bride's parents, with Mrs. Lynn Fisher, of Spencerville, sister-in-law of the bride, Mrs. Harold Fuller, of Pleasant Lake and Miss Jeanette Sunday, of Leo, cousin of the bride, serving. Later a wedding supper was served to members of the immediate families.

Among out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Bohl, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Carney, Mr. and Mrs. Herb Kramer, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moody, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Hobson, Mr. and Mrs. James Bair, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cowen, Miss Fara Lee Walter and Joseph Beatinger, all of Fort Wayne; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Alberts, Kendallville; Miss Dorothy Herbst, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. George Henderson, Paul Drerup, and Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Swarts, of Auburn; Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Sharp, Leo; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sunday and Miss Jeanette Sunday, of Leo, recently of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. Carl White, South Bend; Mrs. Eleanor Benninghoff, Miss Elizabeth Benninghoff, and Mrs. Virginia Houk, Hicksville, O.; Mrs. Olive Weicht, Angola; Gene Sharp and Mr. and Mrs. Girt Gnagy, Hamilton; Mrs. Ella Fisher and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Fuller. Pleasant Lake.

Mr. Bohl and his bride left for a short wedding trip before he returns to army service at Fort Knox, Ky. Her traveling ensemble consisted of a dusty pink dress trimmed at the V-neck with pink organdy ruffles and topped with a jacket of matching material and pockets made of the organdy ruffles. She wore a brown fur felt hat, brown leather pumps and brown top coat.

The bride is a registered nurse in the Huntington county hospital. Until June 1 she served as DeKalb county Red Cross nurse, resigning at that time. She was graduated from the Spencerville high school and Fort Wayne Methodist hospital. Previously she has served as nurse at Irene Byron sanatorium and Camp Blanning, Florida. The bridegroom is a Fort Wayne South Side high school graduate and was an employe of the General Electric company at Fort Wayne before entering the Army.

BERNIE CUMMINS AT MONTPELIER FAIR

Bernie Cummins, the fabulous sports prophet and bandleader brings his orchestra to Williams County Fair on September 17 and 18th, thru arrangements with Music Corp. of America.

Bernie's predictions in baseball, football and boxing are the marvel of other exrperts throughout the country. His striking resemblance to the late Rudolph Valentino helps make him one of the most personally popular of all maestri.

His orchestra which was featured at the Biltmore Hotel, New York, for three years, was chosen to open the Hotel New Yorker. Their recent engagements include the record for repeats at the Edgewater Beach Hotel, Chicago; the William Pen Hotel, Pittsburgh for six months; the Beverly Hills Country Club; the Baker Hotel, Dallas, twelve times; the Meadowbrook Country Club, St. Louis, and they have played Cincinnati seventeen times between the Netherland Plaza and the Gibson Hotel.

Bernie calls his style "the businessmen's tempo," which he describes as "to the ears and feet rather than just the ears."

FRANK R. BOWMAN MADE DEPUTY CORONER

The county commissioners made an order last Wednesday approving the appointment of Frank R. Bowman, St. Joe druggist, as deputy coroner. He takes the place of Dr. J. A. Sanders, of Auburn, who had previously been selected by Calvin C. Hawkins, of Auburn, who was named as coroner to succeed Dr. R. A. Nason, of Garrett, now in the U. S. Medical Corps. Mr. Hawkins was the deputy under Dr. Nason.

HEFTY

Harry Ellsworth Hefty, Sr., age 47, farmer residing five miles north-east of Auburn, succumbed to pneumonia at 6:10 o'clock last Wednesday morning at St. Joseph's hospital in Fort Wayne. Lobar pneumonia developed after an operation for the removal of a kidney, performed one week ago. Mr. Hefty had been at the hospital for two weeks. The deceased was born Feb. 11, 1895, six miles east of Auburn. At the time he became ill, Mr. Hefty was operating a 250-acre farm north-east of Auburn.

Besides the widow and four children, he leaves a brother, Fred Hefty, and a sister, Myrtle Wiles of Garrett. Funeral was held Saturday with burial at Waterloo. The deceased was the son of John Hefty, at one time a resident of Concord township and residing west of St. Joe on the farm now occupied by Wm. Miller.

TAKES OWN LIFE AT THE KAIN FARM

Apparently despondent since retiring in June from his work as a linotype operator at Washington, D. C., Herbert Rudolph Young, age 60, took his own life Tuesday morning at a farm 3½ miles east of St. Joe, on what was known as the J. S. Kain farm, which he and his wife had acquired from her parents estate. He shot himself above the right temple with a .32 calibre Colt revolver, according to Calvin Hawkins, DeKalb county coroner.

The body was found lying near the doorway of the barn near the farm house at 9:30 A. M. by Mr. Young's wife, Stella Jane. The revolver still was clutched in the right hand.

Mrs. Young said that she saw her husband about 8:30 o'clock when he went to the mail box. No one heard the shot, as a tractor was running near the barn where men were working in cutting wheat. The man apparently had tried the gun out before committing suicide, Coroner Hawkins said, because there was only one shell in it.

Mr. Young was born October 10 1881, in Charlestown, West Va., and for a number of years was employed in Washington D. C., as a linotype operator. Just a few weeks ago in June, he retired, and he and his wife moved to the farm only last Friday. Mrs. Young was born and reared in that vicinity and her sister, Mrs. Elza Moore, resides on the neighboring farm.

The body was taken to the Perkins & Reeb mortuary at Hicksville Ohio, where it will remain pending completion of funeral arrangements.

The Youngs had made plans for remodeling the farm home completely but restrictions had made the improvement slow. They owned a fine home in Washington.

FARMER'S PROFIT

The American farmer this year in most sections of the country has a good crop, market and price in his favor. In some areas this hasn't been felt for ten years and in others he has not met with such satisfying results for 20 years. There will always be sections where winter crops were flooded out, others where they didn't have nearly enough rain to bring in a crop. But as a whole, this year finds it a peak of progress for the farmer. There is trouble over government proceedings, a headache over labor shortage, dissension with labor unions, worry over storage, the problem of transportation and curtailment in gas and rubber. But we will have food for another year ahead of us, with oats, rye, peaches and pears increased in quantity over last year. Packers indicate the largest outlay of money for meat in over 20 years. A headache on one side but America being fed successfully is on the other.

MAYBE A BLESSING

It's happened, the much talked about disappearance of the long drawn out, double feature in the movie theatres. We are informed that by September 1 at the very latest, this double feature program will have passed into the era of things that used to be, except in the movie houses where just old films are exhibited. This is supposed to be something else caused by the war and there are some St. Joe citizens who will feel in this case, that war has worked no hardship. Thru two long, tedious movies, cartoons, travelouges, news reels, bank nights and even local advertising, three or four hours can elapse until you are sick of seeing 'flickers.' So Hollywood tells us that all this is to pass and we will return to the old set-up of a news reel and travelog or comedy, with one feature picture that won't be a Class B film.

ANOTHER STORY

Many stories have reached us of various incidents occurring during battles being fought by our men over seas. All are interesting and denote the sort of matter-of-fact courageousness of our fighters. Their task is to do a big job as quickly and efficiently as possible. They are making their efforts felt in the right quarters. Some of the tales we hear of their calm under unpleasant and dangerous situations are examples of the metal of the men engaged in war.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The Army's fighter planes are the finest in the world and develop speeds up to 400 miles an hour. They cost approximately $100,000 each, provide fighter escorts for the huge flying fortresses, and combine speed, range, altitude and blistering fire power.

America's plane production plants are working over-time turning out thousands of these fighter planes. War Savings Bonds will help pay for them and the American people are committed to at least ten percent of their income to finance their cost in War Bonds. Every American, buying his share every pay day, will make it comparatively easy to supply our army and navy air corps with these supreme Eagles of the air.

Take the story that is current which took place during the sinking of the Lexington. While the ship was being fired upon, explosions to right and left, boat rocking as it was destined for sinking, fire from bombs getting sections of it, the boys who were freed from duty by the 'relief' crowded the ship's store for ice cream cones and actually ate ice cream from their helmets as they slid down the ropes into the sea. Cool and calm and making the best of the great loss and a horrible defeat but not cold and irresponsible. Doing all they could while they could do it and keeping their heads when what they did was not enough to stop their ship from going down under. All hands were busy when needed, there was no doubt of that. This story told of the boys on the Lexington has something about it that is so purely indicative of the American boyhood, the bravery under fire, the level-headed men with the undaunted spirit of youth. It should appeal to our News readers.

BUSY AS BEES

Comes the persistent humming as the buzz and drone of zooming, zipping, dipping bees fly high and low through flower beds, through daisies and clover. Adding their tone to the music of birds chirp, crickets and frogs symphnoic arrangements, the song of the open spaces sounds through the country. 'Tis a restful composition that speaks of dawns and dusks, of sun and shadows, of trees and fields and blossoms. It is a song of the workers as they store food for a winter to come. It is a hum of sunny hours and a garden ditty as the winged creatures fly to spread pollen from flower and fruit. The notes mean trips back and forth that we may enjoy nature's handiwork next year through the hours of toil and endeavor. Man and bird and beast preparing for the future.

NO FAIR?

One of the oldest institutions in our country, enjoyed in almost every section sometime during the year, is the state and county fair. There has been a certain amount of promotion from the department of agriculture regarding not cancelling any of the fair shows, of promoting the "food for victory" campaign during the fair. On the other hand the defense transportation department pleads that fairs be deferred for the war's duration in order to keep the wear of tires cut to the minimum. There are reasons on both sides if sides must be taken, though perhaps by the time this reaches our News readers both departments will coordinate. Since this has been only a request and not a decree, it might be left to the fair officials to use their own judgment. They can decide whether their patronage does not necessarily draw from such a wide area that there would be wear on tires, or whether their plans for the fair have gone so far it would be difficult to cancel arrangements. Perhaps the opening date has been announced and so close it would be hard to call the whole thing off. The fair committee can make up its mind whether the educational value and value to rural communities is so necessary to the common welfare that it out-weighs the value of conserving farmers' tires for the good of the country. In case the fair should be cancelled this year, doesn't mean that it has disappeared for all time, but only postponed until a future date. We wouldn't enjoy losing this festival, but it is only a matter of postponing it. Defiance county will continue its fair, while DeKalb thought best to postpone, but on the heels of this patriotic move the American Legion, of Auburn, announces a five day carnival. We have been wondering where the saving comes in.

Starting Wednesday of this week, war workers applying for new tires will have to have their applications checked by a plant transportation advisory board before submitting them to the rationing board, James D. Strickland, state OP A head, announced at Indianapolis Monday. Dean Bechtol, of Garrett, announced his candidacy for the position of vice commander for Northern Indian Sunday at the annual meeting and picnic of American Legion posts of the fourth Indiana district at Pokagon state park. Mr. Bechtol is a former district commander and at present holds the office of state defense chairman of the Legion. Walter A. Firestone, of Columbia City, announced he would be a candidate for fourth district commander. Approximately 1,000 Legionnaires and their families attended the affair. The principal speaker was U. S. Mrs. Viola Dressel, has been committed to the Richmond state hospital by Judge W. P. Endicott. The court acted upon application of Max P. Dressel and recommendation of Dr. L. P. Harshman, of Fort Wayne, and Drs. W. W. Swarts and D. M. Hines, of Auburn. The first sign of insanity was observed last May, when Mrs. Dressel admitted that she tried to take her own life by cutting her wrist. She has gradually grown worse, the application states. She is depressed, has illusions and delusions, believes her relatives and friends think she is inferior and that an effort is being made to get rid of her. She has a tendency towards violence and needs restraint. Mrs. Dressel is 34.

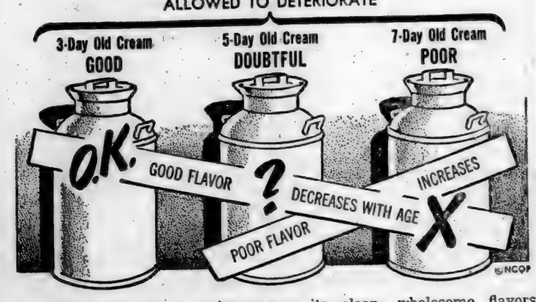
AGE LOWERS THE VALUE OF CREAM

AGE TURNS TOP MARKET CREAM INTO POOR MARKET CREAM-AS QUALITY GOES DOWN, FARM PROFITS GO DOWN

This happens when cream is not marketed when fresh, and is ALLOWED TO DETERIORATE



Age, the factor that is so important in making certain cheeses better, works in exactly the opposite direction when it comes to cream. Because good cream is one of the world's most delicate products, it spoils rapidly even under the most favorable conditions.

Cream coming fresh from the separator is "tops" in flavor. But as the above chart shows, there is a decrease in flavor with each succeeding day the cream is kept. After the third day—usually—the original delicious taste flavors give way rapidly to other and undesirable flavors. When this happens the cream also "goes sour" in actual money value. For once the undesirable flavors exceed the desirable ones, the farmer's product enters the stage where it can no longer be sold legally for food purposes.

Holding cream at a low temperature on the farm will not overcome the factor of age. Age affects the fresh, clean smell of cream, as well as its clean, wholesome flavors. Both of these are important considerations in the grading of cream. Each day that cream is held lowers its quality just that much. Tests have shown that cream over four days old made butter scoring 1.22 points lower than butter made from cream not over four days old. Another test showed that butter made from cream four days old scored an average of 2.5 points lower than butter made from cream one day less old. These seemingly small differences represent substantial differences in quality and value.

The only way to get top prices for top quality cream is to beat the age factor. This can be done by setting up a regular delivery schedule. Someone on the farm usually goes to town every day. So it should not be difficult to send cream to market every two or three days. If this is done, the steady cash income cream brings in can be kept at a high point throughout the year.

RECORDS FOR OUR FIGHTING MEN

The local American Legion Post and its Auxiliary are participating in a nation-wide campaign of the Legion for the collection of 37,500,000 old phonograph records. Funds provided from the sale of these records as scrap will be used for the purchase of new records, as well as phonograph players, for the men of the armed forces.

The "Records For Our Fighting Men" campaign begins July 17 and extends through August 2. It is estimated that there are at least 200,000,000 old records in American attics and basements that are worn, scratched and battered and of little value to the owners, but they represent in their own way America's love for musical entertainment.

Do you have records to contribute?

trip to Fort Benning, in Georgia. He visited the proving ground at Madison and crossed one of the big bridges over the Ohio. His next stop was at Camp Knox. While many of the things he saw and learned about cannot be made public, he left the impression that every precaution is being taken to protect our camps, forts and transportation units. Mr. VanAuken had been very observing on his trip and he convinced his hearers of the vastness of our country's war effort.

Preliminary reports of the salvage drive in DeKalb county, which closed at midnight Friday, indicate that the total amount collected during the campaign will be in excess of 275,000 pounds, according to Lester Austraw, of Auburn, drive chairman. Mr. Austraw said the final figures undoubtedly will show that the county has gone well over its quota for scrap rubber. This should be very gratifying to the personnel of the vaious oil companies who have devoted their time and efforts to the campaign, and to other agencies who have made the drive a success.

SQUIRRELS PLENTIFUL OVER MOST OF STATE

Reports being received by the Division of Fish and Game from the Conservation Officers and other interested observors indicate that there is a plentiful supply of squirrels in most counties, Harrell F. Mosbaugh, director, has announced. A mild winter and favorable conditions during the spring breeding season are cited as reasons for an increase in the number of squirrels seen.

Indiana's open season for squirrel hunting will begin Monday, August 10, continuing for sixty days. This year under ruling of the Division of Fish and Game, there will be no division of the state into zones with different open season dates. The open season this year—Aug. 10 to Oct. 8— will apply to the entire state. A bag and possession limit of five squirrels is also in effect.

Taking of squirrels before August 10 is a violation of the state hunting laws and Conservation Officers have been instructed to keep a close watch for any out-of-season hunting.

TRUCK LENGTH AND HEIGHTH INCREASED

Uniform truck regulations recently approved at a Washington meeting as a step in speeding up the war program do not materially change the regulations already fixed by Indiana statutes.

Under the war-time regulations, maximum length of a single vehicle was fixed at 36 feet, the same as was in effect in Indiana; length of a combination vehicle such as a tractor-trailer, was fixed at 45 feet, an increase of five feet over the Indiana length; and heighth was increased from 12 feet to 12½ feet. No change was made in the maximum weight to be carried without obtaining a special permit.

LEGION ASSISTING IN NAVY ENLISTMENTS

Cooperation of the Walter Whitehurst Post No. 283, of the American Legion, St. Joe, with the U. S. Naval Recruiting Service in a state-wide drive to provide more men for our ever expanding Navy, was announced by Carl C. Guthner, Indianapolis, state chairman of the American Legion's Navy Recruiting Campaign.

Mr. Guthner, who was appointed to his new post by Carl Graham, State Commander of American Legion, has indicated that Legion Posts throughout the state will conduct a campaign to enlist 1000 men in the Navy by August 15. The recruiting chairman further indicated that if the program succeeds here in Indiana, it will be adopted nationally.

The Walter Whitehurst Post of St. Joe will play a major role in the enlisting of men from this area.

NEWS FROM THE OFFICE OF GEORGE W. GILLIE

In one of my recent news letters I discussed at some length the dispute which has been raging between farm leaders and the big oil companies over the question of whether surplus grains or petroleum products are to be used as the future source of synthetic rubber in America. I explained that the actual process of making synthetic rubber is a simple one—that the whole problem lies in producing a chemical substance known as butadiene, which can be derived either from petroleum gases or high proof alcohol, made from wheat or corn.

I pointed out that the equipment to produce rubber from petroleum would cost four times as much as the grain alcohol process, and that it would take about two years, as against six months, to begin actual production. In spite of all this, I reported that the Rubber Reserve Corporation has advanced $650,000,000 of Government funds to the petroleum industry to finance synthetic rubber plants, and that agriculture has been cut out without a nickel.

ONE OF THE arguments used by Government officials against the grain alcohol process is that it is untried—that it is still in the experimental stage. After some investigation, I discovered that claim is untrue, and that the process actually is in operation today, turning out high quality rubber. It is being operated by the Publicker Corporation, of Philadelphia, the largest distillers of alcohol in the world.

To see for myself, I went to Philadelphia a few days ago, with other Members of Congress, to observe the butadiene process in actual operation. I saw them making synthetic rubber from gain alcohol at the rate of 100 pounds a day—and against the complicated process of making butadiene from petroleum, this is unbelievably simple. It is nothing more than this:

They heat the alcohol, and pass the alcohol through a copper tube which is kept at a temperature of 250 degrees. The tube contains what is called a catalytic agent—a substance which doesn't undergo any chemical reaction, in itself, but merely by its presence causes the alcohol vapor to break down into butadiene, and several impurities that are very easily removed. That's all there is to it.

WE SPENT a whole day in Philadelphia with officials of the Publicker Corporation. They explained that there is nothing new in this process—it has been used by Russia and Poland for 15 years—in fact, virtually all the rubber that Russia and Poland have had for their war machines has been made by this process.

The Publicker Corporation, although it has the American patent rights, is willing to release the process to any established firm. In the meantime, they have been trying to get the Government to allow them to build a synthetic rubber plant—with their own funds—but they have been refused the necessary priorities.

What is more, the Publicker Corporation has been refused permission to build even a pilot plant, to produce five tons of rubber a day. No one from the War Production Board or the Rubber Reserve Corporation has even taken the trouble to inspect their process, to see if it will work.

THESE are only a few of the reasons why the Gillette Committee of the Senate is conducting an investigation of the synthetic rubber program, and why Government officials in charge of this program are having such a difficult time explaining their actions to the Senate. Within a short time, the Gillette Committee will file a report to Congress on their findings. Members of Congress, especially those from agricultural states, are awaiting this report with keen interest, and quick Congressional action to bring surplus farm products into the rubber picture will probably follow.

LARGE BALANCE IN COUNTY SCHOOL FUND

The almost dormant condition of the banking department of DeKalb county is a reflection of the improved finances of its people.

County Auditor Burley Ensley reports that so far this year twelve school fund loans have been paid off in full, as compared with eight in all of 1941; and that only two new loans have been made this year. The total of payments on principal this year is $13,916, as against $2,700 loaned out. The balance on hand in the county treasury now is $17,319.38, which is believed to be the largest amount in many years.

Many people have no knowledge of the source of this money or the way it is handled. It is divided between what is known as the congressional school fund and the common school fund. The former was derived in the early days of the state from the sale of public lands and the principal sum does not change. In DeKalb county the amount is $17,684. The common school fund is derived from fines and bond forfeitures collected by the county clerk, the mayors of cities and justices of the peace. Mr. Ensley's last report to the state shows that collections from these sources were $1,021 during the last year, making the total of the fund $136,935.38.

The law authorizes the county auditor to loan the money on real estate mortgages. When an application is made to him, he notifies the county appraisers to view the property and place a value upon it. The appraisers are appointed by the county commissioners. Those now serving are E. E. Turner of Grant township, Ira Williams of Union township, and F. McCullough of Fairfield towship. They are paid $2 each for their services on each application, the borrower paying the fees.

A loan may be made in an amount not in excess of 50 per cent of the appraised value of the property. Practically all the loans are made on farm land. The rate of interest is 5 per cent payable at the end of the year, and mortgages are made for five years. However, payments on principal may be made at interest paying times or at the end of any six months' period. The abstract must be approved by the county attorney. The number of loans outstanding at this time is 156. The interest received on the loans is sent to the state and is redistributed among the school units on a basis of average daily attendance. Part of the income is added to the state teachers' retirement fund.

The county must pay to the state the full amount of 5 per cent interest on the entire funds, whether all of the money is loaned or not. During the last depression many of the borrowers were in default. Mortgages were foreclosed and when Mr. Ensley became auditor Jan. 1, 1939, the county held title to ten farms. These were all sold. It is necessary for the county council to make appropriations from the county general fund to reimburse the school funds for deficits. It is expected that the county will take title to some more farms next year and will sell them.

Revision of the laws governing the management of the school funds is under consideration by state officials and the legislature.

GET USE TAX STAMP

Many motor vehicle owners apparently have a misunderstanding of the motor vehicle tax law in connection with the gasoline rationing program.

The law requires the purchase of the motor vehicle use tax stamp for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1942 at the price of $5.00, and liability for the same is incurred upon the use of the auto on the public highways on or after that date.

Information has been received which indicates that many motor vehicle owners are withholding the purchasing of the stamp pending the installation of the gasoline rationing program. The stamp should be purchased immediately and not wait until the gasoline rationing registration begins.

Any person liable for this tax who uses or permits the use of the motor vehicle before the tax has been paid shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than $25.00 or imprisonment for not more than 30 days or both.

CULTURE CLUB

The mid-summer meeting of the Culture Club was held last Wednesday, at the summer cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Wineland at Hamilton Lake.

After the ladies arrived and brief remarks on the beauty of the lake and cottage were made, the ladies took a hike around the lake, returning hungry and ready to eat.

A table full a good things was enjoyed by all. During the afternoon, a business meeting was held when the program for the next year was presented and accepted. Mrs. Belle Ridgway, an emeritus member, was present.

Late in the evening all departed thanking Mrs. Wineland for an enjoyable day and one long to be remembered.—Press correspondent.

BURGOYNE STORAGE BURNS AT HICKSVILLE

The large sheet metal storage building, located across a driveway at the rear of the G. F. Burgoyne Sons hardware store in Hicksville, Friday was charred ruins as the result of a fire which had gained considerable headway when discovered at 6:30 P. M. Friday, about a half hour after the store had closed for the day.

Because of the galvanized roof and siding over the wooden frame, Hicksville firemen who were called out when Friday's heat was at its height, experienced considerable difficulty getting flames under control.

Cause of the fire was undetermined. Burgoyne store officials were unable to place an estimate on the loss which may exceed $1,000. Only used and trade-in merchandise was stored in the building, it was said. Damage was said to be fully insured.

To Salvage Waste Fats

The salvage campaign for fats will be in force commencing next Monday, when all housewives are asked to save all fats not useable in the home strain into large mouth metal can and take to the Art Lyon meat market, where they will pay 5c per pound. The salvage campaign is being sponsored by the Lions Club and will apply to St. Joe and Spencerville alike.

The average per acre is the highest in Union township at $60.73, and the lowest in Troy, at $37.41. "SECRET INVESTIGATOR"

Cast: Marjorie Reynolds, Charles Quigley, Ward McTaggart, Kenneth Harlan, Donald Curtis, Howard Masters, Bob White, Kitty McHugh, Bud Buster, Charles Phipps, Dorothy Vaughan, Boyd Irwin.

Secret Investigator or (Secret Evidence, 35mm name) is tender, mighty and beautiful. It is bound to take its place among that small and select company of pictures which have endeared themselves to American hearts and have never been forgotten. Secret Evidence is superb in every sense of the word.

This picture of a young girl, torn between her love for a strong man and her duty to a weakling is tender and dynamic. Forgetting all the hackneyed situations which offer such temptations in a production of this type, Producer E. B. Derr and Director William Nigh have evolved not only new but powerfully dramatic group of sequences that build one upon the other until the climax. It will be a long time before you forget the closing scenes of Secret Investigator. To explain the story would be to spoil a great measure of ----- enjoyment and suspense. Suffice to say that Secret Investigator is not a murder mystery, it's not a gangster picture—it is something entirely new—a blend of artistic talents which has resulted in a fine and action-filled motion picture. Secret Investigator is a gripping drama of a girl whose life is threatened by her lover's ambition and her brother's weakness. How she overcomes her obstacles to find happiness and peace will bring tears to your eyes and a song to your heart.

INDIANA WILL INDUCT MARRIED MEN

Despite a national ruling deferring men with dependents from military service, Indiana will induct married men whenever and wherever they are needed to fill draft quotas, Col. Robinson Hitchcock, state draft director said.

Forty per cent of the state's draft boards already have had to call men with dependents, Hitchcock said, and in the next three months 70 per cent of the boards will be calling men with dependents.

There isn't time to classify the men who already have been ordered to report for induction, the draft head added. Selective service boards have just about exhausted the supply of single men.

Approximately 70 per cent of the men registered are deferred because of dependency as compared with only three per cent that are exempt because of employment in war industries, according to statistics based on the first two registrations.

The only men who are comparitively sure of being deferred at present are those with children and registrants who hold "key defense positions," as well as men who are physically unfit for military service, it was explained.

Under the new national ruling, single men with no dependents are to be called first; single men with dependents, second; single men with dependents and who are employed in war industries, third; married men, fourth; married men with a wife only but who are employed in defense work, fifth; married men with children, sixth, and married men employed in defense industries and who have children, are to be called last.

There are 34 occupational activities listed for which registrants may be deferred.

The new policy will have no effect on men in the 1-B classification, Hitchcock said. More than 1,000 Hoosiers a month from this list of deferred men will be inducted into the army starting August 1, Hitchcock said.

The state's local boards carried a total of 12,900 men classified in the 1-B catagory as of July 1. These registrants previously were deferred because of minor physical defects.

However, the first call next month will be composed, for the greater part, of volunteers who have been grouped as 1-B's. After all the volunteers have been inducted, 1-B men will be drafted with the numbers being called in order.

According to present regulations, no 1-B men will be sent outside the United States or its territorial possessions.

The way we have to plaster our wind-shields with stickers, it won't be long before somebody will have to walk ahead and direct us through traffic.

CLOSE HOME

Those who are taking vacations this year are availing themselves of railroads and bus lines as never before in recent years. They are not taking the lengthy trips that they did formerly but even so they are finding things well worth seeing, perhaps right here in their home state. It isn't necessary to ride to some distant locality, spend more money than we can afford, return home dead tired from a long trip, all in the name of vacation. We have many attractions close at home that are of interest, people from other states come here to see them, so why shouldn't we enjoy them ourselves? There are natural beauty spots that can be reached with little expense and not a great loss of time spent in arriving at them. "See America First" has always been a good slogan, but right now the Indiana citizen who wants to rest and return to do his body and soul good, who wants to rest and return to his labor refreshed, should see his own state. There is always something in almost every county that people have enjoyed and can suggest that you see. That bit about grass being greener elsewhere holds true indeed, when it comes to choosing vacation spots. We have overlooked much in our search in far places. Let us learn our own state and county, improving our historical knowledge, protecting our pocketbooks and saving our strength.

WATCH THIS

There are more people today who are hiking, as all motorists around St. Joe and Spencerville can attest. There isn't a time you are on the road that you won't probably see a hiker thumbing his way. We make the usual appeal to drivers to be on their guard in the matter of tendering rides to complete strangers. Of course there are many worthy individuals who are hiking and asking for lifts and who deserve to be helped on their way. But it is difficult to distinguish between the strangers worthy and unworthy. It seems cruel to refuse to stop and give someone a ride as they trudge along the road, yet this warning of ours is only in a form of self-protection. There is an acknowledged risk in picking up anyone and giving him or her a ride. Our news papers will now and then give you front page items that will clarify our reasoning. It is a matter up to the driver, however, if he cares to accept the risk, but we thought we would make the yearly reminder, anyhow!

STILL CANNING

There seems to be quite a bit of canning going on in spite of the sugar rationing. Housewives have found a number of goods in cans which they formerly took for granted, slowly removed from the grocery store shelf. They are realizing there is a shortage in many articles and as they find fruits and vegetables available in home gardens and orchards or in the market, they are availing themselves of the opportunity to follow the great American art that has never been lost, that of home-canning. There are arguments in favor of commercial canned goods, but few St. Joe women will agree that though your commereial houses employ expert hands and purchase highest quality of fruits and vegetables, that still "it never tastes like home canned goods." Most of the men folks agree with them. The housewife ewill show you how she can save money if not in time and goes on her way of preparedness by looking to supplying her canning cupboard and her famflies appetite.

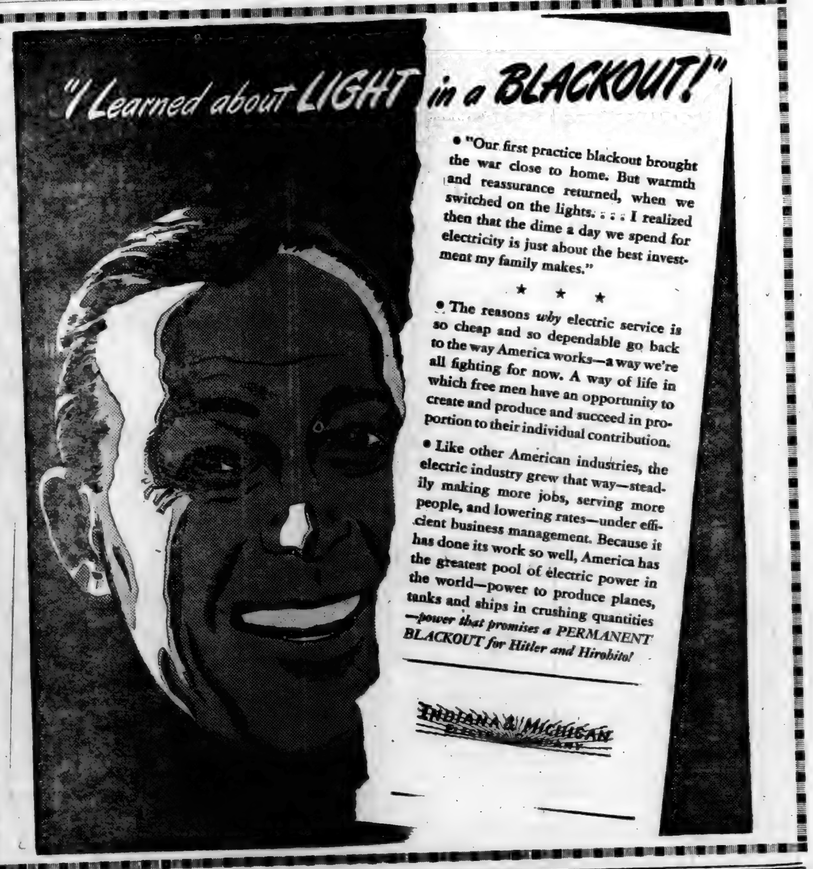
MAKE IT EASY

There have been many states that have enacted laws enabling the soldiers votes in the primary and general elections this year, by working out simplified ways to streamline this sort of service without all the procedure of spending more money than really necessary and yet attaining the same end. Other states have their soldiers, sailors and marines following through a long bit of red-tape with ritual in absentee voter's forms and notarized data with all kinds of complicated and drawn out systems. Why not make it as easy as possible? The soldiers have certainly much at stake since they are out fighting for some of the principles for which they should vote. They are insuring the future of this country for which the man who stays home, votes. Make it easy for them to cast their ballots.

MAYBE NOT ENOUGH

Most of us cooperated with the government in its salvage of rubber, by starting in the basement and working up stairs through the attic, covering barns and garages in an attempt to do our part in the collection. There has been disappointment expressed in the amount of the rubber collected. Much of the nation's rubber that is unused and unwanted is still lying around the country. Evidently everyone didn't feel as we did about the forgotten rubber and metal that reposes in boxes and barrels and trunks, hanging here or shoved away there. What a pity that we must sell folks on an idea and for a principle that means the loss of use of their automobile perhaps, their medium of travel and consequently in many cases their pursuit of happiness. Fortunately there will always be people to answer a call when they know that the appeal is a necessary and wise one.

The gasoline rationing is an attempt to conserve rubber and in this line folks who own cars and ride to their work have made arrangements to take extra passengers with them to fill up the car and save by doubling up. There are many cities and outlying districts where they have pooled cars and in driving to defense plants have reduced street traffic and conserved almost 50% in some of the large cities in auto transportation. They tell us that even more must be done in this line, more riders for more drivers, if we hope to continue with out present rubber supply and continue to get back and forth to defense jobs.



RECORDS FOR SOLDIERS

A year ago Mr. and Mrs. America were scouring cellars and attics and forgotten corners on the in-between floors for old alumium items. Last month they were hunting down old rubber gadgets. And now, thanks to The American Legion, there's a nationwide quest for old phonograph records. These old records will be sold as scrap, and provide the funds for new records and phonograph players to be shipped to American fighting men here and overseas. Already millions of old records have been collected. Millions more are needed. And there is a solemn obligation to find them.

For the American Legion's Records For Our Fighting Men campaign, while not concerned with equipment for the war machine, is deeply devoted to the cause of the men on whom we depend to run that machine. These men are Americans with a profound love for good music. Because they're Americans they like all kinds of music, and because they're in many cases far from home, the music that springs from America not only provides recreation and entertainment for them, but also serves as a reminder of the things American which we all treasure, which we're fighting for.

These factors should count heavily in your giving all-out support to The American Legion salvage campaign. Time is growing short; August 2 is the deadline. By all means, help the Legionnaires and their coworkers in achieving success in the good work which they have undertaken.

HOOSIER HOME FRONT

INTERESTING HOME FRONT NEWS IN INDIANA

Last week Indianapolis owners of rental dwellings began registering them, placing, in most instances, the legal maximum rent as that charged on July 1, 1941. In a few days hotels and rooming houses will make a similar registration of their facilities.

If you live outside one of the 19 defense rental areas of this state, you may think this does not affect you. But it does. The rent control law twins up with the price ceiling law as the front against inflation. And inflation—remember the depression?—gets at you wherever you live.

The state-wide campaign to save kitchen fats and greases is on. This is one of the most important of all the salvage campaigns.

In case you think your contribution, however small, won't help study this fact:

A pound of waste kitchen fat contains enough glycerine to make explosives which would fire four anti-aircraft shells.

One of the things we worried about six months ago was whether our great industries could be changed over from making the autos and the gadgets and the appliances of peace to manufacture—on the same mass production basis—the weapons of war.

Today we know these industries can do just that, because many of the largest of them have done it and others are doing it. WPB chairman Donald M. Nelson says our factories will turn out a total of about 45 billion dollars worth of weapons and military supplies and equipment this year, and he expects that the figure will rise to 70 to 75 billions (at current prices) in 1943.

That last figure is a truly colossal figure, it means production for war on a scale never before attained. It means that we are shooting the works—we have no choice, if we wish to preserve our liberties. It means that we shall be making almost nothing for ordinary civilian uses, and it means that we must do a better job of salvage than we have been doing, because no amount of production facilities can deliver the goods unless there are materials with which to work.

And scrap is an important ingredient of most materials. The Hoosier farmer has again been asked to comb his fields, woods and meadows for every last particle of scrap and to see that it gets to the market. This is a continuing campaign, nation-wide, to harvest the scrap, surely this year as important a harvest as the food harvest will be.

The Hoosier auto graveyards turned over 23,349 net tons of scrap during June, a little less than twice the amount turned over the previous month. This was in spite of the heavy rains which make the processing difficult.

Employment in war industries has practically doubled in the seven months since Pearl Harbor, with 12,500,000 workmen on the job—free workmen working to preserve a free nation. And War Manpower Commission Chairman Paul V. McNutt expects that 5,000,000 more will have been added to war payrolls by next New Year's Day. Even now labor shortages are showing up in many production centers and in transportation and such shortages will spread rapidly within the next few months.

Add to the long list of things we aren't making any more for the duration—to the washing machines and the waffle iros and whatnot—these new items—garden tools, hospital equipment, merry-go-rounds, magic lanterns, umbrella shafts, vanity cases. This assortment appears in a recent WPB conservation order, the metals saved will soon be in the hands of our soldiers... A Garand rifle, these days, will reap a better harvest than a garden hoe.... An even 1,000 plants now have labor-management committees in the War Production Drive.... Office of Price Administration discloses that we're eating up our sugar at a rate only slightly below our combined rate of production and rate of importation.... The slight excess of supply over demand explains the need for rationing.....

Hot weather note—cigarettes, cigars and smoking tobacco may be wrapped in Christmas packages as usual this year, WPB announces... More than 300,000 meat markets are cooperating in the campaign of WPB's Conservation Division to save fats and greases... The war transportation program to save tires and equipment, reduce the travel load on ever-burdened transit systems, continues to make progress... The Office of Defense Transportation has announced that more than 500 state and local war transportation administrators now are wrestling with such problems as group car riders, staggering of work hours, improved traffic regulations....

The final figure on DeKalb county's rubber salvage drive —447,676 pounds! Better than 75 tons over the quota of 297,072 pounds—and it was you and your neighbor's contributions of old boots, broken water botles, heels and soles, and tires. Oil companies in the county collected about 200,000 pounds, tire repair shops and junk yards collected 111,000 pounds, and the remainder was sold by the Auburn Rubber Corp. The county quota was based on 12 pounds per person.

Your CONGRESS and YOU!

NEWS FROM THE OFFICE OF GEORGE W. GILLIE

Congressman George W. Gillie, representing the Fourth District in Congress, has risen to the defense of the farmers of this country in a speech before the House in which he urged the manufacture of synthetic rubber from agricultural porducts.

Gillie and other farm leaders in Congress have recognized that those charged with procuring vital war material have made an expensive mistake in insisting that petroleum-derived synthetics be used in the effort to alleviate the rubber situation.

According to Congressman Gillie, synthetic rubber can be obtained from grain at less than one-fourth the initial investment and 3 or four times sooner than it can be manufactured from petroleum. He says that to provide plants of 700,000-tons-a-year capacity, making synthetic rubber from petroleum, will cost the Government 650 million dollars and it will take two years to get them into production. Plants of the same capacity, to make synthetic rubber from grain, he declares, will cost only 140 million dollars, can be put into operation in six months, and will require a much smaller amount of critical materials.

"In the face of these facts," Congressman Gillie asks "what do you suppose the Government is doing? The Government, or rather the New Deal bureaucrats in charge of the Government, has taken a position in support of the oil combines and in direct opposition to the farmers of America. It has decided to allocate 650 million dollars for the construction of synthetic rubber plants in this country, and every dollar—mark this closely—is being allocated to the petroleum industry. Agriculture is being cut off without a nickel.

"In return for these millions, what will the Government get? It will get rubber, yes; but how soon? Conservative estimates indicate that it will take at least two years to get these plants into operation. Two long years of waiting for rubber that our planes, tanks, trucks, and armored units need today. At least three or four years before rubber is available for civilian use, in the form of tires for defense workers, farmers, and others, who even now are threatened with gasoline rationing as a rubber-conservation measure.

"After the war, which will end, God willing, sooner or later, these Government-financed plants will be owned and controlled by the great oil companies, and their profits will flow into the pockets of a selfish group of eastern millionaires."

In urging the use of farm products as a base for the much-needed rubber, Mr. Gillie took cognizance of the fact that the material is ready at hand for the production of millions of pounds of rubber. He pointed out that the present surplus of corn and wheat is so large that storage facilities are taxed to capacity, and there is a danger that some of the present crop will be left to rot in the fields. If agriculture were given the job producing our annual rubber requirements, he said that approximately 230 million bushels of surplus grain would be taken out of storage bins, and off the market, each year.

"If the Government is really interested in finding a solution to our agricultural problems," Mr. Gillie said, "it could take this surplus grain and use it in the production of butadiene and grain alcohol. We could then obtain a large supply of sythetic rubber in a short time, and by doing so could reduce the present surplus of grain which constitutes such a problem to the farmers of this country. The Government has it on hand and owns it. If it is kept it will deteriorate in value and serve as a constant threat to the corn and wheat parity programs."

It is ventured that there will be some alteration in the New Deal's rubber program, and, if it occurs, it will be due to the efforts of men like Gillie who recognize the utter necessity for speed of action.

Get rubber now—get it from the quickest possible process. At the moment that source rests in the huge stores of surplus wheat which this nation already owns.

class plays and entertainment. This year is no exception, and it is heard on the streets that the show this year is even better than ever before. At least folks are being royally entertained each night.

Pete Wight, well known and popular comedian is with the Ginnivans' again this year, and as usual is making a decided hit with his comedy and vaudeville. Other known members of the troupe, who have played here before include William Sheldon and LaVelle. Miss Lynne Townsend is the new leading lady with the Ginnivans this year, and Al Pitcaitley is the new leading man. Both are making a hit with their fine acting and specialty numbers.

Tonight (Thursday) the play will be "Marriage of Elizabeth," and the remaining nights, Friday through Sunday, "Family Affairs," "J Bird," and "Holy Sinners" will be presented. All are claimed to be top-notch plays.

Each night before the show a fifteen minute band concert is rendered in front of the tent in typical show style, which is located right down town in the center of the business district. Following the band concert a short concert is played by the orchestra, which accompanies the vaudeville acts.

Popular prices are charged and the greatly improved class of plays and vaudeville offers a reat attraction.

YOUNG AUBURN GIRL KILLED ON B. & O.

Apparently paralyzed by fright, Esther Louise Tarter, 16 year old daughter of Mrs. Sam Tarter of Auburn, was killed instantly at 6:55 o'clock Friday evening by the eastbound B. & O. Capitol Limited passenger train at the Cedar Creek bridge on the south edge of Auburn.

The body was hurled about 150 feet to the base of the trestle that spans Cedar Creek and landed in grass some 30 feet from the water's edge. Her neck, back, jaw and right leg were broken.

Esther and a friend, Betty Jean Steffen, age 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Steffen of South Wayne Street, were walking eastward on the tracks when the accident occurred. They planned to cross the trestle situated about 100 yards east of the South Wayne Street crossing, and then cut south through a field to a gravel pit about a quarter of a mile away. Esther's brother, Paul, had borrowed her bicycle to go swimming at the pit, Mrs. Tarter said, and she was going after it so she could ride to the Court Theatre.

Miss Tarter would have been a sophomore at the Auburn high school this fall and would have been 17 on Friday.

WELFARE WORK EXPLAINED TO LIONS

The St. Joe Lions Club met Monday evening at 6:30 at Akins Tea Room with W. J. Kimmel, Assistant Director of DeKalb County Welfare as guest speaker.

Mr. Kimmel gave the historical background of welfare work in this country. Indiana was one of the first states to realize the necessity of such assistance and the enacting of the Mother's Aid Law in 1923 became the first step in welfare laws. The Mother's Aid Law was followed by the Old Age Pension Law in 1933, which provided for assistance of certain aged people over 70. One half of this expense is met by the state and one half is met by the county. The Auditor and County Commissioners are the executors in any one county.

In 1935 the Social Security Act was enacted providing assistance for old age, blind, and dependent children.

Indiana Legislature passed the Public Welfare Act in 1936 and thus became the first state in the country to pass such a law.

In 1937 the Merit System of Appointment was integrated into the procedure for employment in any State Institution.

The last legislature (1941) created the State Personal Division under whose jurisdiction all State Institutional employees fall.

During the past year 70,000 individuals received Old Age assistance in Indiana. In DeKalb County only 17.5 per cent of those aged persons over 65 were receiving aid. There were 57 cases with 124 children aided last month in DeKalb County's Welfare program. This represented only two per cent of the children under 16 years of age.

The DeKalb County Welfare Department spent $112,850 last year, one-fourth of this met by county funds.

A very interesting program is in the making for the August 10th meeting.

APPLICATION FOR ADDITIONAL CANNING SUGAR

The only possibility for a family to receive more than the maximum allowance of ten pounds of canning sugar per person is to make an appeal to the entire Rationing Board. No registrar can allow more than this. The County Sugar Adminstrator cannot allow more. The decision must be made by the Board.

Those who wish to apply for more are to make application on a specially prepared form that can be secured by calling on the local board at school house on any of the following dates: Aug. 4, 5, 6, 11, 12, 13, and from 7 to 10 P. M.

Applicants who apply for their second-half canning allowance must have sugar ration books, a report of the canning done with the first-half allowance and a list of canning yet to be done.

Applicants should have the duplicate copy of the sugar purchase certificate which was issued for the first-half allowance in June. If the applicant does not have this duplicate, more time will be required to care for the transaction. The applicant should be able to state the date on which the first half was secured.

PRIVATE BOWSER MAKES GOOD AT RADIO

Pvt. Wayne W. Bowser, victory division, located in the western war command, son of Mrs. Ivan C. Bowser of St. Joe, has completed an exacting 14-week course in radio operation at Camp Knox, Ky. Pvt. Bowser and other "Armoraider" radio operators now return to their original units to become important cogs in the intricate communications system used by the army's lightning-fast armored divisions. The soldier students were picked carefully on the basis of their aptitude to learn International Morse. For weeks they picked out dot-and-dash combinations fed over headphones from a mechanical transmitter, later simulating actual combat conditions afield by transmitting code from rumbling tanks with sending keys strapped to their legs.

"My Home Coming, May 17, 1942"

Poem Written by Mrs. Henry Murphy, after visiting her children, during the winter following her husband's death in August, 1941

Home again, yet no, 'tis not, 'tis just a lovely, lonely spot,
Where once with Father, Children all,
This place we each, our home would call;
But now no more with Irish wit, can Father cheer,
Where 'lone I sit.
Nor can the dear old echoes ring,
From Children's voices as they sing.

I wonder me, if ever more, we'll meet on this or other shore,
And yet I mourn with lesser scope,
Than those who mourn, and have no hope;
For in God's promises I see,
If ours with his life can a-gree,
Some day again, each one I'll see.

Yes see, and as I could of old,
Each one within my arms enfold;
Most yet are living and will come,
But never seem the same dear home;
'Twill make them sad as well as glad,
To know that once this home they had,
Though not the best, yet not so bad.

The lilacs in the yard still bloom,
And for their flowers scarce find room,
The orchard trees will fruitage bring,
The birds within their branches sing.
And all the neighbors, happy roam,
In autos past this silent home.

The Heavens are just as heavenly blue,
And where there's clouds, the sun shines through,
A golden halo 'round the gray, and zephyr breeze,
That bids me stay.
Where could I find a better spot,
Or better could be my lot,
Where life and love have been so real
That one their presence could al-most feel.

That God is good, I gladly own,
Believe me He still, sits on His throne,
And that the universe He guides,
Yet thinks of little me, besides.
And in this home, so strangely still,
I sure will try to do His will,
And when this pilgrimage is past,
Our hope in Jesus, still will last.

Then, when He comes His voice we'll hear,
And with His loved ones we'll appear
And rise with that Immortal Throng
To sing with them, Salvation's song.
Oh, I'm so glad it won't be long,
To that glad day, of joy and song.

CONG. GILLIE PLANS TOUR OF DISTRICT

Congressman Schedules Official Visit Here August 13

Taking advantage of a Summer lull in the legislative calendar, Congressman George W. Gillie has made tentative plans for a tour of the Fourth Indiana District on official business during the coming month, according to an announcement received from his office.

House passage of the 1942 War Revenue Bill, largest in history, has cleared the Congressional docket of all pending major legislation, at least for the time being, making possible the first limited House recess since the outbreak of the war.

Unless unexpected developments require his presence in Washington, Congressman Gillie expects to spend at least two days in each county of his district. As in former years, he will establish temporary office quarters in various cities for the transaction of public business. He will be accompanied by his secretary, Charles A. Baird.

"I know that the war has created many new problems for the people of the Fourth District, and I hope that they will avail themselves freely of the services of my office," Congressman Gillie said.

"I look forward to these visits, which are all to infrequent during war-time, as an opportunity to renew acquaintance with my constituency, and to sample Main Street opinion on vital public questions."

A tentative list of cities to be visited by Congressman Gillie, subject to change or cancellation, includes the following for his third week's visitation:

Third Week — August 10 through August 15.

Monday, August 10—Fort Wayne.

Tuesday, August 11—Waterloo (Post Office,) 11 A. M.; Garrett (New Garrett Hotel,) 2 P. M.

HAY FEVER

So they might call it the good old summer time! But not when you are a sufferer from hay fever and when this is the season that you suffer most from the malady. The schedule for the opening of the onslaught is around August 15, and though the date may be advanced or retarded this year, you can just figure that come it will with the unfortunate feverites reaching for handkerchiefs and wiping watery eyes and noses. You may be among the fortunate sufferers who can hie themselves to a climate where relief is obtained, or perhaps you are able to afford air-conditioning in your home to withstand the pollens and dust. Maybe medical science has helped you check the fever. But whatever is done, is never quite enough for the hay fever victim. It is when the weed pollens are ripe for distribution that the unfortunate suffer the most. It isn't only in country that weeds grow, but on many a neglected city lot. Neglect can cause much suffering and since we are humane and know we can help by cutting down any ragweed on our premises, we will do so. It doesn't take much effort and there isn'e any expense entailed for us to get rid of some of these sniffle areas and pollen traps. We try to stay away from the irritant but it is difficult when you realize that pollen can rise to thousands of feet and be blown to points hundreds of miles away.

THEY KEEP GOING

We have eulogized on the work of the railroads in transportation and bus companies, of our factories turning out in mass quantity, of the laborer buckling down and doing his job. But say, what about throwing a big bouquet at the farmer who toils at his chores, kept busy with his cows and chickens, wheat and corn, fruit and berries. He goes his way, usually unsung, rising early and working late, no time and a half overtime, no hourly schedule, shortened helping hands, weather to worry about, storage to fret over. There is a great deal to worry about and not take for granted in farming. But on their way they go, these farmers of our nation, plowing, sowing, reaping grinding, feeding and shucking. Stay at home, do their job mostly without complaint, because that is what they have always done, before the war and it is what they will still do after the war is over. They are fighting for their country, and their way isn't easy.

SWIMMING

Times have made it possible for most children to learn how to swim. Everyone should know how and almost everyone does. But one thing about swimming, to learn the fundamentals you can't read it out of books but must take to the water. The boy who lives in or near to the country has the advantage of using a creek nearby. Few of the oldsters who won't thrill when they think of the old swimming hole of their childhood and the memories that it revives are sweet. There is more of a thrill to swimming in the old swimming hole than in any modern heat tempered bathing pools with the water shot thru with health rays, with shower rooms and electric dryers at hand. No sir, most fellers will say give us the pond below the corn field where you skin off your clothes behind a log, duck and splash, yell and leap, all to the tune of the old swimming hole.

HEAVY EATING

These are the months that are supposed to be the most dangerous in the entire year, to the man who crams his stomach to capacity, with all of the tempting things that are so easily and inexpensively attainable to fill his dinner table. Ask the doctor in St. Joe and he will tell you that July and August are two months when thousands of people bear down heavier on the shovel they are using to dig their graves—the knife and fork. He will advance the same sort of advice that we hand out, to eat a bit less heavily during hot days, not get too much sun, not chill the stomach with too much ice water. Of course it is hard to watch our diet when we are in the very midst of the best season there is for food. But the fellow who does is apt to outlive the other who doesn't.

HEAT WAVES

There doesn't seem to be any summer on record when there wasn't some sort of a heat wave at some period during the supposedly hot months. There are grandmothers about who are treasuring summers of the past with memories to use as examples of former heat waves that put today's to shame. But we are becoming able to stand almost anything and what's a little heat wave in our complicated existence. We take cold waves in the winter with just the same fortitude, and do just as much talking about them as we do the high temperatures in summer. We like our superlatives and so each wave is a little bit hotter or colder than the one last year. Where we are weak in the summer is by foolishly jumping into unknown swimming holes, drinking water that isn't tested, getting an unhealthy dose of sunburn, not using caution on highways, all apt to make us remember the season more than the heat. Surely we need a vacation but not this kind of one.

GIVE YOUR OLD RECORDS TO OUR FIGHTING MEN

There as so many things we would like to do for the comfort and happiness of our boys in the armed forces and so few that we can do that an opportunity to participate in the "Records For Our Fighting Men" campaign conducted by the American Legion and its Auxiliary should bring enthusiastic response from us who find it our lot to "Keep the home fires burning."

Do our fighting men WANT records?—Read this:

Sometime during June, "Somewhere in Australia," Pvt. F. E. Miller of Scotch Plains, N. J., received nine phonograph records from his girl in New Jersey. The correspondent who sent the story to his paper said he could testify that he saw a music store in this Australian city disrupted by them. Pvt. Miller visited the store to play the records to get better results than he could get from his own portable phonograph. He and a buddy went into one of the store's playing compartments and started off with "When the Roses Bloom Again," by Glen Miller's orchestra. Before the piece was finished a considerable crowd had gathered in the corridor outside the compartment and the crowd increased when they next played "String of Pearls" by Benny Goodman's orchestra.

"Australian jazz and swing are strictly 'corn on the cob.' You can't blame them for wanting to hear the real article," Miller said.

Among the listeners to the jive session were many American soldiers, and the expression of joy on their faces was good to see. That fact was noticed by Miller, who remarked:

"Why don't the broadcasts from home have more hot jazz in them. Take that program called 'News from home.' It would be better if they just used that time for hot jazz. That's what we want to hear."

The correspondent went on to say that he heard a squadron commander of the American Air Force say:

"Music is swell for these kids. They ought to have more of it. I have watched them listening to the broadcasts from home, and there is something about the music from San Francisco and New York that is different. If somebody at home wanted to do something for the boys who are fighting in this war they would see to it that every squadron had a first class phonograph and records so that there would always be available good hot swing and classicals. There is no better morale builder."

Shall we take the squadron commander's word for it? Are you going to hunt up those old records you have and turn them over for this fund?

The quota for your local post is 1875 and it is going to take your wholehearted cooperation to enable them to reach this mark by August 2, the deadline for the campaign.

Take your records to the Kinsey Hardware Store, St. Joe; Baker's Grocery Store, Spencerville; Baker's Store, Concord; Smith's Store, Newville; or if you are unable to deliver them to one of these places, call 27F14, and they will be picked up at your home.

You can do THIS for your boys!

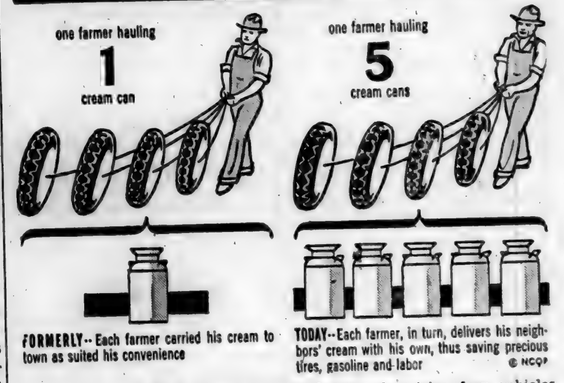
POOLED CREAM DELIVERIES SAVE TIRES, GAS, LABOR



FORMERLY—Each farmer carried his cream to town as suited his convenience

TODAY—Each farmer, in turn, delivers his neighbors' cream with his own, thus saving precious tires, gasoline and labor © NCQP

Officials of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Office of Defense Transportation see in the current tire scarcity a serious threat to the quality of milk, cream, and other produce marketed by farmers. The danger lies in the tendency to less frequent marketing, with longer holding on the farm and consequent spoilage or lowering of grade.

The spirit of neighborly helpfulness traditional among farmers promises a way out, however, and plans for the pooling of cream and produce deliveries are being encouraged by our government. This spirit already is manifest in a number of states where groups of farmers are arranging to take turn-about in the use of their cars or trucks for milk and cream deliveries and the hauling of supplies back from town. Where before five cars from a given locality might have been seen on the road to town, each carrying a can or two of cream, today one departs, carrying the combined load of five farmers' cream. The result is a saving of no mean proportions. Sixteen tires have been spared the wear and tear of a trip; four vehicles have had another trip added to their lives, and the time of four men has been spared for field work. Besides that, and of equal importance, milk and cream, highly perishable products, have gone to market on schedule and at top quality. Valuable food and critical war materials have been saved.

Of the three basic principles of quality cream production—cleanliness, cooling, and frequent marketing—the last is of great importance. Two or three times a week is none too often to get cream to market. Longer holding on the farm tends to nullify the good work of keeping cream clean and properly cooled. Time gives bacteria the opportunity to multiply, and they do that at an astonishing rate. Objectionable flavors become more pronounced each day and quality is lowered correspondingly. The result is either a product unfit for food and subject to rejection, or one of such inferior quality that it cannot bring a first-grade return.

Repair Electrical Appliances

ELECTRICAL appliances provide nutritious food, prevent eyestrain, contribute to health and morale, and in these ways to Victory . . .

With increasing restrictions on production of appliances, those you now have should be made to last. It is patriotic to conserve. Care and repair will make valuable electrical appliances last longer. Sometimes a simple cleaning and a little oil will do wonders.

Ask your electrical dealer for a check-up. If parts are needed, he may be delayed in securing them, but he can give you service and valuable suggestions for getting the most wear through care.

HOOSIER HOME FRONT

INTERESTING HOME FRONT NEWS IN INDIANA

Last year Hoosier farmers grew 856,000 acres of soybeans and were paid $14,552,000 for them. This spring Uncle Sam set 1,200,000 acres as the state's goal for soybeans, which are an important agricultural ingredient in many industrial operations connected with the war.

Hoosier farmers responded in their customary fashion. Purdue University estimates that there now are 1,771,000 acres of soybeans growing in Indiana and that such an unprecedented crop may raise the state from third to second largest soybean producer.

Large quantities of synthetic resins and plastics, drying oils, and solvents needed for war manufacture are saved by the substitution of soybean proteins in industrial processes.

The war industries of Indiana are doing all right, too. Last week they began listing with the district War Production Board the idle hours on critical machine tools available for work other than that for which they are contracted. Thus, if another manufacturer needs work done on these machines he can get immediate information on when they will be idle and for how long at the WPB office in Indianapolis. This will save hours and hours of time in all cases, and in many will afford the only possible way of getting the work done. It's another refinement in the art of producing materials for the armed forces engaged in the biggest war ever fought.

Wonder if they won't be needing dray horses again in the cities pretty soon, what with tires being denied beer and soft drink delivery trucks after this month? And wonder if the cities will allow teams on asphalt streets which get all cut up by those slim heels on women's shoes?

Production itself booms along to record heights. Scarcely a day goes by but what the men who make steel report to War Production Drive Headquarters that they have smashed another record. Labor-Management Committees send in production reports which a few months ago would have seemed unbelievable. A single plant, the Ashland, Ky., Division of the American Mill Company has set more than 1,000 new production records since Pearl Harbor and its workers and management commented last week that "this is the pace we have set for ourselves until the war is over."

But this pace connot be maintained unless we keep scrap iron and steel flowing back to the mills. The great new salvage drive is on—now—and there is no excuse for half-heartedness or half-measures on the part of any city or any town or any individual. If we want to win the war we must have scrap metal. An indication of how much scrap iron and steel we need was a statement by WPB last week that it would require more than 750,000 freight car loads of this scrap to keep our steel furnaces going at capacity this year. And that much of this load must be moved by tracks to rail points. WPB Chairman, Donald M. Nelson, has asked state and local governments to lend trucks and manpower to salvage committees to help get this scrap to the railroads. Steel mills today, some of them, are operating with less than a week's supply of scrap metal in reserve.

Here's another chance for free Americans to prove that a free people can do a better job than the slaves of a dictatorship. The Nazis need scrap even worse than we do. And the Nazis are going after it, a recent broadcast for the German home front said Hitler had ordered all unused iron and steel confiscated and added—"Active support of the total action will be brought about by the uniformed police." In other words, by Himmler and the Gestapo.

Last week brought these tightenings—(1) WPB ordered all hand tools simplified to save iron and steel and other materials and decreed that after the end of August alloy steel may not be used in any shovels except those used in mining. (2) WPB decreed that sole leather of military quality and weight may now be used only in shoe or repair leather bought for military purposes. (3) WPB issued more restrictions in the use of rubber for a long list of civilian products, including rubber footwear and a variety of farming and industrial equipment. (4) WPB announced that a way had been found to make powder and other military articles out of used silk hosiery, stopped sale of used silk hosiery in the hands of dealers.

The War Manpower Commission announces that $5,000,000 will soon be available to help technical and professional students speed up their training for war jobs. And the Federal Security Agency's apprenticeship branch is working on plans to train new typewriter repair men. The campaign to get 600,000 used typewriters from business and private sources for the armed services and the war agencies shows how critical is the shortage of typewriters....WPB has ordered that officers' military insignia must be made of sterling silver and solid gold in order to save other metals needed for war, and after present stocks in civilian stores are exhausted such insignia may only be sold to Army and Marine post exchanges and Navy shore service station. Women had been wearing insignia as costume jewelry and civilian men as tie holders and collar pins...Men's pajamas won't be "simplified" just yet, according to WPB.
